WHEREAS, a recent audit identified many of these problems and recommended that a single state agency be designated to coordinate the collection of state revenue by the counties."

Part 22

General Provisions Related to Counties

Part Attorney General's Opinions

Authority of Local Government to Levy Additional Mills to Make Up Difference Between Light Vehicle Tax Reimbursement and Amount Assessed for Fiscal Year 2001: In enacting 15-1-121, the Legislature provided for a reimbursement of an average of 88% of the amount lost by counties in light vehicle fee collections compared to the amount that the counties actually received in combined fees and property taxes in fiscal year 2001. The legislative intent was to simplify the collection and disbursement of county revenue while maintaining rough revenue neutrality for the counties. Under 15-10-420, the Legislature also provided an inflation adjustment to the mill levy cap and allowed for an increase in mill levy capacity for a decrease in reimbursements, in effect enabling local governments to maintain for fiscal year 2002 the amount of revenue collected in fiscal year 2001. Thus, a local government was authorized to levy additional mills sufficient to make up the difference between the amount reimbursed by the state for light vehicle fees and taxes under 15-1-121 and the amount of fees and taxes assessed by the local government for fiscal year 2001. 49 A.G. Op. 4 (2001).

Mill Levy Increase — Proration to Parts of Fiscal Year to Accommodate October Effective Date: Section 7-14-2501 was amended in 1981 to authorize the Board of County Commissioners to levy 15 mills rather than 12 mills for the county road fund. The increase, under the 1981 amendments to 1-2-201, becomes effective October 1, 1981. However the county budget year begins July 1, 1981. The reasonable way to give effect to both amendments is to construe them to allow the Board to apply a rate of 12 mills for the 3 months of the current county fiscal year which fall before October 1, 1981, and a rate of 15 mills for the 9 months of the current county fiscal year which fall after October 1, 1981. County Auditor and Claims Against County

Part Case Notes

Failure of Commissioners to Provide Suitable Office Room: The acts of the County Commissioners in furnishing the Auditor, as an office, an 8- x 22-foot partitioned space, with no windows, insufficient ventilation, and artificial lighting, was an abuse of discretion and an arbitrary act. State ex rel. Taylor v. Bd. of County Comm’rs, 128 M 102, 270 P2d 994 (1954).

Woman May Be Auditor: Since the adoption of the suffrage amendment to the 1889 Montana Constitution, a woman, otherwise qualified, is entitled to hold the office of County Auditor. Rose v. Sullivan, 56 M 480, 185 P 562 (1919).

Amendment effective October 1, 2003.

Part of Section Not Codified: A “grandfather clause” at the end of section 16-3201, R.C.M. 1947, relating to the continued holding of office of current officeholders in fifth-class counties was not codified because it was temporary. That clause was not repealed and is valid law. It may be referred to as sec. 1, Ch. 52, L. 1961.

Case Notes

County of Sixth Class — Accountant Hired to Audit Books — Void: Under this section a county of the sixth class is not entitled to an auditor, and when such county entered into a contract with a public accountant for an audit of its books at a monthly compensation of $150 for a period of several years, the contract was void for the reason that it nullified this section. Judith Basin County ex rel. Vralsted v. Livingston, 89 M 438, 298 P 356 (1931).

Attorney General’s Opinions

No Authority of Board of County Commissioners to Reduce County Auditor Office to Part-Time Position: Montana statutes contemplate a full-time County Auditor with a full-time salary in every county with a population of greater than 15,000. Although County Commissions do have the authority to consolidate certain county offices, including the County Auditor’s office, no existing statute contemplates a reduction of the office of County Auditor to a part-time position. Had the Legislature intended to expressly authorize County Commissions to reduce the office, it would have adopted legislation similar to that for County Attorneys and County Superintendents. The authority in 7-6-2412 extends to the imposition of additional County Auditor duties, not to the reduction of hours worked. There is no express or implied authority for counties with general powers to reduce the office of County Auditor to a half-time position. 47 A.G. Op. 18 (1998).

The county auditor shall also investigate and examine all claims presented to him and report the same with his finding to the board of county commissioners at their regular session after such investigation shall have been completed, with his approval or disapproval endorsed thereon, and he shall keep a complete record of all such claims and of his investigations and examinations of the same in a book kept for that purpose"; inserted (2) and (3) regarding duties of county auditor after receipt of claim; in (4)(b) at end of first sentence deleted "provided, however, that the judge of the district court of the county where any claim has been disapproved by the county auditor may order the payment of the same"; inserted (4)(b)(i) through (4)(b)(iii) outlining requirements for county auditor upon disapproval of claim payment; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective April 16, 2003.

Case Notes

Disallowance of Claims: The Board may exercise its judgment in ordering paid those claims which have the approval of the Auditor, but the only power which the Board has in reference to claims disapproved by him is to disallow them. State ex rel. Dolin v. Major, 58 M 140, 192 P 618 (1920).

District Court Approval of Disallowed Claims: It would seem that the proviso empowering District Judges to order the payment of claims against the county after the approval by the Auditor is repugnant to Art. IV, sec. 1, 1889 Mont. Const. (similar to Art. III, sec. 1, 1972 Mont. Const.), for the reason that it undertakes to cast upon District Judges a power which pertains exclusively to the executive branch of the government. State ex rel. Dolin v. Major, 58 M 140, 192 P 618 (1920).

Scope of "Audit": The word "audit" is not used in its narrow and restricted sense and does not limit the Auditor to merely ascertaining whether the claims are in proper form and mathematically correct. State ex rel. Dolin v. Major, 58 M 140, 192 P 618 (1920).

Case Notes

Scope of County Auditor's Duties — Adequate Budget: A County Auditor brought an action seeking a Writ of Mandamus to compel the respondent Board of County Commissioners to include sufficient funds in the Auditor's budget to allow the Auditor to conduct audits to determine county compliance with applicable statutes. The Supreme Court overruled the issuance of the Writ by stating that while the Board has a legally enforceable duty to fund the Auditor's office at a level that allows her to perform her duties at the minimum level imposed by law, the language of the applicable statute and a comparison of the Auditor's duty under 7-6-2409 with the duties of the Legislative Auditor and the duties of the Department of Community Affairs (now Department of Administration) indicates that the County Auditor's functions under 7-6-2409 are limited to bookkeeping and account balancing. This conclusion is also indicated by the fact that the Legislature has required no professional qualifications of the County Auditors but has established minimum levels of education and experience for the Legislative Auditor. Reep v. Bd. of County Comm'rs, 191 M 162, 622 P2d 685, 38 St. Rep. 108 (1981).

7-6-2413. Limitation on number of deputy county auditors.

Case Notes

No Legal Duty to Fund Deputy Position: The Lewis and Clark County Auditor petitioned for a Writ of Mandamus to compel the Board of County Commissioners to fund a Deputy Auditor position eliminated by the Commissioners because of budget cuts. The District Court dismissed the petition on the ground that there was no legal duty of the Commissioners to fund the position. On appeal, the Supreme Court had to reconcile three statutes: 7-4-2401(1), under which county officers may appoint as many deputies or assistants as necessary to discharge the duties of the office; 7-4-2402, which provides the County Commissioners with authority to fix and determine the number of county deputy officers; and 7-6-2413, which provides that the number of Deputy Auditors in first-, second-, and third-class counties must not exceed one. The court held that the specific statute, 7-6-2413, must control over the general statute, 7-4-2401(1). The specific statute does not mandate a Deputy Auditor but merely permits one deputy. Based on 7-4-2402, the court held that the authority to determine whether to appoint a deputy resides with the Commissioners and not the Auditor. Based on this statutory scheme, the court held that the Commissioners had no clear legal duty to fund the position of Deputy Auditor. Spotorno v. Bd. of Comm'rs, 212 M 253, 687 P2d 720, 41 St. Rep. 1722 (1984).

GENERAL

Mandamus Proceeding Authorized: This section was not violated by Justice of the Peace seeking Writ of Mandamus to compel County Commissioners to pay for clerical services of a secretary because he was considered to be litigating his own right to incur actual and necessary expenses in the performance of his official duties. State ex rel. Browman v. Wood, 168 M 341, 543 P2d 184, 32 St. Rep. 1136 (1975).

Limitation — No Bar: Where, without first ascertaining the legal ownership thereof, a county appropriated a landowner's gravel, the landowner's action was not barred by the limitation of this section. Neil v. Lewis & Clark County, 133 M 323, 323 P2d 270 (1958).

Limitation — Not Applicable to Amended Claim: Where a Sheriff's claims during two terms in office had been approved by the Commissioners for mileage at the rate of 7 cents and 8 ½ cents per mile, and after retiring from office he presented additional claims for the difference between those rates and 10 cents per mile under 7-32-2144, he was not required to present the latter claims within 1 year after the last claim accrued, under this section, they having amounted to amendments of the original claims, the merits of which had been passed upon by the Board before approval. Weir v. Silver Bow County, 113 M 237, 124 P2d 1003 (1942), distinguished in Neil v. Lewis & Clark County, 133 M 323, 323 P2d 270 (1958).

Claim by Officer — Use of Own Equipment:

Mere benefits received will not ordinarily create an implied promise to pay, but if a county (or other municipal corporation) is required by law to furnish one of its officers with the necessary equipment for the performance of his duties, and it does not do so but knowingly permits him to use his own equipment, receiving benefits therefrom, it is liable for the reasonable value of its use as upon an implied contract. Hicks v. Stillwater County, 84 M 38, 274 P 296 (1929).

This section, providing that a county officer must not present any claim against the county, except for his own services, or aid another in procuring allowance of a demand against the county, does not bar an officer from presenting a valid claim against the county for use of his own equipment, the provision being merely intended to bar the officer from championing the claims of third persons. Hicks v. Stillwater County, 84 M 38, 274 P 296 (1929).

Pleading — Presentation of Claim — Condition Precedent: The presentation of a claim to the Board of County Commissioners is a condition precedent to the commencement of an action against the county for its recovery. Powder River Cattle Co. v. Comm'rs of Custer County, 9 M 145, 22 P 383 (1889); Greeley v. Cascade County, 22 M 580, 57 P 274 (1899). See also First Nat'l Bank of Billings v. Custer County, 7 M 464, 17 P 551 (1888).

Pleading — Allegations Required: A complaint in an action against a county to recover witness fees, which failed to allege that the claim had been presented under oath (deleted, Ch. 225, L. 1979) to the county, in separate items, with the nature of each item stated, was defective. First Nat'l Bank of Billings v. Custer County, 7 M 464, 17 P 551 (1888), distinguished in Neil v. Lewis & Clark County, 133 M 323, 323 P2d 270 (1958).

CLAIMS

School Money — Question of Law — No Discretion: A claim against the county within the meaning of this section, the presentation of which to the Board of County Commissioners is a condition precedent of an action for its recovery, does not comprehend a claim by a school district for its proportion of interest and penalties retained by the county on redemption of property from tax sale. This presents a question of the law dependent upon the meaning of statutes, thus leaving no room for the exercise of discretion lodged in the Board in passing upon the average claim presented for allowance. School District v. Pondera County, 89 M 342, 297 P 498 (1931).

Failed Consideration — Road Purchase: The subject matter of an action against a county by which it was sought to obtain compensation for land taken for road purposes under an agreement, the consideration for which failed, is not a "claim" against the county, within the meaning of this section, an action on which is barred if not brought within 1 year after its accrual. Flynn v. Beaverhead County, 54 M 309, 170 P 13 (1917), explained in Neil v. Lewis & Clark County, 133 M 323, 323 P2d 270 (1958).

Member of Sheriff's Posse: A person who serves as a member of a Sheriff's posse in obedience to a law requiring him to do so cannot recover from the county for expenses or services rendered, in the absence of an express or implied provision of law authorizing payment therefor. Sears v. Gallatin County, 20 M 462, 52 P 204 (1898). See State ex rel. McGrade v. District Court, 52 M 371, 157 P 1157 (1916).

Case Notes*Section Plain, Speedy, and Adequate Relief — Mandate as Remedy:*

Where Justice of Peace incurred unbudgeted expenses and County Commissioners refused to pay, Writ of Mandate under 27-26-102, rather than appeal under this section or declaratory judgment, was proper remedy. State ex rel. Browman v. Wood, 168 M 341, 543 P2d 184 (1975).

District Court properly quashed Writ of Mandate to compel County Commissioners to allow claim of hospital for medical care of a floating sheepherder since there existed a plain, speedy, and adequate remedy at law by an appeal to the District Court from disallowance of claim by County Commissioners. State ex rel. Mont. Hosp. Ass'n, Inc. v. Pitch, 140 M 349, 372 P2d 90 (1962).

Appeals — How Tried:

Appeals from orders of the Board of County Commissioners disallowing claims against a county must, under this section, be tried and determined as appeals from Justices' Courts; i.e., they must be tried de novo (25-33-301 and 25-33-302). Yancey v. Park County, 111 M 73, 106 P2d 349 (1940).

The language of subsection (3) can mean no more than that the court may try de novo the question whether the action of the Board in its allowance or disallowance was correct. The Board is not a court, and its action is not tantamount to a judgment. Its refusal to allow a claim is not conclusive, even though the claimant does not appeal. Albers v. Barnett, 53 M 71, 161 P 521 (1916); Greeley v. Cascade County, 22 M 580, 57 P 274 (1899).

Appeals from actions of Boards of County Commissioners are prosecuted and tried like appeals from a Justice of the Peace. State ex rel. Seres v. District Court, 19 M 501, 48 P 1104 (1897).

Effect of Failure to Appeal Allowance of Claim — Suit by County Attorney: Failure of a taxpayer to appeal to the District Court from an order of the Board of County Commissioners allowing a claim against the county under the authority given him by this section does not limit the right of the County Attorney to sue in the name of the county to recover money illegally paid under 7-4-2714. Carbon County v. Draper, 84 M 413, 276 P 667 (1929).

Record on Appeal: An appeal from an order of the Board of County Commissioners disallowing a claim against the county was submitted to the District Court without a hearing, resulting in a reversal of the order. The County Attorney made an appeal from the court's order declining to set aside its decision on the ground of inadvertence and mistake based on the assertion that the Clerk of the Board had failed to lodge with the court a copy of the Board's record in the case. The Supreme Court held that it was apparent that to arrive at its decision the court must have impliedly found that the proper record was before it. Huntington v. Yellowstone County, 80 M 20, 257 P 1041 (1927).

Board to Allow or Disallow Claims Against County: When the Auditor has disapproved a claim, the Board of County Commissioners must disallow it so that the claimant may proceed to enforce it against the county by appeal to the District Court. State ex rel. Dolin v. Major, 58 M 140, 192 P 618 (1920).

Jurisdiction on Appeal: The jurisdiction of the District Court on appeal from an order made by County Commissioners allowing or disallowing a claim against the county is limited to the determination of the question whether the action of the Board of County Commissioners was correct and to a declaration affirming or reversing it, with a judgment for costs. Albers v. Barnett, 53 M 71, 161 P 521 (1916).

Parties:

On appeal from an order of the Board of County Commissioners allowing or disallowing a claim under this section, the parties are the county and the claimant, or in a taxpayer's suit, the county and the objecting taxpayer. Albers v. Barnett, 53 M 71, 161 P 521 (1916).

In the case of claims against counties, the claimant, or the objecting taxpayer, and the county are the real parties in interest, and therefore adversary parties. State ex rel. Hackshaw v. District Court, 48 M 477, 138 P 1100 (1913).

Independent Action on Claim: A claimant against the county has the right to maintain an independent action on a claim rejected by the Board of Commissioners in view of 27-2-209. Greeley v. Cascade County, 22 M 580, 57 P 274 (1899).

Appeal of Portion of Allowance: An appeal may be taken by a taxpayer from one or more items of a claim against the county allowed by the Commissioners, without appealing from the whole of the allowance. Twohy v. Bd. of Comm'rs, 17 M 461, 43 P 494 (1896).

Sufficiency of Notice — Waiver by Clerk: An appeal was taken by a taxpayer from the allowance by the Commissioners of a bill against the county. A notice of appeal was served upon the County Clerk, and the Clerk thereupon complied with applicable law on appeal. The Clerk thereby waived any irregularity or insufficiency of the service of the notice. Twohy v. Bd. of Comm'rs, 17 M 461, 43 P 494 (1896).

Appeal Allowance of Claims — Default Against County: A taxpayer took an appeal to the District Court from an allowance by a Board of County Commissioners of a claim against a county under sections 764 and 765, 5th Div. Comp. Stat. 1887. A judgment by default was rendered by the court upon the failure of the Board to appear, adjudging the claim illegal and setting aside the allowance of the same without a trial or inquiry of any character respecting its merits. The judgment was unauthorized and constituted no defense to an application for a Writ of Mandamus to compel the payment by the County Treasurer of a warrant issued in payment of such claim. State ex rel. Cope v. Minar, 13 M 1, 31 P 723 (1892), explained in Albers v. Barnett, 53 M 71, 161 P 521 (1916).

Case Notes

County Properly Ordered to Pay County Attorney's Salary Increase: Although the Board of County Commissioners had been notified that the state would be unable to pay an increased contribution to the County Attorney's salary, the Board awarded the County Attorney a salary in excess of twice the amount appropriated by the state. When the state's one-half share of the salary failed to cover the salary increase, the County Attorney sued the county for the shortfall. The District Court ordered the county to pay the salary increase, and the county appealed, but the Supreme Court affirmed, holding that counties are responsible for any increases in County Attorneys' salaries that are not taken into account and included in the state appropriation for paying County Attorneys' salaries. Oster v. Valley County, 2006 MT 180, 333 M 76, 140 P3d 1079 (2006).

Criminal Case — Sheriff's Out-of-State Expenses Denied: A Sheriff predicated his demand for reimbursement for expenses incurred by him for services performed beyond the state line upon his legal rights incident to his position as Sheriff and not upon a contract of employment by the County Attorney, at who's direction he acted, nor did he show that he first obtained the consent of the Board of County Commissioners to absent himself from the state under 7-4-2208; thus he was not entitled to recover on the theory that the claim was allowable under authority of subsection (2), making the county chargeable with expenses necessarily incurred by the County Attorney in criminal cases arising within the county. Brannin v. Sweet Grass County, 88 M 412, 293 P 970 (1930).

Contingent Expenses: A County Attorney of a county of the third class had power to bind the county for services of a stenographer employed by the day if such services were necessary to the proper discharge of the duties of his office. In the absence of a showing that they were unnecessary, the District Court properly directed the Board of County Commissioners to pay the claim, under this section, providing that contingent expenses necessarily incurred for the use and benefit of the county are county charges. In re Claims of Hyde, 73 M 363, 236 P 248 (1925).

Expenses Not Imposed by Law:

That which the law does not impose as an expense upon a county is not properly chargeable to it. In re Claims of Hyde, 73 M 363, 236 P 248 (1925).

Expenses not imposed by law are not a charge against a county. Wade v. Lewis & Clark County, 24 M 335, 61 P 879 (1900).

Criminal Case — County Attorney: Under subsection (2), all expenses necessarily incurred by a County Attorney in prosecutions for public offenses arising in the county are a county charge. Independent Publishing Co. v. Lewis & Clark County, 30 M 83, 75 P 860 (1904).

Restriction of Liability: This section restricts the liability of the county to such expenses as may be incurred under statutory authority directly conferred or necessarily implied from the powers granted to the county. Sears v. Gallatin County, 20 M 462, 52 P 204 (1898).

County Responsible for Charges Incurred by City Police — Criminal Prosecutions: The county bears the financial responsibility for charges incurred at the request of the County Attorney, after an arrest by city police, for the preservation and preparation of evidence to be used in felony cases. 38 A.G. Cost of Defending Official Misconduct: A county is not obligated to pay the costs of defending a nonindigent county officer charged with official misconduct. 37 A.G. Op. 57 (1977).

Financial Obligation for Psychiatric Evaluation in Criminal Trials: The county is financially responsible for psychiatric evaluations conducted to determine whether a criminal defendant is mentally fit to proceed at trial. 37 A.G. Op. 37 (1977).

7-6-2430. Accounts to be examined, settled, and allowed.

Case Notes

Failure to Examine — Waiver of Right to Complain: Since under this section, the Board of County Commissioners is authorized to examine, settle, and allow all claims against the county, its failure to ascertain whether charges made under a county printing contract were in accordance therewith deprives the county of the right to charge that claims filed for work done under the contract were fraudulent. Carbon County v. Draper, 84 M 413, 276 P 667 (1929).

"Accounts": The word "accounts" used in this section must be understood in a broad, generic sense, and as including any right to or claim for money which is due and payable from the county treasury. State ex rel. Dolin v. Major, 58 M 140, 192 P 618 (1920).

Part 25 County Taxation

Part Case Notes

Increased Valuations: State Board of Equalization (now State Tax Appeal Board) issued a directive to Board of County Commissioners and County Assessor in November 1963, requiring use of certain valuations on grade of farmland for 1964 and years thereafter, that the officials of the county refused to do. The State Board was entitled to mandamus to compel the county officials to comply with the directive. Alleged impossibility of compliance on July 22, 1964, was no defense. The officials had from November until the second Monday in August to accomplish the task but chose to do nothing except contest the matter. State ex rel. Bd. of Equalization v. Koch, 145 M 474, 401 P2d 765 (1965).

Time of Attachment of Lien: Even though 15-16-403 provides that the tax lien attaches at date certain, the lien cannot become choate for the purpose of determining its priority as against federal tax liens until the amount is determined pursuant to 7-6-2502 (now repealed). Streeter Bros. v. Overfelt, 202 F. Supp. 143 (D.C. Mont. 1961).

Time for Fixing Rate: Board of County Commissioners, at the conclusion of its sitting, must fix the rate of taxation for the year. State ex rel. Fadness v. Eie, 53 M 138, 162 P 164 (1916).

Levy for Juvenile Detention Facility Not Subject to Voter Approval Unless Increase Sought in Previous Levy: House Bill No. 74, passed by the 1991 Legislature and approved as Ch. 745, L. 1991, does not require that a levy for juvenile detention facilities be approved by the voters subsequent to initial voter approval unless there is a proposal to increase the amount of the previously approved levy. If a governing body decides at any time that an increase in mills is necessary, it must follow the procedures outlined in 7-6-2531 (now repealed). 44 A.G. Op. 14 (1991).

Attorney General's Opinions

Power of County Commissioners to Regulate Library Funded by County General Fund — Limitations as if Funded by Five-Mill Levy: The fact that Big Horn County funds its library through the county general fund does not allow the County Commissioners to usurp the library trustees' statutory authority for setting the library's budget and compensation for the library staff. If the County Commissioners fund the library's budget through the county general fund, the power to decide the library staff compensation still rests with the library trustees. The Commissioners may limit the overall funding of the library budget to 5 mills, as if the library were being funded pursuant to the 5-mill tax levy authorized by 22-1-304. (See 2001 amendment to 22-1-304.) To hold otherwise would allow the library trustees to adopt a budget that could assume the entire county general fund levy. 48 A.G. Op. 3 (1999).

Mill Levy Limitations Not Impliedly Repealed by Property Tax Freeze: Initiative No. 105 and Senate Bill No. 71 (Ch. 654, L. 1987) do not amend or repeal by implication statutes limiting the total amount of mill levies. 42 A.G. Op. 21 (1987).

Special Tax Protest Refund Levy Not Subject to Voter Approval — Sale of Bonds Subject to Approval: A special tax protest refund levy authorized by 15-1-402 is not subject to the limitation on property taxes established in this section; therefore, the voter approval requirements of 7-6-2531 (now repealed) do not apply to such levy. However, voter approval is required before bonds may be issued and sold for the purpose of making tax protest refunds. (See 1999 amendment.) 42 A.G. Op. 18 (1987).

Separate Tax Levy for Air Pollution Program Not Permitted: The County Commissioners may not impose a separate tax levy to fund local air pollution programs. 41 A.G. Op. 28 (1985).

Park Board Partly Funded by County General Fund: The funding for the county park board's obligations is derived from the county general fund as well as from other specific sources as enumerated by 7-16-2324, 7-16-2328, and 76-3-606 (now repealed). Since a specific separate tax levy is not authorized for the park fund, additional money must be appropriated from the county general fund authorized by 7-6-2501 if the revenue from sources other than taxation is insufficient to meet the necessary expenditures. 40 A.G. Op. 49 (1984).

Levy of Property Taxes for Special Purposes: The mill levy limitation provided in 7-6-2501 does not apply to special levies authorized for particular purposes. Therefore, the mill levy authorized by 2-9-316, which is a special levy, is not subject to the limit provided in 7-6-2501. 39 A.G. Op. 34 (1981).

Expenses of Valid Interlocal Agreement Includable in Annual Mill Levy: A county may include the expenses of participation in a valid interlocal agreement in its annual county mill levy. 38 A.G. Op. 51 (1979).

Not Exclusive Vehicle for Funding District Court Operations: Section 7-6-2511 is not the exclusive vehicle for funding District Court operations. District Court funding may be supplemented by other revenue sources, such as the all-purpose levy provided by 7-6-2501. 38 A.G. Op. 31 (1979).

2001 Amendments — Composite Section: Chapter 574 in temporary version in first sentence and in version effective July 1, 2002, in (1) before "district court costs" inserted "county" and deleted former second sentence that read: "The tax may not exceed 6 mills in the first- and second-class counties, 5 mills in third- and fourth-class counties, and 4 mills in fifth-, sixth-, and seventh-class counties." Amendment effective July 1, 2001.

(Version effective July 1, 2002) Chapter 585 in (1) at end of first sentence substituted "certain district court costs, as provided in subsection (2)" for "all district court costs, except those listed in 3-5-211, 3-5-213, and 3-5-215"; inserted (2) delineating district court costs for which a tax may be levied; in (3) substituted "Costs of the office of the clerk of district court include but are not limited to salary and benefits for clerks of district court, deputy clerks of district court, and other employees of the office of the clerk of district court and expenses of the office" for "District court costs include but are not limited to salary and benefits for court clerks, court reporters, youth probation officers, and other employees of the district court"; inserted (4) allowing use of excess funds to pay expenses of office of county attorney; inserted (5) referring to ability of county and district court to apply for, receive, and administer state, federal, and private grants; and made minor changes in style.

Attorney General's Opinions

No Statutory Authority to Levy Taxes in Order to Fund Judicial Budget or Budget Deficit: Section 2-9-316 does not grant counties the authority to levy taxes in response to a District Court order that a judicial budget or budget deficit be funded. 43 A.G. Op. 37 (1989).

State Grants to District Courts — Maximum Mill Levy Not Required: Because of the requirements for establishing county mill levies under Title 7, ch. 6, part 23, and because of the unforeseeable nature of District Court expenses, the Department of Administration may not require a county to impose a maximum mill levy for District Court expenses in order to be considered eligible for a state grant to District Courts under 7-6-2352 (now repealed). 39 A.G. Op. 71 (1982).

District Court Employees as County Employees: District Court employees are paid by the county in which the court is located, receive the same county benefits as all other county employees, and are therefore county employees. 39 A.G. Op. 38 (1981).

Disposition of District Court Fees: Fees collected by Clerks of the District Courts do not accrue as a revenue item to the District Court fund in those counties adopting a 6-mill District Court levy (see 2001 amendment). The Board of County Commissioners, however, may supplement the 6-mill levy with general fund revenues in financing the District Court fund. 38 A.G. Op. 52 (1979). (See 38 A.G. Op. 31.)

Costs Resulting From Existence of the District Court as District Court Cost: Costs and charges assessed against a county by virtue of the existence of the District Court and the conduct of District Court proceedings fall within the term "district court cost". These can include family court services, public defender programs, personal staff and support personnel for district judges, and jury and witness fees. 38 A.G. Op. 31 (1979).

Not Exclusive Vehicle for Funding District Court Operations: Section 7-6-2511 is not the exclusive vehicle for funding District Court operations. District Court funding may be supplemented by other revenue sources, such as the all-purpose levy provided by 7-6-2501. 38 A.G. Op. 31 (1979).

Registration of Unpaid Hospital District Warrants as County Warrants and Subsequent Purchase by County Not Allowable: County Commissioners concerned with financing the indebtedness of a local hospital district sought to register the district's unpaid warrants in accordance with 7-6-2603 and this section and then invest surplus county funds in the unpaid warrants pursuant to 7-6-2701. However, the Legislature has authorized counties to invest only in county, municipal, or school district registered warrants, not hospital district warrants. Therefore, unpaid warrants of a hospital district may not be registered as county warrants and purchased by the county in which the district is located. 43 A.G. Op. 71 (1990).

Case NotesFailure to Present for Payment Within Limit:

Failure to present a warrant for payment after it had been called is a complete defense to mandamus action to compel payment, but holder of the warrant need not anticipate and negative such defense. State ex rel. Blenkner v. Stillwater County, 104 M 387, 66 P2d 788 (1937).

The only penalty a holder of a registered warrant incurs, under this section, for failure to re-present it for payment within 60 days after issuance of the call is loss of interest thereon. State ex rel. Case v. Bolles, 74 M 54, 238 P 586 (1925).

Mandamus to Compel Payment of Warrant: Relator held a registered warrant and the fund out of which it was payable had sufficient money to cover the face value of all registered warrants but insufficient to pay them with accrued interest. It did not appear whether the Treasurer had called the warrants for payment or whether the 60 days specified in this section had elapsed. Writ of Mandate ordering the Treasurer to pay relator's warrant with interest was improper in the absence of a showing that there were sufficient funds to pay prior warrants and interest thereon entitled to payment and to pay relator's also. State ex rel. DeKalb v. Ferrell, 105 M 218, 70 P2d 290 (1937).

Mandatory Repayment — Payment Limit: The word "may" appearing in subsection (4)(b) that provides that the Board of County Commissioners may, on application of the holder of a warrant who failed to re-present a warrant within 60 days after issuance of the call for its payment, order the County Treasurer to pay it, means "must" or "shall". *State ex rel. 1985 Amendment: In (1) near middle before "warrants" inserted "municipal, or school district registered", near end substituted "purchase such warrants of entities located in the same county" for "purchase county warrants of the same county", and at end deleted "thereafter issued against funds in which there is not sufficient money to pay such county warrants at the time of issuance"; inserted (2)(c) relating to the rate of interest; in (2)(d) before "warrants" deleted "county warrant or"; in (3) at beginning substituted "The officer drawing a warrant to be purchased for investment by a county shall cause" for "The county clerk and recorder shall thereupon cause" and after "printed upon" substituted "the warrant" for "the warrants so ordered to be purchased"; inserted (4) relating to presentation to County or Municipal Clerk or Treasurer and requirement that warrant be registered; in (5), near beginning after "warrant", inserted "designated for purchase under the provisions of subsection (2)", deleted former second sentence that read: "The warrant so purchased shall be registered as other county warrants and bear interest as provided by law", and at end inserted "or the applicable officer authorized to draw such warrants"; and made numerous minor changes in style and phraseology.

Money From Sale of School Building — Resulting Trust: Complaint for Writ of Mandate by a county high school against the County Treasurer to compel payment of money realized from the sale of a building purchased with high school funds and sold by County Commissioners as trustee when no longer needed for school purposes stated a cause of action on the theory of a resulting trust. Although the pleading did not ask that a trust be declared, it was sufficient to authorize issuance of the Writ directing defendant to deposit the sale price to the credit of plaintiff. *State ex rel. Part Case Notes

DECISIONS UNDER FORMER LAW

Agreement by County Commission to Pay Justice Court Expenses — Failure to Object — Appeal Precluded: A Justice of the Peace requested approval of funds from the County Commission for employment of a temporary clerical assistant. The County Commission initially refused to approve the funds. The claim was then submitted for certification pursuant to Browman v. Wood, 168 M 341, 543 P2d 184 (1975), and was subsequently certified as an actual and necessary expense incurred in the performance of actual duties of the Justice Court. When the bill was still not paid, the Justice of the Peace filed a petition for a contempt order against the County Commissioners for failure to pay the certified claim. The order was amended to include attorney fees. The County Commission then agreed to pay the claim and did not oppose the motion to amend, nor did it file a responsive brief. However, it later alleged error. The Supreme Court held that the County Commission waived the right to appeal by agreeing to pay the claim and then failing to object to the District Court order to pay the claim and taking no further action to challenge the claim. In re Certain Justice Court Expenses, 264 M 510, 872 P2d 795, 51 St. Rep. 372 (1994).

County Employment of Independent Contractor to Provide Legal Services: There is no express prohibition under Montana law precluding or preventing a county from entering into an independent contractor relationship for the provision of legal services. Hamner v. Butte-Silver Bow County, 233 M 271, 760 P2d 76, 45 St. Rep. 1481 (1988).

Commissioners Not Personally Liable for Transfer of Funds: Big Horn County sued County Commissioners and County Clerk and Recorder personally to recover alleged excess funds transferred to pay the salary for a Justice of the Peace. In upholding the District Court's grant of summary judgment for the Commissioners, the Supreme Court held that the Commissioners and Clerk and Recorder acted within their statutory duty and were not personally liable where the transfer of funds was made to cover a deficit when judicial costs exceeded the estimated budget. The hourly cost in the budget was not increased. Big Horn County v. Gregory, 225 M 162, 730 P2d 1181, 44 St. Rep. 120 (1987).

Local Government Revision of Salary Schedules: A local government with self-government powers may revise a salary schedule that has been set forth in the final budget if such revision is done in accordance with the applicable law. Butte-Silver Bow, as a local government with self-government powers, adopted lawful procedures for such revision, but the facts of this case are such that the attempted revision was not in accord with the law. The court found that the salary revision was more than merely a revision of the salary schedule contained in the final budget. When Butte-Silver Bow adopted the proposed salary increase by motion, set the specific amount, and set specific effective dates, and then included the increase in the final budget, such salary became fixed for that period and could not subsequently be revised. Bukvich v. Butte-Silver Bow, 215 M 202, 696 P2d 444, 42 St. Rep. 293 (1985).

District Court's Power to Order Payment of Expenditures Beyond Budget: District Court's fiscal year budget was overrun, and this stopped or threatened to stop the efficient and orderly administration of justice and court business, creating an emergency. As a court of competent jurisdiction, the District Court may issue orders for the payment of out-of-budget expenditures that are reasonable and necessary. Compliance with the orders by the members of the Board of County Commissioners or by any other officer in the exercise of his official duties is within the exception to personal liability of the officers provided in 7-6-2323 (now repealed). The officers may pass on the propriety of the claims but may not deny them on the basis that they are outside the budget if the court has duly ordered them paid. State ex rel. District Court v. Whitaker, 210 M 363, 681 P2d 1097, 41 St. Rep. 1104 (1984).

Justices' Courts: Section 3-10-103, a specific statute mandating Commissioners to pay actual and necessary expenses of Justices' Courts, controlled where Justice of Peace incurred unforeseen workload and hired part-time, temporary clerk; thus County Commissioners had duty to pay this expense, even though it was not budgeted. State ex rel. Browman v. Wood, 168 M 341, 543 P2d 184 (1975).

Limitation on Expenditures — Exception: When the financial needs of Justices of the Peace were provided for by statute, those provisions prevailed over the provisions of 7-6-2324 (now repealed) as to limitations on expenditures. State ex rel. Browman v. Wood, 168 M 341, 543 P2d 184, 32 St. Rep. 1136 (1975).

Debt Limit: Board of County Commissioners which overtaxed taxpayers in 1 year in order to provide a fund out of which expenses for capital improvements and remodeling of airport that exceeded $21,000 clearly violated Art. XIII, sec. 5, 1889 Mont. Const. (replaced by Art. VIII, sec. 10, 1972 Mont. Const.), by incurring a liability for over $10,000 without the approval of a majority of the electors of the county. The county was not able to argue that "no indebtedness or liability" had been created because the money was already on hand. Extraordinarily high levy created a "reserve fund" to be used for capital improvements, which is not allowable due to restriction in 67-10-402 of reserve funds to improvement of surfaces of runways or ramps. Burlington N., Inc. v. Flathead County, 162 M 371, 512 P2d 710 (1973).

"Cash Balance": "Cash balance", referred to in 7-6-2319 (now repealed), and "all surplus moneys", referred to in section 16-2048, R.C.M. 1947 (since repealed), relate to the same subject and have the same object, which is the disposition of unexpended funds on hand in the counties at the end of each fiscal year. Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Paul & Pac. R.R. v. Bennett, 145 M 191, 399 P2d 986 (1965).

Transfer of Cash Balance — Determination of Tax Rate: Increased tax on railroads for use of county road fund was held to be invalid, where Board of County Commissioners had transferred money from the road fund into the general fund before determining tax rate for road fund in that fiscal year. (See 1999 amendment.) Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Paul & Pac. R.R. v. Bennett, 145 M 191, 399 P2d 986 (1965).

Lease-Purchase Payments: Under resolution providing that city would convey title to properties to party who would cause to be built on one property a city-approved building which the city would rent for an annual rental for a period of 3 years with option in the city to purchase property together with the building thereon, lease payments were forms of indebtedness within Art. XIII, sec. 6, 1889 Mont. Const. (replaced by Art. VIII, sec. 10, 1972 Mont. Const.), limiting indebtedness that may be incurred by city. State ex rel. Simmons v. Missoula, 144 M 210, 395 P2d 249 (1964).

"Mandatory Expenditures Required by Law": The general words "mandatory expenditures required by law", as used in 7-6-2341 (now repealed), are not limited by the doctrine of ejusdem generis to the specific types of calamities enumerated earlier in the subsection since the general words are not associated in any way with the specific words, but rather they embrace an entirely different subject matter from those characterized by the specific words. Burke v. Sullivan, 127 M 374, 265 P2d 203 (1954).

Excess Funds — Reversion to General Fund: Where County Commissioners fix salary of officer at less than that provided in budget, it is not necessary that there be a resolution for a transfer of a part of the funds, since excess funds will revert to the general fund at the end of the fiscal year. State ex rel. Thompson v. Gallatin County, 120 M 263, 184 P2d 998 (1947).

Salary Schedule — Effect: When a salary schedule is adopted in the county budget, the Board of County Commissioners is not bound to pay each county employee the salary so fixed without diminution. State ex rel. Thompson v. Gallatin County, 120 M 263, 184 P2d 998 (1947).

Constitutionality: Section 7-6-2318 (now repealed), prohibiting consideration of anticipated loss of revenue for nonpayment of taxes, does not offend against Art. III, sec. 11, 1889 Mont. Const. (Art. II, sec. 31, 1972 Mont. Const.), as impairing obligations of contracts, since Title 7, ch. 6, part 2300 (now repealed), contemplates issuances of interest-bearing registered warrants up to budget appropriation, if there is no money in a particular fund that must be taken into consideration in fixing the budget for the succeeding year. Great N. Ry. v. Phillips County, 112 M 542, 118 P2d 754 (1941).

Emergency Budget for General Relief — Not Liability for "Single Purpose": County Commissioners establishing an emergency budget under 7-6-2342 (now repealed) for general relief purposes in the amount of $15,000, without the approval of the electors, did not create an indebtedness or liability for a "single purpose" in excess of $10,000 without such approval within the inhibition of Art. XIII, sec. 5, 1889 Mont. Const. (replaced by Art. VIII, sec. 10, 1972 Mont. Const.). The entire debt for all relief purposes cannot be regarded a single purpose because the emergency arose by virtue of many separate and distinct purposes founded on a duty expressly imposed in the normal functioning of a county. State ex rel. Nelson v. Bd. of County Comm'rs, 111 M 395, 109 P2d 1106 (1941).

Where Later Statute Controlling: It is not necessary that the City Council should pass upon a resolution authorizing expenditures to meet an emergency by unanimous vote as provided by 7-6-4252 (now repealed) in the matter of authorizing the creation of a city housing authority under Title 7, ch. 15, part 44, but 7-15-4417, a part of the housing authorities law, later in point of time and not requiring a unanimous vote, is controlling. State ex rel. Helena Housing Authority v. City Council, 108 M 347, 90 P2d 514 (1939).

Remedies for Illegal Levy — Estoppel: Payment of a tax deemed illegal, under protest, and then bringing an action to recover it back is not the exclusive remedy of the taxpayer where the levy is illegal. In the instant case, where there was no need to tax to raise funds for bond and sinking fund, plaintiff taxpayer was not estopped from maintaining action to enjoin collection by his failure to appear before the board at the time the preliminary budget (now proposed budget) was noticed for hearing under 7-6-2316 (now repealed). Rogge v. Petroleum County, 107 M 36, 80 P2d 380 (1938).

Taxing in Excess of Need — Illegal: It is against the policy of the law to raise taxes faster than the money is likely to be needed. In the absence of statutory authority a tax cannot be levied for the sole purpose of accumulating funds in the public treasury, such as for remote or future contingencies which may never arise, nor can it be levied in excess of the amount required for the purpose for which it is levied, with the intention of using the excess for another purpose. Rogge v. Petroleum County, 107 M 36, 80 P2d 380 (1938).

Misapplication of Fund by Treasurer: The office of City Treasurer is a continuing one regardless of the person occupying the office at any particular time. The Treasurer is the servant of the city and not the agent of warrant holders; thus if he misapplies trust funds such as for special improvement purposes, the municipality is liable to the warrant holders. Blackford v. Libby, 103 M 272, 62 P2d 216 (1936).

Negotiability of Warrant: A city warrant is not a negotiable instrument in the sense of the law merchant, and while it may be transferred by delivery or assignment, the transferee takes it subject to all legal and equitable defenses which exist to it in the hands of the payee. Lillis v. Big Timber, 103 M 206, 62 P2d 219 (1936).

Conflict With Police Minimum Wages: If Title 7, ch. 6, part 42 (now repealed), contained any provisions in direct conflict with 7-32-4116 prescribing a minimum wage for policemen in cities of the first class, then 7-32-4116 controls as to such conflicts. State ex rel. Gebhardt v. City Council, 102 M 27, 55 P2d 671 (1936).

Judgment Debts Excluded From Budget Law: By Writ of Mandate, city was directed to pay policemen's salaries prescribed by 7-32-4116. City's objection that obedience to the Writ would compel it to violate the budget act held no defense, for under 7-6-4234 (now repealed), a court judgment giving rise to a municipal obligation is specifically excepted from the provisions of the budget law. State ex rel. Gebhardt v. City Council, 102 M 27, 55 P2d 671 (1936).

Emergency Warrants Proper for Unbudgeted Drain Assessments: Drain district assessments against a county that had been approved by the court and had the force of judgments were unpaid for lack of funds, and no budget appropriation had been made therefor. The Clerk and Chairman of the Board of County Commissioners should have issued emergency warrants for the assessments. A Writ of Mandate to the Board itself, directing it to pay the assessments, was improperly issued. State ex rel. Valley Center Drain District v. Bd. of County Comm'rs, 100 M 581, 51 P2d 635 (1935), explained in Burke v. Sullivan, 127 M 374, 265 P2d 203 (1954).

Statute of Limitation — Not on Right to Enforce: Section 7-6-4122 (now repealed) places a limitation upon the discretionary period and is not a Statute of Limitation with respect to the right to enforce the judgment. The bar of the Statute of Limitations is imposed because of the failure of the possessor of a right to enforce it. "Such a statute may be used as a shield, but not as a sword." State ex rel. N. Am. Life Ins. Co. v. District Court, 100 M 476, 49 P2d 1119 (1935).

Methods of Payment: Section 7-6-4122 (now repealed), makes it the duty of a City or Town Council to levy sufficient tax to pay a judgment against the municipality within 3 years where there is not sufficient money in the general fund to pay it and authorizes the council to fund the debt if the judgment exceeds $10,000. The Board of Councilmen is vested with discretionary power to proceed in any of the several methods of procedure prescribed and thus may not be compelled by the judgment creditor, through Writ of Mandate, to make a specific levy for any one year to satisfy the judgment. State ex rel. N. Am. Life Ins. Co. v. District Court, 97 M 523, 37 P2d 329 (1934).

Reason for Section: By enacting 7-6-4121 (now repealed), authorizing cities to operate on a cash basis where they have reached the limit of indebtedness (Art. XIII, sec. 6, 1889 Mont. Const., replaced by Art. VIII, sec. 10, 1972 Mont. Const.), the Legislature did not attempt what it has no power to do: permit them to create indebtedness in excess of such limit, but provided a device by which, without creating an additional indebtedness, they may function on a cash basis. Commonwealth Pub. Serv. Co. v. Deer Lodge, 96 M 15, 28 P2d 472 (1934); Palmer v. Helena, 40 M 498, 107 P 512 (1910).

Reduction in Force — Failure to Use Section: A city which, having reached the constitutional limit of indebtedness, finds itself in financial straits, will not be heard to say, in defense of its violation of a civil service statute in removing a firefighter contrary to its provisions, that it did so to reduce expenses, where it has failed to take advantage of 7-6-4121 (now repealed) authorizing cities in such condition to pay their running expenses from current revenues upon a cash basis. State ex rel. Driffill v. Anaconda, 41 M 577, 111 P 345 (1910).

What Are Current Expenses:

Under 7-6-4121 (now repealed), a city which is indebted in excess of the limit prescribed by Art. XIII, sec. 6, 1889 Mont. Const. (replaced by Art. VIII, sec. 10, 1972 Mont. Const.), is permitted to conduct its affairs upon a cash basis and pay "reasonable and necessary current expenses from its current revenues", but the authority of such a city extends no further than to make expenditures both reasonable and necessary for the corporate existence of the city; in other words, the right to expend public money is limited to those items of expense which may properly be designated as "living expenses". Palmer v. Helena, 40 M 498, 107 P 512 (1910).

The determination of what is a current expense is for the courts; but the determination of the City Council as to whether a particular current expense is reasonable and necessary is not subject to review by the courts in the absence of fraud or abuse of discretion. Helena Water Works Co. v. Helena, 31 M 243, 78 P 220 (1904). See also State ex rel. Rowling v. Butte, 43 M 331, 117 P 604 (1911).

The term "current" was doubtless employed by the Legislature to distinguish the common, recurring, running expenses of a city from such expenses as partake of the nature of an investment or such as are to be incurred in a substantial or permanent improvement. Helena Water Works Co. v. Helena, 31 M 243, 78 P 220 (1904).

Reports of Money Received and Disbursed: In an action by a city against the sureties on the official bond of the Treasurer, the reports of the Treasurer to the City Council of money received and disbursed during the month, made under 7-6-4105 (now repealed), may be given in evidence against such sureties and are prima facie true, and when not contradicted by the sureties, are binding on them. Philipsburg v. Degenhart, 30 M 299, 76 P 694 (1904).

City Exceeding Debt Limit — Appropriation of Funds: Where a city had exceeded its debt limit, it could not incur an indebtedness not payable from a specially authorized tax but payable from funds previously appropriated, under an agreement that the claimants should accept warrants in payment of their claims, and if the warrant should not be paid, the city should not be liable thereon. The payment of such claims on the theory that the appropriation by ordinance was an assignment of the funds so appropriated for the payment of the claims was unauthorized. Helena Water Works Co. v. Helena, 27 M 205, 70 P 513 (1902).

No Liability for Void Contract: Although the City Council appropriated a sum to pay for water furnished under a contract, such action does not make the city liable therefor, since the contract out of which the liability arose was void and no lawful authority to pay it exists. State ex rel. Helena Water Works Co. v. Helena, 24 M 521, 63 P 99 (1900).

Part Attorney General's Opinions

DECISIONS UNDER FORMER LAW

Power of County Commissioners to Regulate Library Funded by County General Fund — Limitations as if Funded by Five-Mill Levy: The fact that Big Horn County funds its library through the county general fund does not allow the County Commissioners to usurp the library trustees' statutory authority for setting the library's budget and compensation for the library staff. If the County Commissioners fund the library's budget through the county general fund, the power to decide the library staff compensation still rests with the library trustees. The Commissioners may limit the overall funding of the library budget to 5 mills, as if the library were being funded pursuant to the 5-mill tax levy authorized by 22-1-304. To hold otherwise would allow the library trustees to adopt a budget that could assume the entire county general fund levy. 48 A.G. Op. 3 (1999).

Setting of Compensation for Mosquito Control Board Employees — Approval Required: A mosquito control board may not set the level of compensation of board employees without the approval of the Board of County Commissioners. 47 A.G. Op. 11 (1998). See also 38 A.G. Op. 35 (1979).

Setting of Compensation for Weed Control Board Employees — Approval Required: A weed control board may not set the level of compensation of board employees without the approval of the Board of County Commissioners. 47 A.G. Op. 11 (1998). See also 38 A.G. Op. 35 (1979).

Excess Cash Balance to Be Added to Annual Budget Calculations — Establishment of Trust Fund With Excess Prohibited: A city with general government powers that has a cash balance from previously unbudgeted nontax revenue in excess of outstanding unpaid warrants at the close of the preceding fiscal year in any fund must add the cash balance into the all-purpose general fund to be used in calculating the city's annual operating budget and to set future tax levies. The cash may not be placed in a trust fund, such as a 10-year irrevocable trust fund operated by a third-party trustee. 46 A.G. Op. 15 (1996).

"Cash Balance" Defined: The term "cash balance", as used in 7-6-2319(1) (now repealed), means the cash in a fund on June 30 less any current liabilities. 44 A.G. Op. 18 (1991).

Prior Fiscal Year Reserve Not to Be Included in Current Year's Reserve: Because a prior fiscal year's reserve is not considered part of the amount "appropriated and authorized to be spent during the current fiscal year", as that phrase is used in 7-6-2319(2) (now repealed), it may not be used to calculate the current fiscal year's reserve. (See 1999 amendment.) 44 A.G. Op. 18 (1991).

Equipment Reserve Account as Capital Improvement Fund: An equipment reserve fund within the central garage internal service fund, established by a city with self-governing powers to provide for future equipment replacement, is a capital improvement fund within the meaning of 7-6-4134 (now repealed). 44 A.G. Op. 5 (1991).

Percentage Limitation Mandatory — Retroactive Transfer of Greater Percentage Impermissible: By its clear terms, 7-6-4134 (now repealed) regulates budget procedures of a city with self-governing powers. The 5% (see 1997 amendment) limitation in 7-6-4134 (now repealed) is a mandatory provision with which a city must comply in establishing its budget. Therefore, the retroactive transfer of more than 5% of all-purpose levy revenue is prohibited. 44 A.G. Op. 5 (1991).

Separate Accounting Required for Equipment Reserve Account in Enterprise Fund: Enterprise funds, such as funds generated from the provision of income-producing municipal services like water and sewer systems, may not be consolidated with revenue from other sources. A city may not reclassify equipment reserves maintained in the enterprise funds. Therefore, equipment reserve accounts in enterprise funds must be maintained separately from other equipment reserve accounts in a capital improvement fund. 44 A.G. Op. 5 (1991).

Transfer of Funds to Equipment Reserve Account From Sources Other Than All-Purpose Levy Fund Not Prohibited: Section 7-6-4134 (now repealed) does not prohibit the transfer of funds to an equipment reserve account from sources other than the all-purpose levy fund. 44 A.G. Op. 5 (1991).

Authorization by County Commission of Increase in Salary of County Officer: Even if the county budget allows for an increase in the salary of a county officer, only the Board of County Commissioners may authorize an increase through the budgetary process. Therefore, a Clerk of Court is not authorized to promote a deputy clerk to a chief deputy position at a higher pay scale without authorization in the county budget and approval of the Board. 43 A.G. Op. 77 (1990).

Use of Separately Appropriated Funds to Satisfy Negotiated Salary Increases: Section 7-6-4236 (now repealed) does not prohibit a municipality from using funds separately appropriated for the purpose of satisfying salary increases that may arise from collective bargaining negotiations ongoing at the time of a final budget's adoption to pay such increases. Use of such funds constitutes neither a "transfer" within the statutory meaning nor an increase in affected employees' salaries over amounts appropriated for those salaries. 42 A.G. Op. 65 (1988).

Authority of County Officer to Retain Defense Counsel: An elected county officer is not required to obtain the consent of the County Attorney or the County Commissioners in order to retain counsel in defense of a suit brought by the County Attorney pursuant to 7-6-2323 (now repealed). The county must reimburse the officer for legal fees incurred in the defense of the action unless an exclusion, as provided in 2-9-305, applies. 41 A.G. Op. 34 (1985).

Distribution of Corporate License Fees: Corporate license fees received between July 1, 1983, and June 30, 1984, under 15-31-702 (now repealed), are properly distributed pursuant to tax levies adopted by the Board of County Commissioners for fiscal year 1984, including any levy promulgated pursuant to 53-2-813 (now repealed). 41 A.G. Op. 26 (1985).

Change in County Classification — Time for Setting County Officials' Salaries: When a county's classification changes pursuant to 7-1-2111, the salaries of the county officials listed in 7-4-2503(1) must also change. The salaries must change as of July 1 of the following year, with the onset of a new fiscal year for the county. 40 A.G. Op. 81 (1984).

Grants Available Only After Completion of Fiscal Year: Under 7-6-2352 (now repealed), county governments may be eligible to receive state grants to District Courts only after the completion of the fiscal year in which the need for assistance arose. 40 A.G. Op. 39 (1984).

Restrictions on Segregation of Cash and Transfer of Poor Fund: Title 53, ch. 2, part 3, does not authorize a county to set aside money in the poor fund that will not be available for supporting public assistance activities in the county, as provided in 53-2-322 (now repealed). All money in the poor fund must be used for public assistance activities. However, 7-6-2326 (now repealed) permits the transfer of a poor fund cash balance to another fund at the end of a fiscal year. This may be done only when there is an ending balance in excess of the amount budgeted for the poor fund for the next fiscal year, and only the excess may be transferred. 40 A.G. Op. 29 (1983).

Source of Depletion Allowance Reserve Fund — Not Subject to Budgeting: Section 7-34-2402 permits poor fund money to be used to fund a depletion allowance reserve fund only to the extent that the money represents actual money received in excess of expenses incurred from or for the care of indigent patients in the county facility. Because depletion allowance reserve fund money is not derived from tax revenues and the sources and uses of the fund are limited statutorily, the transfer of money to a depletion allowance reserve fund is not subject to the requirements of 7-6-2326 (now repealed). 40 A.G. Op. 29 (1983).

Clerk and Recorder's Report — Basis for Determining Levy: The Department of Social and Rehabilitation Services (now Department of Public Health and Human Services) should rely upon the tax levies presented in the County Clerk and Recorder's report that is provided pursuant to 7-6-2322 (now repealed) for determining the amount levied by the county for purposes of its county poor fund during fiscal year 1982. (See 1999 amendment.) 40 A.G. Op. 18 (1983).

Maximum Mill Levy Not Required: Because of the requirements for establishing county mill levies under Title 7, ch. 6, part 23 (now repealed), and because of the unforeseeable nature of District Court expenses, the Department of Administration (now Supreme Court Administrator) may not require a county to impose the maximum levy established in 7-6-2511, for District Court expenses, in order to be considered eligible for a state grant to District Courts under 7-6-2352 (now repealed). 39 A.G. Op. 71 (1982).

Money Freed by Termination of Tax Protest Litigation — Use and Effect: Once tax money tied up in tax protest litigation is received by a municipality upon completion of litigation, it must be deposited to the credit of the fund or funds to which it would have been credited had it been timely received without protest, and it is then available for use. If money remains in a fund at the end of a fiscal year in which it was received, it is a part of the cash balance and is to be included in the calculations to determine the tax levy for the next year. 39 A.G. Op. 55 (1982).

District Court Employees as County Employees: District Court employees are paid by the county in which the court is located, receive the same county benefits as all other county employees, and are therefore county employees. 39 A.G. Op. 38 (1981).

Restrictions in Appropriation Bill Subservient to Statutory Power to Provide Assistance to Counties: Section 7-6-2352 (now repealed) reflects legislative intent to make financial assistance grants for the purpose of offsetting virtually all excess costs associated with the operation of a District Court except those for building, capital, and library maintenance, replacement, and acquisition. Restrictive language in the general appropriation bill of the 1981 legislative session limited the appropriation to emergency funding and only when extraordinary expenses are incurred, expressly conflicting with 7-6-2352 (now repealed). The Attorney General noted that the courts have considered such restrictions with disfavor, that the appropriation bill title did not refer to restrictions on the appropriation, and that the language of Art. V, sec. 11, Mont. Const., limits a general appropriation bill to appropriations. Rejecting the repeal by implication of 7-6-2352 (now repealed) by the restrictions in the appropriation bill, it was concluded that the Department of Administration (now Supreme Court Administrator) should follow the provisions of 7-6-2352 (now repealed) in providing financial assistance to counties for District Court expenses. 39 A.G. Op. 25 (1981).

Emergency Grant Made Only if Funds Appropriated for That Purpose: No funds were appropriated by the 1979 Legislature to fund emergency grants authorized by 7-6-2352 (now repealed). The statute provided that the Department of Administration (now Supreme Court Administrator) may make grants only from funds specifically appropriated for that purpose. If no such funds are provided, the Department is under no obligation to make grants and would by negative implication be precluded from doing so. 38 A.G. Op. 31 (1979).

Emergency Expenditures: A county may make emergency expenditures not reflected in its budget to cover the employer's share of PERS when the responsibility to pay that share arose after adoption of the budget for that fiscal year. 38 A.G. Op. 19 (1979).

Disaster Relief Eligibility: A county road reserve established pursuant to 7-6-2318 (now repealed) to pay costs of county road operations during the first 4 months of the next fiscal year is not a financial resource available to meet emergencies and disasters. 37 A.G. Op. 118 (1978).

Police Dispatch Services: A county may contract with a city or town to provide the municipal police department with police dispatch services operated through the County Sheriff's office. 37 A.G. Op. 10 (1977).

All-Purpose Levy Encompassing Multiple Levies: Required multiple levies must be included within the all-purpose levy. 36 A.G. Op. 94 (1976).

Disposition of Unexpended County Funds: Unexpended money remaining in a county's classification and appraisal fund as of July 1 may be transferred to other county funds, and the Department of Revenue may not utilize such unexpended money for classification and appraisal of taxable lands and improvements. 35 A.G. Op. 37 (1973).

Power of General Powers Town to Arbitrate Contract Held Included in Power to Contract: Holm-Sutherland contracted with the town of Shelby to construct sewer and water improvements within the town. The contract included a provision requiring that all disputes involving the interpretation of the contract documents or breach of the contract were to be settled by arbitration. When a dispute arose, Holm-Sutherland sought arbitration. Litigation ensued, and the town argued that as a noncharter government, it had only those powers granted by the Legislature and that a municipality's council had a duty pursuant to 7-6-4302 and this section to determine the validity of claims and that duty could not be delegated to an arbitrator. The Supreme Court agreed with the District Court that a general powers municipality has broad powers to enter into contracts pursuant to 7-1-4124(4) and (23), that Title 27, ch. 5, evidences a general state policy favoring arbitration, and that the powers granted a municipality establish its ability to be bound to the terms of a contract that contains a binding arbitration clause. Holm-Sutherland Co., Inc. v. Shelby, 1999 MT 150, 295 M 65, 982 P2d 1053, 56 St. Rep. 595 (1999).

Purpose of Section: This section was evidently intended to cover claims against the city arising in the ordinary course of carrying on the city government, in providing for the city's welfare in sundry directions, and in transacting the business and economic affairs of the city, but not on such contracts as are specifically provided for, which it must be presumed are designed to contain their own specific provisions, and among other material and essential conditions, stipulations respecting the time and manner of the payment of the consideration on the part of the city. Forsyth v. Crellin, 210 F 835 (9th Cir. 1914).

Claim Not Required for Salary: The provision of this section, requiring claims against a city to be verified and filed with the municipality, has no application to a claim for salary fixed by ordinance; hence a police officer was under no obligation to so present his claim to entitle him to recover his salary for the time he was unlawfully deprived of his office. Wynne v. Butte, 45 M 417, 123 P 531 (1912).

Tort Claims — No Claim Required: The provisions of this section do not apply to a claim for damages arising from personal injuries. Dawes v. Great Falls, 31 M 9, 77 P 309 (1904).

Licensing Fee for Adult Movie Video Booths as Regulatory Measure — Free Speech Not Violated: The Supreme Court affirmed a city ordinance imposing a $300 annual fee for adult movie video booths, finding the city met its burden of proving the fee was both reasonable and designed as a regulatory measure to provide funds for administrative costs, policing of the booths, and health enforcement costs and expenses. The court held that estimates of future expenses may be included for purposes of setting a fee and that, being regulatory in nature, the fee did not violate the right to free speech guaranteed by the first amendment to the U.S. Constitution and Art. Assessments as Tax: Assessments for special city improvements, which under 7-12-4181 the County Treasurer is required to collect, fall within the meaning of the words "tax" and "taxes" as employed in this section, making it the duty of the County Treasurer to collect city taxes where a city has not imposed that duty upon its own Treasurer. State ex rel. Wolf Point v. McFarlan, 78 M 156, 252 P 805 (1927).

Remittance to City Without Delay: Where a city has failed to provide by ordinance for the collection of its taxes by its own Treasurer, the Treasurer of the county in which such city is situated must, under this section, collect and pay them to the City Treasurer without delay. State ex rel. Wolf Point v. McFarlan, 78 M 156, 252 P 805 (1927), explained in School District v. Pondera County, 89 M 342, 297 P 498 (1931).

Remittance to Municipal Treasurer: Although, under this section, the County Treasurer must collect taxes for a city or town which has not by ordinance placed the duty of collection upon its own Treasurer, no provision is made as to when the money so collected must be turned over to the City or Town Treasurer. The County Treasurer must, within a reasonable time after collection, compute the amount due the city or town and pay it over to the proper custodian. The lapse of 1 month after collection of the bulk of the city or town taxes is not a reasonable time within which to perform that duty. State ex rel. Cut Bank v. McNamer, 62 M 490, 205 P 951 (1922).

Attorney General's Opinions

Delinquency Interest, Penalties, and Costs to Follow Tax: The Montana Supreme Court held in School District v. Pondera County, 89 M 342, 297 P 498 (1931), that unless a statute provides otherwise, interest, penalties, and costs collected on delinquent taxes follow the tax; therefore, school districts, cities, and other government entities authorized to levy taxes are entitled to a pro rata share of the penalties collected on delinquent property taxes by the County Treasurer. 41 A.G. Op. 25 (1985).

Collection of Special Assessment for Demolition of Dangerous Building: Special assessments imposed by a city or town for the demolition by it of dangerous buildings constitute city or town taxes under this section, and the County Treasurer must collect a properly certified special assessment for demolition of a dangerous building unless the city or town has provided for the City Treasurer to collect taxes under this section. 39 A.G. Op. 39 (1981).

Liability for Tortious Collection: A County Treasurer acts as an agent of the city when collecting city taxes, and although he must follow proper collection procedures and must exercise due care to collect only properly certified assessments, if there is any problem with the validity of an assessment it is the city, not the County Treasurer, that may be liable. 39 A.G. Op. 39 (1981).

Purpose: The purposes of this section are clearly to avoid needless duplication of the effort and cost of billing property owners and collecting the money and to provide taxpayers the convenience of a single bill, purposes best served by a broad interpretation of the term "taxes" as used in this section. 39 A.G. Op. 39 (1981).

Case Notes

Assessments for Special Improvements: A County Treasurer could not be compelled, under this section, to spread upon the delinquent tax roll of the county certain assessments for special city improvements which became delinquent on a city lot after the county had bought it in at a tax sale, since special assessments are not taxes within the meaning of 15-18-403 (since repealed) and the liens of such assessments were extinguished upon issuance of the tax deed. State ex rel. Great Falls v. Jeffries, 83 M 111, 270 P 638 (1928), explained in Cascade County v. Weaver, 108 M 1, 90 P2d 164 (1939).

Attorney General’s Opinions

Calculation and Expenditure of “Carryforward” Mills Under 2001 Revision to Local Government Property Tax Levy and Budget Provisions: The 2001 revisions to local government property tax levy and budget laws instituted a general approach of deleting numeric limits on the number of mills that a local government could levy for any specific purpose and placed a cap on the number of mills that a local government is allowed to levy through property taxation. The combined effect was to free a local government to dedicate as much of its annual mill levy as it chooses for any lawful governmental purpose, as long as the total millage covered by the cap does not exceed the cap measured by the prior year’s property tax assessments. Likewise, the “carryforward” provision in 15-10-420 does not depend on how many mills, if any, that a city chooses to devote to a particular purpose in any year. Instead, the provision allows a city, if it finds itself able to fund its operations without levying the full number of mills allowed, to hold in reserve for future years the authority to levy the difference between the number of mills allowed and the number actually levied. That authority is not calculated on the basis of the amount budgeted or the number of mills needed to fund a particular government function, but rather is calculated with reference to the whole amount raised by property taxes, subject to the statutory exceptions, without reference to how the money might have been spent in the prior year. However, the “carryforward” authority is prospective only and may not be applied to calculations for the 2001 budget year because the authority did not exist prior to July 1, 2001. Thus, “carryforward” mills may be levied in any future year after budget year 2001 and expended by a local government for any lawful purposes that the local government chooses. 49 A.G. Op. 5 (2001).

Unauthorized Levies Not to Be Used as Basis for Temporary Increase: The special levies authorized by 7-32-4117, 7-33-4130, and 19-10-301 (renumbered 19-19-301) must be included in the 65-mill levy authorized by 7-6-4451 and 7-6-4452 (now repealed). Any such special levies improperly levied in addition to the 65-mill all-purpose levy may not be used in computing the basis for a 5% increase under 15-7-122 (now repealed). 38 A.G. Op. 44 (1979).

All-Purpose Levy Encompassing Multiple Levies: Required multiple levies must be included within the 65-mill all-purpose levy authorized by 7-6-4451 and 7-6-4452 (now repealed). 36 A.G. Op. 94 (1976).

The resulting loss of taxable valuation has a direct effect on the amount of indebtedness a political subdivision can incur. Attorney General's Opinions

When Investment of Bond Proceeds in Government Securities Authorized: Money in a sinking fund is not available for investment if any of the bonds for which the sinking fund was established are not yet due but are then redeemable under optional provisions. While investment in government securities is authorized under this section, it is authorized only to the extent that the sinking fund is not needed for payment of the bonds or interest. Therefore, excess bond proceeds may not be retained in a separate fund and invested without first using the proceeds to calculate the amount of annual tax levy for a sinking fund. Any remainder of the proceeds may then be invested in accordance with this section. 44 A.G. Op. 18 (1991).

1993 Special Session Amendment: Chapter 9 near middle of (1), after "amount of", substituted "taxes levied on new production, production from horizontally completed wells, and incremental production" for "interim production and new production taxes levied", inserted reference to subsection (2)(c), and after "new production" inserted "and production from horizontally completed wells"; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective December 17, 1993.

Report Required: Section 21, Ch. 9, Sp. L. November 1993, provided: "The board of oil and gas conservation shall report at least once a year to the revenue oversight committee [now revenue and transportation interim committee] regarding the implementation of [this act]. The reports must include but are not limited to information regarding:

(1) the methods used to determine production decline rates;

1989 Special Session Amendment: In (1), after "15-23-612" (now repealed), inserted "multiplied by 60%, plus the value of any other production occurring after December 31, 1988, multiplied by 60%"; and made minor change in phraseology. Amendment effective August 11, 1989, and applies retroactively to net proceeds taxes, severance taxes, and local government taxes on oil and gas, other than interim production and new production, produced after December 31, 1988.

1987 Amendment: In (1), before "new production taxes", inserted "interim production and" and after "multiplied by 60%" inserted "plus the amount of value represented by new production exempted from tax as provided in 15-23-612".

Effective Date — Applicability — 1987 Enactment: Section 28, Ch. 655, L. 1987, provided: "This act is effective on passage and approval [approved April 13, 1987] and applies retroactively, within the meaning of 1-2-109, to taxable quarters beginning on or after April 1, 1987. The tax rate and filing method applicable to a well that qualifies as interim production under section 10 but which did not qualify as new production under 15-23-601 [now repealed] prior to the applicability date of this act does not change for tax periods prior to the applicability date."

1985 Amendments: Chapter 584 in (2) increased the limitation on indebtedness from $150,000 to $500,000; and inserted (3) relating to acquisition of conservation easements.

1981 Amendments: Chapter 134 increased indebtedness amount in (2) from $40,000 to $150,000.

Chapter 614 increased the indebtedness limitation from 18% to 23% of the taxable value in (1).

Effect of 1981 Amendment: The primary purpose of Ch. 614, L. 1981, was to replace the system of taxation of automobiles and light trucks with a fee system. With the adoption of the fee system, automobiles and light trucks are no longer taxable property. The resulting loss of taxable valuation has a direct effect on the amount of indebtedness a political subdivision can incur. Thus it was necessary in Ch. 614 to increase the percentage of taxable valuation used as a limitation on indebtedness to offset the loss of taxable valuation attributable to automobiles and light trucks.

Case Notes

Federal Revenue Sharing Funds: The expenditure of federal revenue sharing funds is not an indebtedness or liability of the county within the meaning of the statutory restriction. Yovetich v. McClintock, 165 M 80, 526 P2d 999 (1974).

Airport Commission:

Board of County Commissioners which overtaxed taxpayers in one year in order to provide a fund out of which expenses for capital improvements and remodeling of airport were to be paid, which expenses exceeded $21,000, clearly violated Art. XIII, sec. 5, 1889 Mont. Const., by incurring a liability for over $10,000 without the approval of a majority of the electors of the county; county was not able to argue that "no indebtedness or liability" had been created because the money was already on hand. Extraordinarily high levy created a "reserve fund" to be used for capital improvements, which is not allowable due to restriction in 67-10-402 of reserve funds to improvement of surfaces of runways or ramps. Burlington N., Inc. v. Flathead County, 162 M 371, 512 P2d 710 (1973), distinguished in Yovetich v. McClintock, 165 M 80, 526 P2d 999 (1974).

City-county airport commission which borrowed $200,000 from the Aeronautics Commission (now Board of Aeronautics) without consent of electorate and which was obligated to repay a total sum of $238,500 over a 10-year period had incurred a debt upon which an amount over $10,000 was due each year and had violated Art. XII, 1889 Mont. Const. Resolution by airport commission which approved the loan and which obligated the county to repay the Aeronautics Commission (now Board of Aeronautics) only $10,000 did not bring the debt within the Constitution since the commission was itself obligated and was an agent of the county. Burlington N., Inc. v. Richland County, 162 M 364, 152 P2d 707 (1973), distinguished in Yovetich v. McClintock, 165 M 80, 526 P2d 999 (1974).

Redemption Bonds: The issuance by a county of coupon bonds for the purpose of redeeming outstanding county warrants is merely a change in the form of a subsisting liability and not the creation of a new indebtedness or liability and is, therefore, not within the inhibition of the laws of the state which provide in effect that counties shall not incur an indebtedness or liability for any single purpose in excess of a stated amount without the approval of a majority of the electors of the county. Hotchkiss v. Marion, 12 M 218, 29 P 821 (1892). See Edwards v. Lewis & Clark County, 53 M 359, 165 P 297 (1917).

Attorney General's Opinions

Lease-Purchase Agreement With Nonappropriation Clause Allowing Termination Without Penalty Not Considered Indebtedness or Liability — Voter Approval Not Required: A lease-purchase agreement that includes a nonappropriation clause and that allows for termination without penalty to a county does not constitute indebtedness or liability for purposes of this section and thus does not require voter approval. 52 A.G. Op. 3 (2007), overruling 38 A.G. Op. 56 (1979).

County Authorized to Incur Debt or Borrow Without Election: A county is authorized under this section to incur a liability or indebtedness up to $500,000 or, pursuant to 7-7-2402, to borrow up to $10,000 (see 1997 amendment) without an election. An installment purchase contract is not a "borrowing of money" within the meaning of 7-7-2402. A municipality is not required to hold an election to borrow money by a method other than issuing bonds, but it is limited by 7-7-4201 to a 28% debt ceiling. 42 A.G. Op. 13 (1987).

Authority to Contract for Lease Without Election: A contract providing for a total liability in excess of $40,000, prior to 1981 amendment, must be approved by the voters under this section even though it provides for annual payments of less than $40,000, an option to purchase at the end of the contract term for an additional payment less than $40,000, and an option to cancel at any time. 38 A.G. Op. 56 (1979), overruled in 52 A.G. Op. 3 (2007).

County Authorized to Appropriate Money for Museum — City Authorized to Appropriate Money for Public Purpose — Constitutionality Analyzed: Pursuant to 7-16-2202, a county, but not a city, is authorized to create a program to provide grants to private, nonprofit museums. However, pursuant to 7-1-4124, a city is allowed to grant money to public or private entities as long as the grant is for a public purpose, such as a museum that would enhance the education and enjoyment of the general public, but that would not be merely for the gain of a private entity. The Attorney General declined to opine regarding the constitutionality of 7-1-4124 or 7-16-2202, in light of the prohibition in Art. V, sec. 11(5), Mont. Const., against the appropriation of public funds for any private individual, private association, or private corporation not under control of the state, but did analyze that constitutional provision as it related to the question of county or city expenditures for grants to private museum programs, concluding that the constitutional prohibition applies only to the appropriation of public funds by the Legislature, not by local governmental entities. 48 A.G. Op. 12 (2000), overruling prior opinions to the contrary in 37 A.G. Op. 25 (1977), 37 A.G. Op. 105 (1978), and 39 A.G. Op. 25 (1981).

Federal Revenue Sharing Funds — Allocation by Board of County Commissioners: The Board of County Commissioners for a county that has not adopted a self-government form of local government may not make a grant of federal revenue sharing funds to individual county residents for the purpose of creating a water district under Title 7, ch. 13, parts 22 and 23, because there is no express or necessarily implied authority under which such a grant could be made and because the statutes provide a different mechanism for the creation and funding of a water district. 39 A.G. Op. 6 (1981).

Gift to Private Nonprofit Corporation: Under 20-8-111, the Board of Public Education, in its discretion, may give money that has been donated for the use and benefit of the Montana School for the Deaf and Blind to a private nonprofit corporation created and controlled by the Board and operated for the benefit of that school. However, the Board remains accountable for the money until it is used directly for the general support, maintenance, or improvement of the Montana School for the Deaf and Blind. 38 A.G. Attorney General's Opinions

Act Allowing Private Parties to Contract for Jails Not in Conflict With Local Government Regulatory Statutes: The act allowing counties to contract with private parties for the building, maintenance, and operation of jails, enacted as Chapter 447, L. 1985, does not directly conflict with other Montana statutes regulating the indebtedness, contracts, jail facilities, or interlocal agreements of local governments. However, Chapter 447 is subject to the various applicable limitations contained in those statutes. 42 A.G. Op. 81 (1988).

Effect of 1981 Amendment: The primary purpose of Ch. 614, L. 1981, was to replace the system of taxation of automobiles and light trucks with a fee system. With the adoption of the fee system, automobiles and light trucks are no longer taxable property. The resulting loss of taxable valuation has a direct effect on the amount of indebtedness a political subdivision can incur. Thus it was necessary in Ch. 614 to increase the percentage of taxable valuation used as a limitation on indebtedness to offset the loss of taxable valuation attributable to automobiles and light trucks.

Case Notes

Resolution for Bond Issue — Compliance With Statute: In view of the purpose of Ch. 24, L. Ex. Session 1933-34 (omitted), i.e., to permit counties to secure the benefits of the National Industrial Recovery Act by borrowing money from the federal government for emergency relief, and the fact that it was apparent at the time the act was passed that the conditions and requirements of the government would conflict with the general laws of the state with relation to issuance and sale of bonds, failure of a Board of County Commissioners strictly to comply with the provisions of this section and 7-7-2251 as to the form of resolution to be passed by it providing for the issuance of bonds voted to obtain a federal loan was not fatal to their validity; having followed those provisions as closely as it was possible for it to do and at the same time conform to the requirements of the federal government, the Board's action was sufficient; so far as not in harmony with the federal requirements, this section and 7-7-2251 must be held inapplicable. Shekelton v. Toole County, 97 M 213, 33 P2d 531 (1934).

If amortization bonds are sold and issued, the entire issue may be put into one single bond or divided into several bonds, as the board may determine at the time of sale, both principal and interest to be payable in semiannual installments during a period of years from the date of issue"; in second paragraph, before "amount", inserted "aggregate principal" and at end inserted parenthetical concerning amortization bonds; in third paragraph, near beginning after "bonds", deleted "whether amortization or serial bonds", after "bear" inserted "an original issue", and after "interest" deleted "at a rate not exceeding% per annum"; in fourth paragraph, after "less than", deleted "their par value", after "interest" inserted "on the principal amount of the bonds", after "bonds at" substituted "the purchase price specified for the bonds" for "par", and inserted parenthetical concerning interest rate; in fifth paragraph, after "bids", deleted "other than by or on behalf of the board of investments of the state of Montana" and substituted parenthetical concerning bid security for "a certified check"; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective April 13, 1995.

Applicability: Section 53, Ch. 423, L. 1995, provided: "[This act] applies to bonds issued under the provisions of [this act] after [the effective date of this act]." Effective April 13, 1995.

1993 Amendment: Chapter 559 inserted (2) allowing the form of notice to be modified to accommodate citizen bonds; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective April 28, 1993.

Chapter 631, in first paragraph of "Notice of Sale" form before "amount" substituted "principal" for "total"; in fourth paragraph of notice substituted provision for amount of serial bonds and inclusion of maturity schedule for "If serial bonds are issued and sold, they will be in the amount of dollars ($....) each, except the last bond which will be in the amount of dollars ($....); the sum of dollars ($....) of the said serial bonds will become payable on the day of, 19.., and a like amount on the same day each year thereafter until all of such bonds are paid, except that the last installment will be in the amount of dollars ($....)."; and in fifth paragraph of notice after "...% per annum" inserted "commencing on the ... day of ... (month), 19 .., and" and after "year" inserted "thereafter".

Chapter 631 amended the version of the section that set the interest rate at 6% per annum. The Code Commissioner has made the amendments contained in Ch. 631 to the version of the section made permanent by Ch. 11. Chapter 631 is effective October 1, 1983.

1981 Amendment: Changed "6%" to "....%" in the sixth paragraph.

Case Notes

Bonds for Health Care Facility Not Subject to Voter Approval: When Toole County proposed to borrow $1.7 million to construct a county hospital and nursing home, plaintiff sued, alleging that the county could not borrow money without first submitting the bond proposal to the voters for approval. Affirming the District Court decision, the Supreme Court ruled that the indebtedness for the repayment of bonds for the proposed health care facility is not indebtedness of the county for which an election is required under this section. State ex rel. Lovins v. Toole County, 278 M 253, 924 P2d 693, 53 St. Rep. 887 (1996).

Emergency Budget for General Relief Not for “Single Purpose” Requiring Electors’ Approval: County Commissioners establishment of an emergency budget under 7-6-2341 through 7-6-2345 (7-6-2341, 7-6-2342, 7-6-2343, and 7-6-2345 now repealed) for general relief purposes in the amount of $15,000, without approval of the electors, is not creating an indebtedness or liability for a “single purpose” in excess of $10,000 (see 1991, 1997, and 2007 amendments) without such approval within the inhibition of this section since the entire debt for all relief purposes cannot be regarded as a single purpose but arises by virtue of many separate and distinct purposes, founded on a duty expressly imposed in normal functioning of county. State ex rel. Nelson v. Bd. of County Comm’rs, 111 M 395, 109 P2d 1106 (1941).

Approval of Electors:

The Board of County Commissioners cannot borrow money to refund outstanding indebtedness exceeding $10,000 (see 1991, 1997, and 2007 amendments), by the issuance of bonds or otherwise, without having first obtained the approval of the electors of the county. Edwards v. Lewis & Clark County, 53 M 359, 165 P 297 (1917).

“The approval of a majority of the electors” and “a majority of the votes cast” are the same. The approval of a majority of the electors voting at an election to determine whether a proposed indebtedness shall be incurred was sufficient to legalize a bond issue. Morse v. Granite County, 44 M 78, 119 P 286 (1911).

Attorney General's Opinions

County Authorized to Incur Debt or Borrow Without Election: A county is authorized under 7-7-2101 to incur a liability or indebtedness up to $500,000 or, pursuant to this section, to borrow up to $10,000 (see 1991 and 1997 amendments) without an election. An installment purchase contract is not a “borrowing of money” within the meaning of this section. A municipality is not required to hold an election to borrow money by a method other than issuing bonds, but it is limited by 7-7-4201 to a 28% debt ceiling. 42 A.G. Op. 13 (1987).

Granite County*, 44 M 78, 119 P 286 (1911).

Question Submitted to Electors: Where the Board of County Commissioners has determined the amount necessary for the general purpose of a proposed bond issue, such as the erection of a courthouse, it is not required, before submitting the question to a vote, to ascertain the cost of a suitable site for the building or that of the necessary furnishings. Morse v. Granite County, 44 M 78, 119 P 286 (1911).

Attorney General's Opinions

Long-Term Lease With Contractual Nonappropriation Clause Not Considered Accumulation of Municipal Debt — Vote Not Required: A question arose regarding the applicability of laws regulating municipal government debt based on a proposal by the city of Great Falls to enter a contract for the development and operation of a water park. Under the arrangement, the city would enter a long-term lease to a private party of real property adjacent to the municipal swimming pool and concurrently lease from that party certain personal property to be used for the water park. The personalty lease would include an option for the city to purchase the personal property at the close of the lease terms and a nonappropriation clause under which the personalty lease would terminate without penalty to the city if the city chose not to appropriate funds for the lease payment in any fiscal year, in which case possession of the personal property would revert to the lessor, who would retain possession under a separate realty lease until that lease expired. The Attorney General concluded that such an arrangement did not create a debt and thus would not violate provisions of state law limiting the accumulation of debt by municipal governments. Further, the city's proposal would not pledge the taxing power of the city to make the full term of lease payments and therefore would not qualify as an obligation for which the general credit of the city is pledged that would require a vote of the people under 7-7-4221. 49 A.G. Municipal Construction of Storm Sewers With Gas Tax Revenues — Sinking Fund for General Obligation Bonds Allowed: Where a city was authorized to use its gasoline tax allocation for construction of storm sewers and drains for draining city streets, it could also place the money allocated in a sinking fund used to pay general obligation bonds sold to finance construction of those sewers, as the only statutory restriction on the use of the funds is that the funds must be used exclusively for city streets. Nor do the statutes governing municipal financing prohibit the use of such money in a sinking fund for general obligation bonds. 40 A.G. Op. 19 (1983).

Paying a Consultant Prohibited: Section 7-7-4254(3) prohibits a municipality from paying a consultant for assistance or advice in any of the matters set forth in Title 7, ch. 7, part 42, relating to the issuance and sale of specific general obligation bonds, but it does not prohibit paying a consultant for assistance in matters involving the overall financial operation of the municipality, so long as the consultation is not limited to a simple bond issuance and sale and does not involve participation in specific bond proceedings. The prohibition is not limited to payment from the actual bond proceeds but includes all funds of the municipality. 38 A.G. Op. 34 (1979).

1981 Amendment: Increased 18% to 28% in (1).

Effect of 1981 Amendment: The primary purpose of Ch. 614, L. 1981, was to replace the system of taxation of automobiles and light trucks with a fee system. With the adoption of the fee system, automobiles and light trucks are no longer taxable property. The resulting loss of taxable valuation has a direct effect on the amount of indebtedness a political subdivision can incur. Thus it was necessary in Ch. 614 to increase the percentage of taxable valuation used as a limitation on indebtedness to offset the loss of taxable valuation attributable to automobiles and light trucks.

Municipal Grant of Public Funds to Authority Created by Interlocal Agreement Between Self-Governing Municipalities Lawful — Debt Obligations: A self-governing municipality may grant funds for the public purpose of operating the electric and natural gas utility. Debt incurred through corporate bonds issued by a public benefit nonprofit corporation incorporated by an authority created by interlocal agreement between self-governing municipalities is not subject to laws governing municipal debts or obligations if the municipalities are not legally obligated to appropriate money to pay the debt and the debt is without recourse to the spending power of the municipalities. 51 A.G. (2) Debt limits established under [this act] do not apply to bonds authorized before July 1, 2001, regardless of when the bonds are issued."

1999 Amendments — Composite Section: Chapter 426 in (2)(a) at beginning deleted "for indebtedness to be incurred during fiscal year 1997, an additional 11% of the taxable value of class eight property within the city or town for tax year 1995, for indebtedness to be incurred during fiscal year 1998, an additional 22% of the taxable value of class eight property within the city or town for tax year 1995, and"; inserted (2)(b) relating to taxable value of telecommunications property; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective January 1, 2000.

Chapter 556 in (2) near end substituted "55% of the debt limitation" for "55% over and above the 28%"; in (2)(a) at beginning deleted "for indebtedness to be incurred during fiscal year 1997, an additional 11% of the taxable value of class eight property within the city or town for tax year 1995, for indebtedness to be incurred during fiscal year 1998, an additional 22% of the taxable value of class eight property within the city or town for tax year 1995, and" and near end after "for tax year 1995" deleted "in each case of class eight property"; inserted (2)(b) regarding value attributable to electrical generation property; and made minor changes in style. Saving Clause: Section 36, Ch. 556, L. 1999, was a saving clause.

1995 Amendment: Chapter 570 in middle of (2), after "county taxes", inserted language limiting bonded indebtedness for class eight property for city or town water or sewer system (see 1995 Session Law for text); and made minor changes in style.

1981 Amendment: Increased 36% to 55% and 18% to 28% in (2).

Effect of 1981 Amendment: The primary purpose of Ch. 614, L. 1981, was to replace the system of taxation of automobiles and light trucks with a fee system. With the adoption of the fee system, automobiles and light trucks are no longer taxable property. The resulting loss of taxable valuation has a direct effect on the amount of indebtedness a political subdivision can incur. Thus it was necessary in Ch. 614 to increase the percentage of taxable valuation used as a limitation on indebtedness to offset the loss of taxable valuation attributable to automobiles and light trucks.

Case Notes

Retirement of Bonded Indebtedness: The contention by defendant town that since it was levying the maximum amount of taxes allowable under 7-6-4405 (now repealed), it could not levy a tax each year to pay interest on water bonds and create a sinking fund, was without merit. The levy under 7-6-4405 (now repealed) is for general, municipal, or administrative purposes, while under this section, a special tax may be levied in addition to that provided for herein to retire bonded indebtedness and interest on such bonds. State ex rel. Mueller v. Todd, 114 M 35, 132 P2d 154 (1942).

When City Estopped to Claim Funded Debt Invalid: A city, after extending the limit of its indebtedness to acquire a water supply and system beyond the 3% constitutional limit under Art. XIII, sec. 6, 1889 Mont. Const. (replaced by Art. VIII, sec. 10, 1972 Mont. Const.), to the extent of $25,000, issued registered warrants aggregating $75,000 without authorization by its voters, then funded the indebtedness by selling bonds to retire the warrants. The bonds recited that all proper steps had been taken to make them legal obligations of the city. The Supreme Court held that the city was estopped from questioning the bonds' validity and refusing further payment after 18 years by claiming the bonds were invalid on constitutional grounds. Clerihew v. Baker, 109 M 317, 96 P2d 269 (1939), distinguished in State ex rel. Truax v. Lima, 121 M 152, 193 P2d 1008 (1948).

Water System — Contract for Installation: Town could not lawfully contract for installation of water system in excess of the debt limitation without approval of taxpayers. Lumbermen's Trust Co. v. Ryegate, 50 F2d 219 (9th Cir. 1931).

Additional Indebtedness: Authority of a city to incur indebtedness beyond the 3% limit for the purpose of rendering or maintaining its water supply wholesome and fit for the purpose intended is clearly implied, if not expressly conferred. McClintock v. Great Falls, 53 M 221, 163 P 99 (1917).

Water System — Subject to P.S.C. Control: A city which has acquired a water supply by resorting to the extended limit of indebtedness is not thereby exempted from control and regulation by the state through the agency of the Public Service Commission. P.S.C. v. Helena, 52 M 527, 159 P 24 (1916).

Water System: In the ownership and control of its water system, a city acts in its proprietary character, as distinguished from its governmental capacity. P.S.C. v. Helena, 52 M 527, 159 P 24 (1916); Helena Consol. Water Co. v. Steele, 20 M 1, 49 P 382 (1897).

Attorney General's Opinions

Municipal Grant of Public Funds to Authority Created by Interlocal Agreement Between Self-Governing Municipalities Lawful — Debt Obligations: A self-governing municipality may grant funds for the public purpose of operating the electric and natural gas utility. Debt incurred through corporate bonds issued by a public benefit nonprofit corporation incorporated by an authority created by interlocal agreement between self-governing municipalities is not subject to laws governing municipal debts or obligations if the municipalities are not legally obligated to appropriate money to pay the debt and the debt is without recourse to the spending power of the municipalities. 51 A.G. Op. 5 (2005). See also 48 A.G. Op. 12 (2000), and 49 A.G. Op. 3 (2001).

Long-Term Lease With Contractual Nonappropriation Clause Not Considered Accumulation of Municipal Debt — Vote Not Required: A question arose regarding the applicability of laws regulating municipal government debt based on a proposal by the city of Great Falls to enter a contract for the development and operation of a water park. Under the arrangement, the city would enter a long-term lease to a private party of real property adjacent to the municipal swimming pool and concurrently lease from that party certain personal property to be used for the water park. The personalty lease would include an option for the city to purchase the personal property at the close of the lease terms and a nonappropriation clause under which the personalty lease would terminate without penalty to the city if the city chose not to appropriate funds for the lease payment in any fiscal year, in which case possession of the personal property would revert to the lessor, who would retain possession under a separate realty lease until that lease expired. The Attorney General concluded that such an arrangement did not create a debt and thus would not violate provisions of state law limiting the accumulation of debt by municipal governments. Further, the city's proposal would not pledge the taxing power of the city to make the full term of lease payments and therefore would not qualify as an obligation for which the general credit of the city is pledged that would require a vote of the people under this section. 49 A.G. Op. 3 (2001), distinguishing 38 A.G. Op. 56 (1979). 38 A.G. Op. 56 was overruled in 52 A.G. Op. 3 (2007).

Election Required to Issue Bonds to Furnish Swimming Pool: An election is required pursuant to 7-7-4221 to issue general obligation bonds for the purpose of furnishing a municipal swimming pool; however, there is no statutory requirement for an election to borrow money for that purpose by means other than issuing general obligation bonds. 41 A.G. Op. 73 (1986).

(2) If 40% or more of the registered electors do vote on the proposition or question at the election and a majority of the votes are cast in favor of the question or proposition, then the proposition or question shall be considered to have been adopted and approved."

Chapter 631 in fourth paragraph of "Notice of Sale" substituted provisions for serial bonds and provided for the amount and for a maturity schedule for "If serial bonds are issued and sold, they will be in the amount of dollars ($....) each, except the last bond which will be in the amount of dollars ($....); the sum of dollars ($....) of said serial bonds will become due and payable on the day of, 19.., and a like amount on the same day each year thereafter until all such bonds are paid, except that the last installment will be in the amount of dollars ($....)"; and in fifth paragraph of "Notice" after "per annum" inserted "commencing on the ... day of ... 7-7-4254. Procedure for sale of bonds.

Compiler's Comments

1995 Amendment: Chapter 423 in (2), in first sentence after "less than", substituted "the minimum bid specified for their sale" for "par", after "specify" deleted "the form of bonds to be issued, whether amortization or serial", and after "interest" inserted "and the purchase price", deleted former second and third sentences that read: "A bid for amortization bonds shall have preference over a bid for serial bonds, all other things being equal. In determining the kind of bonds to be issued, the council shall take into consideration not only the rate of interest demanded on each kind but also all other known elements affecting the interests of the city or town", and at end of last sentence deleted "provided, however, that the bonds may not be sold at less than par with accrued interest to date of delivery"; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective April 13, 1995.

Applicability: Section 53, Ch. 423, L. 1995, provided: "[This act] applies to bonds issued under the provisions of [this act] after [the effective date of this act]." Effective April 13, 1995.

1983 Amendment: Near beginning and end of (2), after "par" substituted "with" for "and"; and at beginning of (3), substituted "Consultants' fees and attorneys' fees may be paid" for "No attorneys' fees or brokerage or other fees or commissions of any kind may be paid".

Case Notes

Private Sale of Bonds: Under this section, authorizing the City Council to reject all bids for municipal bonds and to sell them at private sale when it considers it best for the interests of the city, a city may contract to exchange such bonds at their face value for work incident to the construction of a water system at an agreed valuation, the price of the work being determined by a bid which is accepted, such an arrangement being tantamount to a "sale" of the bonds. Commonwealth Pub. Serv. Co. v. Deer Lodge, 96 M 48, 29 P2d 667 (1934).

Attorney General's Opinions

Paying a Consultant Prohibited: Prior to 1983 amendment, 7-7-4254(3) prohibited a municipality from paying a consultant for assistance or advice in any of the matters set forth in Title 7, ch. 7, part 42, relating to the issuance and sale of specific general obligation bonds, but it did not prohibit paying a consultant for assistance in matters involving the overall financial operation of the municipality, so long as the consultation was not limited to a simple bond issuance and sale and did not involve participation in specific bond proceedings. The prohibition was not limited to payment from the actual bond proceeds but included all funds of the municipality. 38 A.G. Op. 34 (1979).

Case Notes

System Development Fees Allowable Form of Financing Future Expansion of City Water and Sewer System: When liberally construed, it is within the power of a self-governing municipality, as well as a reasonable extension of a city's express statutory authority, to implement the collection and accumulation of system development fees to fund a portion of the cost of future expansion of municipal water and sewer systems. The fees are proper as long as they are based on reasonably anticipated future costs of the city and the revenue generated from the fees is used solely to fund facility expansion or to pay for bonds sold for that purpose. Lechner v. Billings, 244 M 195, 797 P2d 191, 47 St. Rep. 1512 (1990).

Public Service Commission Jurisdiction Over Municipally Owned Utility: The ratesetting authority of a municipality under the Municipal Revenue Bond Act of 1939 does not preclude Public Service Commission (P.S.C.) jurisdiction over municipally owned utilities. Municipalities do establish rates for their services as required by 7-7-4404 and 7-7-4424 when they comply with the P.S.C. reporting requirements set forth in 69-3-301 and 69-3-302. The regulatory authority of the P.S.C. does not diminish a municipality's ability to establish an initial rate schedule, and nothing in the Municipal Revenue Bond Act precludes a review of such rate determinations. The Legislature intended such a review process by the very creation of such a regulatory and supervisory body. *Helena v. Grantor — Removal of Restrictions by Waiver: Lands deeded to a city for park purposes by deeds providing for reversion to the grantors if used for any other purpose may be used for some other purpose upon obtaining waiver, quitclaim deed, or unconditional deed from the owner of the reversionary interest, removing the restriction, whereupon the city will own the fee and use the property as it sees fit. *Lloyd v. Acceptance of Trust: Where at the time of the death of a testator who bequeathed property to a town for library purposes the law did not provide a method by which the municipality could accept the donation but later, after the estate had been distributed and the decree of distribution had become final by failure of appeal therefrom and the trust created thereby became effective, the Legislature enacted a statute under which a town could accept, the trust was not subject to attack on the ground of the town's former incapacity to accept. *Cascade v. County Buildings and Equipment

7-8-2101. Provision of rooms for county purposes.

Case Notes

Failure to Provide Suitable Rooms: The office of County Auditor is an important one with many duties, and its proper fulfillment requires proper housing, help, and equipment. The act of the County Commissioners in furnishing the County Auditor as an office an 8- by 22-foot partitioned space, with no windows, insufficient ventilation, and only artificial lighting, was an abuse of discretion and an arbitrary act. State ex rel. Taylor v. Bd. of County Comm'rs, 128 M 102, 270 P2d 994 (1954). (Dissenting opinion, 128 M 102, 270 P2d 994 (1954).)

Provision of Suitable Rooms for County Purposes:

The matter of leasing privately owned property under power granted the Board of County Commissioners by this section is one addressed to the sound judgment and discretion of the Board. Bennett v. Petroleum County, 87 M 436, 288 P 1018 (1930).

The provision of this section, granting power to the Board of County Commissioners to provide suitable rooms "when there are no necessary county buildings", refers to a present proprietorship of such buildings by a county and not to property temporarily held and used under lease for county purposes. Bennett v. Petroleum County, 87 M 436, 288 P 1018 (1930).

Attorney General's Opinions

Provision of Office Space and Equipment by County for Part-Time County Attorney: A county governing body may satisfy its obligation to provide office space for a part-time County Attorney by providing space in a county building or, if no suitable space is available, by renting office space. Use of the space for the County Attorney's private practice is allowed only through a written agreement between the county and the County Attorney leasing the use of the space for private business purposes. Alternatively, the governing body may allow a claim by the County Attorney for the rental of office space needed to conduct the county's business if suitable office space is not available in county buildings. A county governing body may satisfy its obligation to provide necessary equipment for a part-time County Attorney by providing the use of the equipment owned by the county or, if no suitable equipment is available, by renting equipment. Use of the equipment for the County Attorney's private practice is allowed only through a written agreement between the county and the County Attorney leasing the use of the equipment for private business purposes. 46 A.G. Attorney General's Opinions

No County Authority to Provide Housing to Low-Income Elderly: A county with general government powers does not have the authority under Art. XI, sec. 4, Mont. Const., or this section to construct or maintain an apartment complex for elderly low-income citizens that does not otherwise constitute a boarding or nursing home under 7-34-2301 and that does not constitute a public building under this section. Chapter 543 near beginning, after "create a", inserted "building" and after "commission" substituted "subject to the provisions of 7-1-201 through 7-1-203" for remainder of section that read: "for the management of such civic center, youth center, park buildings, museums, county parks, recreation centers, hospitals, or any combination of two or more thereof. Such commission shall be composed of the chairman of the board of county commissioners and five lay members to be appointed by the board. In cases where a commission has been appointed, the commission, together with the board, shall have the power to employ a manager.

(2) The terms of office for the first lay members of the commission shall be, respectively, one for 1 year, two for 2 years, and two for 3 years. On the expiration of such terms of figures 1, 2, and 3 years, their successors shall hold for 3 years each.

(3) All of the above persons shall serve without compensation"; and made minor changes in style.

Case Notes

Park Board Not Legislative Body or Agent for Legislative Body: The trial court dismissed the plaintiffs' wrongful termination case on the basis that the park board was a legislative body immune from suit. The Supreme Court reversed the decision, stating that the board performed statutory executive functions and therefore was not a legislative body. The Supreme Court also ruled that the board was not an agent of the County Commissioners with respect to the employment of the plaintiffs and was not immune from suit on that basis. *Koch v. Attorney General's Opinions

Provision of Office Space and Equipment by County for Part-Time County Attorney: A county governing body may satisfy its obligation to provide office space for a part-time County Attorney by providing space in a county building or, if no suitable space is available, by renting office space. Use of the space for the County Attorney's private practice is allowed only through a written agreement between the county and the County Attorney leasing the use of the space for private business purposes. Alternatively, the governing body may allow a claim by the County Attorney for the rental of office space needed to conduct the county's business if suitable office space is not available in county buildings. A county governing body may satisfy its obligation to provide necessary equipment for a part-time County Attorney by providing the use of the equipment owned by the county or, if no suitable equipment is available, by renting equipment. Part 22

Acquisition, Transfer, and Management of County Property

Part Case Notes

Sale of County Property: The contention that this part, providing the method to be pursued in selling county property, applies only to a sale of property obtained for purely public purposes but no longer needed for such purposes, and that therefore a ranch held by it in its proprietary capacity and not acquired for a public purpose does not fall within its purview, cannot be sustained. *Franzke v. Attorney General's Opinions

Authority of County to Issue General Obligation Bonds for Demolition of Abandoned County Building: Under its general duty to care for and maintain its property, a county, through its Board of County Commissioners, may issue general obligation bonds to fund demolition of a county-owned building that has been abandoned and poses a threat to the public safety and welfare. 44 A.G. Case Notes

Preferential Right of Purchase: The preferential right to purchase from the county for only the amount of the taxes, penalties, and interest is purely statutory and, if claimed, must be exercised in the manner and within the time provided by statute or the right becomes lost. Beckman Bros., Inc. v. Weir, 120 M 305, 184 P2d 347 (1947).

Purchase From County Not Redemption: The purchase of tax-acquired property from the county by the former owner is not a redemption. Beckman Bros., Inc. v. Weir, 120 M 305, 184 P2d 347 (1947).

Owner's Right to Redeem: In mandamus proceedings where defendant county acquired land of plaintiff delinquent taxpayer by tax deed and the latter offered to pay the delinquent taxes, penalty, and interest the second time the land was offered for sale, but the Commissioners refused the taxes and sold the land to another on the ground that the owner lost his preferential right for failure to exercise it on the first sale, District Court did not err in finding for plaintiff. The general policy of the law is to preserve the owner's right to redeem regardless of prior failure and without any proviso that it be deemed lost for prior failure to exercise it. State ex rel. Johnson v. Garfield County, 116 M 300, 151 P2d 481 (1944), distinguished in Beckman Bros., Inc. v. Weir, 120 M 305, 184 P2d 347 (1947).

Case Notes

Tax Deed and Sale Proceedings Invalid for Lack of Jurisdiction — County's Reversionary Interest Relinquished by Settlement to Heirs of Pretax Deed Owner: Rosebud County applied for and received a tax deed pursuant to law (now repealed) and subsequently quitclaimed all but a royalty interest in the property. The Stanfords brought an action in District Court, alleging the invalidity of the tax deed and alleging that they were the owners of a royalty interest in the property. The county settled its interest in the action by relinquishing all its interests in the property. The District Court held that the tax deed was invalid but awarded the property to another party. The Supreme Court found that the tax deed was invalid under the former law because the proceedings on tax sales are in invitum. Citing King v. Rosebud County, 193 M 268, 631 P2d 711, 38 St. Rep. 1145 (1981), the court held that the failure to file an affidavit of notice of application for the tax deed, the fact that there was a recitation in the notice for application of a tax deed that the time for redemption had “long since expired” (contrary to the law), and the failure of the record to include an “affidavit of notice of tax sale” resulted in a lack of jurisdiction in the County Treasurer to issue the tax deed. The reservation of the royalty interest by the county survived the defective tax sale, and when the county relinquished all rights to its royalty interest as part of the settlement agreement, that interest reverted to the pretax sale owner. The heirs of that owner thus had a prima facie claim to the royalty interest. Stanford v. Rosebud County, 251 M 128, 822 P2d 1074, 48 St. Rep. 1124 (1991).

Deed Reserving Mineral Interest to County — No Mutual Mistake: A 1944 deed reserved a mineral interest to the county. The deed did not on its face indicate mutual mistake; the parties agreed in 1977 that the 1944 deed reserved a royalty, and not one of the interested parties claimed mutual mistake. Plaintiff did not overcome the presumption that the 1944 deed contained the final agreement of the parties. McSweyn v. Musselshell County, 193 M 525, 632 P2d 1095, 38 St. Rep. 1260 (1981).

Mineral Interest as Distinguished From Royalty Interest — No Unconstitutional Gift: Where a contract for deed contained a reservation of a mineral interest to the county but a later deed reserved only a royalty interest, the District Court held that this amounted to an unconstitutional gift to a private individual. The Supreme Court reversed, saying that the agreed statement of facts did not show the comparative values of royalty and mineral interests in this particular land. McSweyn v. Musselshell County, 193 M 525, 632 P2d 1095, 38 St. Rep. 1260 (1981).

Quiet Title Action Not Res Judicata Where Deed Executed After Action: A quiet title action as to mineral interests reserved by the county was not res judicata because the quiet title action occurred before the deed in question was executed, delivered, and accepted. McSweyn v. Musselshell County, 193 M 525, 632 P2d 1095, 38 St. Rep. 1260 (1981), distinguishing Smith v. Musselshell County, 155 M 376, 472 P2d 878 (1970).

Mineral Rights Reservation:

County has implied power under proviso of this section to make mineral reservation in deeds to tax-title lands sold by it. Smith v. Musselshell County, 155 M 376, 472 P2d 878 (1970).

In action to determine rights under deed, evidence that all parties to county’s deed regarded reservation in deed as royalty interest and not mineral interest and language in deeds that “all minerals contained in and hereafter mined, produced, extracted, or otherwise taken” supported finding that such reservation was royalty interest. Superior Oil Co. v. Vanderhoof, 307 F. Supp. 84 (D.C. Mont. 1969).

Power to Reserve Mineral Rights: In the sale of land acquired by tax deed, the county has such powers as may be exercised by a private seller of land, and these powers include the waiver of forfeiture provisions in a contract after a forfeiture has been declared and the right to reserve the right to take roadbuilding material from the land for authorized public use. Helena Gun Club v. Lewis & Clark County, 141 M 490, 379 P2d 436 (1963).

Attorney General’s Opinions

Application of Sale Proceeds to Delinquent Special Improvement District Assessments: A County Treasurer may not require delinquent special improvement district assessments to be paid in addition to the sale price of tax deed land because when a tax deed is issued, special assessment liens that were due and payable at that time are extinguished. However, the County Treasurer must apply the sale proceeds of the land to delinquent assessments, as provided in this section. 45 A.G. Op. 24 (1994).

City Assessments to Be Included and Prorated as Part of Allocation Received From Tax Sale: There is no correlation between the method of distribution of tax sale proceeds outlined in this section and the effect of a tax deed in 15-18-214. When a city has not requested and received assignment of a county's right to tax sale property, the city assessments must be included and prorated as part of the allocation of money received from a sale of county tax deed land under this section. 45 A.G. Tax Deed and Sale Proceedings Invalid for Lack of Jurisdiction — County's Reversionary Interest Relinquished by Settlement to Heirs of Pretax Deed Owner: Rosebud County applied for and received a tax deed pursuant to law (now repealed) and subsequently quitclaimed all but a royalty interest in the property. The Stanfords brought an action in District Court, alleging the invalidity of the tax deed and alleging that they were the owners of a royalty interest in the property. The county settled its interest in the action by relinquishing all its interests in the property. The District Court held that the tax deed was invalid but awarded the property to another party. The Supreme Court found that the tax deed was invalid under the former law because the proceedings on tax sales are in invitum. Citing King v. Rosebud County, 193 M 268, 631 P2d 711, 38 St. Rep. 1145 (1981), the court held that the failure to file an affidavit of notice of application for the tax deed, the fact that there was a recitation in the notice for application of a tax deed that the time for redemption had "long since expired" (contrary to the law), and the failure of the record to include an "affidavit of notice of tax sale" resulted in a lack of jurisdiction in the County Treasurer to issue the tax deed. The reservation of the royalty interest by the county survived the defective tax sale, and when the county relinquished all rights to its royalty interest as part of the settlement agreement, that interest reverted to the pretax sale owner. The heirs of that owner thus had a prima facie claim to the royalty interest. Stanford v. Rosebud County, 251 M 128, 822 P2d 1074, 48 St. Rep. 1124 (1991).

Deed Reserving Mineral Interest to County — No Mutual Mistake: A 1944 deed reserved a mineral interest to the county. The deed did not on its face indicate mutual mistake; the parties agreed in 1977 that the 1944 deed reserved a royalty, and not one of the interested parties claimed mutual mistake. Plaintiff did not overcome the presumption that the 1944 deed contained the final agreement of the parties. McSweyn v. Musselshell County, 193 M 525, 632 P2d 1095, 38 St. Rep. 1260 (1981).

Mineral Interest as Distinguished From Royalty Interest — No Unconstitutional Gift: Where a contract for deed contained a reservation of a mineral interest to the county but a later deed reserved only a royalty interest, the District Court held that this amounted to an unconstitutional gift to a private individual. The Supreme Court reversed, saying that the agreed statement of facts did not show the comparative values of royalty and mineral interests in this particular land. McSweyn v. Musselshell County, 193 M 525, 632 P2d 1095, 38 St. Rep. 1260 (1981).

Quiet Title Action Not Res Judicata Where Deed Executed After Action: A quiet title action as to mineral interests reserved by the county was not res judicata because the quiet title action occurred before the deed in question was executed, delivered, and accepted. McSweyn v. Musselshell County, 193 M 525, 632 P2d 1095, 38 St. Rep. 1260 (1981), distinguishing Smith v. Musselshell County, 155 M 376, 472 P2d 878 (1970).

Case Notes

City Land Donated for Park — Election Required Prior to Lease for Rifle Club: In a 1901 conveyance of land to the city of Whitefish, the deed stated that the land was to be used for public park purposes and that if not so used, the land was to revert to grantor. The Supreme Court held that this section requires that the city receive voter approval in a special election prior to leasing the park to a rifle club. Prezeau v. Whitefish, 198 M 416, 646 P2d 1186, 39 St. Rep. 1090 (1982). Overruling Colwell v. Great Falls, 117 M 126, 157 P2d 1013 (1945), and Hames v. Polson, 123 M 469, 215 P2d 950 (1950), to the extent that they conflict with this opinion and this section.

No Exception to Election Requirement — Contrary Purpose Unnecessary: This section requires that an election be held to approve any sale or lease of municipal property that is held in trust for a specific purpose. The statute does not limit the requirement of a special election to only those instances in which the sale or lease would be for a purpose that is contrary to the specific trust purpose. Prezeau v. Whitefish, 198 M 416, 646 P2d 1186, 39 St. Rep. 1090 (1982). Overruling Colwell v. Great Falls, 117 M 126, 157 P2d 1013 (1945), and Hames v. Polson, 123 M 469, 215 P2d 950 (1950), to the extent that they conflict with this opinion and this section.

Lease to Private Club: Lease of a golf course and part of clubhouse to private club, which contained no provisions safeguarding the rights of the inhabitants of the city and which was not submitted to the voters for approval at a special election, is void. Hames v. Polson, 123 M 469, 215 P2d 950 (1950); overruled by Prezeau v. Whitefish, 198 M 416, 646 P2d 1186, 39 St. Rep. 1090 (1982), to the extent that it conflicts with the opinion in Prezeau and 7-8-4201(2)(b).

When Leasing Not Required to Be Submitted to Vote: Even if the municipal auditorium was held in trust for specific purposes, question of leasing of the auditorium to a private individual for the purpose of exhibiting moving pictures was not required to be submitted to the taxpayers at an election, where it did not appear that the lease would interfere with the use of property for the purposes for which it was being held in trust. Colwell v. Great Falls, 117 M 126, 157 P2d 1013 (1945), distinguished in Hames v. Polson, 123 M 469, 215 P2d 950 (1950); overruled by Prezeau v. Whitefish, 198 M 416, 646 P2d 1186, 39 St. Rep. 1090 (1982), to the extent that it conflicts with the opinion in Prezeau and 7-8-4201(2)(b).

Attorney General's Opinions

Sale of City Land by City With Self-Government Powers — Vote Required: Although subsection (2)(a) of this section requires a two-thirds vote of the city commission to sell city land, a city with self-governing powers may enact a superseding ordinance allowing the sale of city land by a simple majority vote. 43 A.G. Op. 41 (1989). After analyzing subsection (2)(b) of this section, the Attorney General applied the same analysis and conclusion to allow the governing body of a local government unit with self-governing powers to enact an ordinance providing for the disposition by majority vote of the council of property held in trust for a specific purpose. 43 A.G. Op. 55 (1990).

Dedication of Lands to Use of Public Forever — Trust for Specific Purpose: Park dedication language in a subdivision plat dedicating certain lands "to the use of the public forever" creates a trust for a specific purpose. Under the terms of this section, a municipal election must be held before the city can dispose of the property. 41 A.G. Op. 42 (1986).

Authority for Creation of Public Benefit Nonprofit Corporation to Operate Electric and Natural Gas Utility Business: The Montana Nonprofit Corporation Act, Title 35, ch. 2, allows the creation of a public benefit nonprofit corporation and an interlocal agreement creating a corporation as the nonprofit corporation's sole member to operate an electric and natural gas utility. The authority created by interlocal agreement between self-governing municipalities may exercise only those powers that any of the municipalities might exercise. 51 A.G. Op. 5 (2005). See also 48 A.G. Op. 14 (2000).

County Commission Generally Obligated to Fund Library Budget — County Allowed to Bind Itself to Fund Library Budget Through Interlocal Agreement: The Board of County Commissioners is generally obligated to fund the county library budget, as submitted by the library board pursuant to 22-1-309, within the limits set in 15-10-420. The 2001 statutory changes did not delete a library board's authority to determine the amount of financial support required by the library, nor did the changes confer on the Board of County Commissioners the authority to modify a library budget submitted by the library board. Further, nothing in the 2001 tax and budget amendments prevents a county from voluntarily entering an interlocal agreement to provide that the county would accept a library board's budget proposal and levy the necessary mills to fund it. 49 A.G. Op. 16 (2002). See also 41 A.G. Op. 91 (1986), and 48 A.G. Op. 3 (1999).

State Financial Responsibility for Sentenced Inmate Upon Oral Pronouncement of Sentence: A sentencing hearing represents the only common date by which the criminal justice system can definitely measure when legal and financial responsibility for an inmate shifts from a county to the state. Oral pronouncement of sentence from the bench in the presence of a defendant constitutes final judgment (see St. v. Lane, 1998 MT 76, 288 M 286, 957 P2d 9 (1998)). Once sentenced, an inmate is considered to be in the legal custody of the Department of Corrections, even though a local or regional detention center may serve as a place of temporary detention until the inmate can be placed by the Department. Therefore, upon oral pronouncement of sentence that transfers legal custody of an inmate to the Department, the financial responsibility for the inmate transfers to the Department as well. 49 A.G. Op. 13 (2001).

No County Obligation to Provide Waste Disposal and Landfill Services to Towns: Under 7-11-104 and 7-13-203, a county has no legal obligation to provide solid waste disposal and landfill services to towns that have used the county landfill on a charge-per-load basis if there is no refuse disposal district or interlocal agreement between the towns and county to provide those services. 43 A.G. Op. 1 (1989).

Interlocal Agreements for County Jail Use: State law does not preclude a county and a city or town from entering into an interlocal agreement wherein the county may charge a city or town for maintaining prisoners committed to the county jail at the request of municipal authorities for violating either state laws or municipal ordinances. 42 A.G. Attorney General’s Opinions

Merger of Fire Services Between City and County With General Government Powers Not Allowed: A proposed city initiative would have merged a city fire department and a rural county fire district into a new fire protection district with an urban and a rural division. However, both the city and county were local government units with general government powers and had not been consolidated as allowed by law. Under the provisions of the initiative, neither fire department would maintain its own identity; therefore, the proposed merger would abrogate the city fire department as a separate entity and would be an invalid exercise of general government powers. This opinion does not preclude the provision of fire protection services in a cooperative fashion through an interlocal agreement that city voters may, by initiative, require the city governing body to pursue. 43 A.G. Op. 56 (1990).

No County Obligation to Provide Waste Disposal and Landfill Services to Towns: Under 7-13-203 and this section, a county has no legal obligation to provide solid waste disposal and landfill services to towns that have used the county landfill on a charge-per-load basis if there is no refuse disposal district or interlocal agreement between the towns and county to provide those services. 43 A.G. Op. 1 (1989).

County Power to Grant Franchises — Interlocal Agreements Not Precluded: Article XI, sec. 4, Mont. Const.; 7-3-144; 7-4-2611; and 7-5-2129, as well as applicable case law, imply that a county vested with general government powers may exercise the power to grant franchises. Under this section, a city-county interlocal franchise agreement is possible. 42 A.G. Op. 87 (1988).

Act Allowing Private Parties to Contract for Jails Not in Conflict With Local Government Regulatory Statutes: The act allowing counties to contract with private parties for the building, maintenance, and operation of jails, enacted as Chapter 447, L. 1985, does not directly conflict with other Montana statutes regulating the indebtedness, contracts, jail facilities, or interlocal agreements of local governments. However, Chapter 447 is subject to the various applicable limitations contained in those statutes. 42 A.G. Op. 81 (1988).

General Government Power County — Interlocal Agreement With Municipal Housing Authority: If a city has created a municipal housing authority, the municipal housing authority and county may enter an interlocal agreement under which the county may administer the Community Development Block Grant project for the rehabilitation of privately owned housing within 10 miles of the city limits. 40 A.G. Op. 17 (1983).

General Government Power County — Not to Enter Agreement With City to Rehabilitate Rural Dwellings: A county with general government powers and a city generally may not enter into an interlocal agreement under which the county could administer the Community Development Block Grant project for the rehabilitation of privately owned housing because neither is statutorily authorized to rehabilitate dwellings outside the city limits. 40 A.G. Op. 17 (1983).

Municipal Housing Authority — Public Agency: A municipal housing authority is a public agency or political subdivision that may enter into interlocal agreements. 39 A.G. Op. 37 (1981).

Joint Self-Insurance Programs: Montana counties may procure insurance separately or jointly and may use a deductible or self-insurance plan. Therefore, it is permissible for counties to enter into a joint self-insurance program. 38 A.G. Op. 75 (1980).

Nonexclusive Means of Establishing Insurance Program: An interlocal agreement pursuant to 7-11-104 is not the exclusive means by which counties might establish a joint self-insurance program, provided that the method selected is not specifically prohibited by law. 38 A.G. Op. 75 (1980).

Rural Improvement Districts

Statutory Framework for Creation of Rural Improvement District Properly Followed: The Supreme Court approved the procedure followed by the Lewis and Clark Board of County Commissioners after examining whether each step in the nine-part process for creation of a rural improvement district was addressed. *Buckley v. Part Attorney General's Opinions

Formation of New Improvement District Required for Substantial Expansion of Existing One: A sewer district constituting a rural special improvement district could be significantly expanded and the district's service area doubled in size only by the creation of a new special improvement district. The provisions of 7-12-2161(4) contemplate only maintenance of an existing system for which notice has previously been given and upon which a hearing has been previously held. A substantial addition to an existing district with notice or comment by the affected property owners would conflict with the notice procedures applicable to property owners not yet taxed for the improvement of their property. 40 A.G. Op. 44 (1984).

Rural Improvement Districts — County Attorney Not Legal Advisor: Except for legal work required by the Board of County Commissioners in connection with the creation of a rural improvement district, it is not the duty of a County Attorney to represent rural improvement districts formed under Title 7, ch. 12, part 21. 40 A.G. Case Notes

Maintenance Distinguished From Reconstruction — Rural Improvement District: Yellowstone County replaced a 4-inch water main serving a rural special improvement district with a 12-inch main and assessed costs as "maintenance" costs against the property owners in the district. The court determined that the replacement costs were "reconstruction" costs as set forth in 7-12-4102, rather than "maintenance" costs under 7-12-2120 or 7-12-2162, and must be funded by creating a special improvement district under this section after notice and opportunity to object as provided in 7-12-2105 and 7-12-2109, respectively. Miller v. Yellowstone County, 234 M 193, 761 P2d 829, 45 St. Rep. 1836 (1988).

Action Challenging Sufficiency of Petition Moot: Under the former version of this section before its amendment in 1985 (and before the 2005 amendment adding subsection (2)), a petition of 60% of the freeholders affected was required for the establishment of a rural special improvement district (RSID). Appellants filed an application for a Writ of Prohibition under the former law to prohibit the County Commissioners from building a swimming pool pursuant to creation of an RSID, alleging that the petition to create the RSID was not in compliance with the law. The District Court denied their application. The Supreme Court affirmed the denial, ruling the question moot because of the 1985 amendment. Porch v. Powder River Bd. of County Comm'rs, 219 M 179, 710 P2d 1364, 42 St. Rep. 1936 (1985).

Attorney General's Opinions

Establishment of Rural Improvement District for Weed Control — Preemption: A Board of County Commissioners may not use this section or 7-12-4102 to authorize a rural improvement district to provide weed control because those statutes are subordinate to and preempted by the specific statutory scheme of weed control in Title 7, ch. 22, part 21. 42 A.G. Op. 90 (1988).

Creation of Special Improvement District to Improve County Road: A Board of County Commissioners has authority to order the creation of a rural special improvement district to improve a county road established by the county road petition process. 41 A.G. Op. 61 (1986).

Swimming Pool: The creation of a rural improvement district for the purpose of constructing and maintaining a public swimming pool is proper if the facility will specially benefit the property subject to the assessments associated with the district. 41 A.G. Op. 15 (1985).

Case Notes

County Allowed Choice Whether to Issue Bonds Secured by Revolving Fund — County Not Relieved of Obligation to Make Loans to Deficient Rural Special Improvement Districts: The plain meaning of statutes regarding revolving funds, as well as the legislative history, supports the legislative intent to allow counties to choose whether to finance a rural special improvement district by issuing bonds secured by the revolving fund. Nothing in the statutes voids the commitment to loan from the revolving fund if the district becomes deficient. In this case, County Commissioners agreed to a revolving fund obligation and issued bonds secured by the revolving fund. The District Court reasoned that this was a violation of the constitutional prohibition against indebtedness beyond a certain percent, holding that the county was thus relieved of its obligation to make such loans. However, special improvement bond obligations are limited to the district funds and, if necessary, receive loans from the revolving fund. If both funds are insufficient to meet bond payments, there is no other source to pay the bonds. Under 7-12-2182, revolving fund levies are limited to an amount that would increase the balance in the fund to no more than 5% of the principal amount of the outstanding bonds. The District Court erred in its decision that the county was not obligated to make loans to the special improvement districts. Having exercised the discretion to institute a revolving fund and freely enter into an agreement with the bondholders and the underwriters, under both the terms of the agreement and applicable statutes, a county is obliged to carry out that contractual obligation. Loans from the revolving fund and subsequent tax levies are within the constitutional mandates of Art. VIII, sec. 1, Mont. Const., which requires that state funds be used for public purposes. Further, a county's obligation to make such loans and levy taxes to fund the revolving fund is mandatory, rather than discretionary, and is not an unconstitutional pledge of credit. Carbon County v. Dain Bosworth, Inc., 265 M 75, 874 P2d 718, 51 St. Rep. 436 (1994), distinguishing Stanley v. Jeffries, 86 M 114, 284 P 134 (1929), and Hansen v. Havre, 112 M 207, 114 P2d 1053 (1941).

Inclusion of Same Amount of Each Lot in Assessment and District: In fixing the boundaries of a rural improvement district, a Board of County Commissioners may include less than the entire amount of a lot so as to equalize costs borne by each lot. Here a district relating to roads and entrance lights was created and for each lot only the 2,000 square feet closest to the road was included in the district, although the lots varied greatly in size. The duty under 7-12-2103 to describe the boundaries of the district is not affected by lot size, and the boundaries may be fixed so that the same amount of each lot is included in the district. Warner v. Gallatin County Comm'rs, 220 M 430, 715 P2d 1068, 43 St. Rep. 502 (1986).

Hooking Up to Sewer System Characterized as Improvement Rather Than Maintenance or Repair: Seypar, Inc., argued that the sewer district should have assessed the cost of hookup fees on a districtwide basis rather than against the individual parcels of Seypar, Inc., as they were added to the system. The Supreme Court held that hookup fees were not maintenance, repair, or preservation costs that are required to be assessed districtwide but were improvements that the district had the discretion to assess against the individual parcels if the district so chose. *Seypar, Inc. v. Sewer District Not Local Self-Governing Unit: The lower court granted a multicounty sewer district's motion for summary judgment, ruling that the district had the right to impose hookup inspection fees on the appellant, Seypar, Inc. Seypar, Inc., argued that the district did not have the authority to impose the fee against individual property owners and that the cost should have been assessed against the whole district. The Supreme Court ruled that although state law gave the district the same administrative powers as County Commissioners have over a single county sewer district, those powers are not the same as a local self-governing unit and therefore the district did not have the authority to exercise any power not prohibited by Montana law. The Supreme Court stated that since the district was not self-governing, it could not argue that the statutes relating to municipal districts applied to it by analogy. The Supreme Court held that the district did have the power to impose hookup fees under this section. *Seypar, Inc. v. 1985 Amendment: Substituted language of (1) lead-in, (1)(a), and (1)(b) (see 1985 Session Law for text) for "To defray the cost of making any of the improvements provided for in this part, the board of county commissioners shall adopt the following method of assessment:

(1) The board shall assess the entire cost of such improvements against the entire district. Each lot or parcel of land assessed in such district shall be assessed with that part of the whole cost which its area bears to the area of the entire district, exclusive of streets, avenues, alleys, and public places.

(2) Where said rural improvement district is located more than 5 miles from the boundary of an incorporated city or town, said assessment may, at the option of the board, be based upon the assessed value of the lots or pieces of land within said district"; inserted (1)(c), (1)(d), and (2) (see 1985 Session Law for text); and near end of (3), inserted "benefited" before "property".

Case Notes

Hooking Up to Sewer System Characterized as Improvement Rather Than Maintenance or Repair: Seypar, Inc., argued that the sewer district should have assessed the cost of hookup fees on a districtwide basis rather than against the individual parcels of Seypar, Inc., as they were added to the system. The Supreme Court held that hookup fees were not maintenance, repair, or preservation costs that are required to be assessed districtwide but were improvements that the district had the discretion to assess against the individual parcels if the district so chose. Seypar, Inc. v. Water & Sewer District No. 363, 1998 MT 149, 289 M 263, 960 P2d 311, 55 St. Rep. 578 (1998).

No Presumption That Hookup Fees Reasonable: Seypar, Inc., argued that the sewer district's $500 hookup fee assessed against each of Seypar, Inc.'s, 70 lots was unreasonable. The Supreme Court held that the District Court was wrong in finding that the district was a local self-governing unit and that therefore there was no presumption that the district's fees were reasonable. However, the Supreme Court found that the district had introduced evidence that the fees were reasonable and Seypar, Inc., had presented no contrary evidence. Therefore, Seypar, Inc., it had not met its burden of proof to show that the fees were unreasonable. Seypar, Inc. v. Water & Sewer District No. 363, 1998 MT 149, 289 M 263, 960 P2d 311, 55 St. Rep. 578 (1998).

Inclusion of Same Amount of Each Lot in Assessment and District: In fixing the boundaries of a rural improvement district, a Board of County Commissioners may include less than the entire amount of a lot so as to equalize costs borne by each lot. Here a district relating to roads and entrance lights was created and for each lot only the 2,000 square feet closest to the road was included in the district, although the lots varied greatly in size. The duty under 7-12-2103 to describe the boundaries of the district is not affected by lot size, and the boundaries may be fixed so that the same amount of each lot is included in the district. Warner v. Gallatin County Comm'rs, 220 M 430, 715 P2d 1068, 43 St. Rep. 502 (1986).

Assessed Valuation Option — Oil and Gas Net Proceeds: Oil and gas net proceeds and royalty interests should not be included within the assessed value of land benefited from a rural special improvement district for purposes of assessment of costs under this section. 42 A.G. Op. 5 (1987).

Assessment Area Smaller Than District — Partial Inclusion in District of Larger Lots: In a rural subdivision containing lots from 2 to 20 acres in size, a decision to include the entirety of each lot in a rural special improvement district but to assess only an equal portion of each lot was at odds with the assessment method mandated by this section, prior to 1985 amendment. To deal with the problem of equalizing burdens and benefits only part of the larger lots should be included within the district. 39 A.G. Op. 48 (1982).

Preamble: The preamble attached to Ch. 175, L. 1997, provided: "WHEREAS, the administrative time involved with rural special improvement districts' maintenance districts can be substantial; and

WHEREAS, these districts benefit only the property owners within the districts' boundaries and not the county as a whole; and

WHEREAS, many of the rural special improvement districts rely on the county to make the maintenance decisions for the district; and

WHEREAS, the county receives no revenue for the administration and other costs involved with operating rural special improvement maintenance districts."

Attorney General's Opinions

Payment of Fire Hydrant Fee From Rural Improvement District Maintenance Fund: Counties have the power to create rural improvement districts outside of incorporated cities and towns for the purpose of acquiring and constructing certain improvements in the public interest, including the construction of water mains and hydrants. Maintenance, preservation, and repair of those improvements are paid for from the rural improvement district maintenance fund. Therefore, payment of a fire hydrant fee charged to a rural improvement district for provision of water to hydrants owned by the district may be made from the district's maintenance fund. 45 A.G. Op. 4 (1993).

Responsibility for Costs of Maintenance and Repair of County Road Established by Petition: If a rural special improvement district is created to improve a county road established by the county road petition process, the district is responsible for the costs of maintenance and repair of the road. 41 A.G. Op. 61 (1986).

Formation of New Improvement District Required for Substantial Expansion of Existing One: A sewer district constituting a rural special improvement district could be significantly expanded and the district's service area doubled in size only by the creation of a new special improvement district. The provisions of 7-12-2161(4) contemplate only maintenance of an existing system for which notice has previously been given and upon which a hearing has been previously held. A substantial addition to an existing district with notice or comment by the affected property owners would conflict with the notice procedures applicable to property owners not yet taxed for the improvement of their property. 40 A.G. Op. 44 (1984).

2003 Amendment: Chapter 277 deleted former (3) that read: "(3) As used in this part, unless the context clearly indicates otherwise, the following definitions apply:

(a) "Amortization bonds" means the form of bonds that bear interest at a fixed rate and on which:

(i) a part of the principal must be paid each time that interest becomes payable;

(ii) the part payment of principal increases at each installment in the same amount that the interest decreases;

(iii) the combined interest and principal due on each due date remains the same until the bonds are paid;

(iv) the final payment may vary from prior payments in the amount resulting from disregarding fractional costs in prior payments; and

(v) the initial payment may be larger than subsequent payments if the increase represents interest accrued over an additional period not greater than 6 months.

(b) "Serial bonds" means a bond issue payable in semiannual or annual installments commencing not more than 2 years from the date of issue, any one installment consisting of one or more bonds, with the principal amount of bonds maturing in each installment not exceeding five times the principal amount of the bonds maturing in the immediately preceding installment"; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective July 1, 2003.

2001 Amendment: Chapter 162 in (1)(a) inserted last two sentences providing that bonds or warrants sold at a private, negotiated sale may bear interest at a rate varying at times and on terms determined by the board of county commissioners and allowing the terms to include a maximum interest rate or convertibility to a fixed rate; inserted (1)(b) stating when variable rate bonds may be sold at a private, negotiated sale; in (1)(c) in second sentence substituted "may bear the corporate seal" for "must bear the corporate seal"; in (3) in definition of amortization bonds in introductory clause inserted "that bear interest at a fixed rate and" and in definition of serial bonds near beginning substituted "semiannual or annual" for "annual"; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective March 28, 2001.

1997 Amendment: Chapter 459 deleted former (3) that read: "(3) All special improvement district bonds must be amortization bonds unless, in the judgment of the board, serial bonds will be more advantageous to the district and can be sold at a comparatively reasonable rate or rates of interest"; and made minor changes in style.

1989 Amendments: Chapter 256 in (2) inserted last sentence relating to when the term of a bond commences; in (4)(b) substituted definition of serial bonds for former language that read: "Serial bonds" means the form of bonds that are payable in annual installments and on which the amount maturing each year may not be more than three times the principal amount of bonds maturing in any previous year"; and made minor changes in phraseology. Amendment effective March 23, 1989.

the legislative intent to allow counties to choose whether to finance a rural special improvement district by issuing bonds secured by the revolving fund. Nothing in the statutes voids the commitment to loan from the revolving fund if the district becomes deficient. In this case, County Commissioners agreed to a revolving fund obligation and issued bonds secured by the revolving fund. The District Court reasoned that this was a violation of the constitutional prohibition against indebtedness beyond a certain percent, holding that the county was thus relieved of its obligation to make such loans. However, special improvement bond obligations are limited to the district funds and, if necessary, receive loans from the revolving fund. If both funds are insufficient to meet bond payments, there is no other source to pay the bonds. Under 7-12-2182, revolving fund levies are limited to an amount that would increase the balance in the fund to no more than 5% of the principal amount of the outstanding bonds. The District Court erred in its decision that the county was not obligated to make loans to the special improvement districts. Having exercised the discretion to institute a revolving fund and freely enter into an agreement with the bondholders and the underwriters, under both the terms of the agreement and applicable statutes, a county is obliged to carry out that contractual obligation. Loans from the revolving fund and subsequent tax levies are within the constitutional mandates of Art. VIII, sec. 1, Mont. Const., which requires that state funds be used for public purposes. Further, a county's obligation to make such loans and levy taxes to fund the revolving fund is mandatory, rather than discretionary, and is not an unconstitutional pledge of credit. *Carbon County v. Part 41Special Improvement Districts*Part Case Notes

Failure to Prove Mistake or Fraud in City Determination of Boundary of Special Improvement District — Summary Judgment Proper: The city of Missoula included plaintiffs' property in a storm sewer drainage special improvement district, and plaintiffs filed a complaint, alleging that pursuant to 7-12-4162, they could not be included in the special improvement district absent some benefit to them from the proposed system. The District Court heard contradicting evidence on the question of benefit, but concluded that plaintiffs failed to produce evidence of mistake or fraud as required in Stevens v. Missoula, 205 M 274, 667 P2d 440 (1983), and summarily dismissed plaintiffs' complaint. The Supreme Court affirmed. Under Stevens, a city's determination of benefit and creation of special improvement district boundaries is conclusive absent proof of mistake or fraud that precludes the exercise of sound judgment. Plaintiffs did not satisfy the threshold requirement in Stevens and thus could not prevail even if the facts articulated in the complaint were true. Enger v. Missoula, 2001 MT 142, 306 M 28, 29 P3d 514 (2001).

Boundary of Special Improvement District — How Drawn: A special improvement district's boundary lines should be drawn in such a way that the improvement brings a benefit to the included properties and that the benefit is substantially more intense than that which is realized by the properties outside of the district boundaries. The fact that outside property derives some general benefit should not affect the special benefit afforded the district properties. Stevens v. Missoula, 205 M 274, 667 P2d 440, 40 St. Rep. 1267 (1983).

Sufficiency of Resolution of Intention to Create SID: Plaintiffs unsuccessfully challenged in the District Court the validity of the creation by the City Council of a special improvement district (SID) to expand off-street parking in downtown Missoula. The SID was proposed to the City Council by the Parking Commission. Two alternatives were presented. One involved addition of parking spaces on three surface lots. The other involved addition of parking spaces on two lots and construction of a parking garage on a third lot. Both proposals entailed acquisition of the same parcels of land. The City Council then adopted, pursuant to 7-12-4104, a resolution of intention to create an SID, including both alternative plans in the resolution. Written protests were filed, and opposition to creation of the SID was expressed at a public hearing. The City Council then adopted a resolution creating the SID. In the resolution, the general nature of the improvements was set forth in the alternative. On appeal, the Supreme Court ruled that the alternative structure of the resolution of intention did not deny property owners notice of the cost and nature of the proposed improvement. Nor does 7-12-4104 preclude use of the alternative form. Stevens v. Missoula, 205 M 274, 667 P2d 440, 40 St. Rep. 1267 (1983).

Notice to Be Published Rather Than Posted if Possible: The obvious intent of the Legislature as declared in 7-12-4107 (now repealed) was to permit posting of notice only when publication could not be made in the city, and whenever there is a newspaper published in the city, whether "daily", "semiweekly", or "weekly", publication therein should take precedence over notice by posting. Hansen v. Havre, 112 M 207, 114 P2d 1053 (1941).

The fact that outside property derives some general benefit should not affect the special benefit afforded the district properties. Stevens v. Missoula, 205 M 274, 667 P2d 440, 40 St. Rep. 1267 (1983).

Bond Issues — Payment: Where a special improvement district was established under this section and bonds were issued "payable from the collection of the special tax or assessment which is a lien against the real estate within said improvement district", the bonds were not a general obligation of the town and the town could not be compelled to redeem the bonds from a water fund made up of water rentals from water users, even though the town may have had authority to make payments from such fund. State ex rel. Truax v. Lima, 121 M 152, 193 P2d 1008 (1948).

Assessment Not to Be Predicated on Future Action of Public Authority: A special improvement district was created for the construction of a main trunk line sewer which would not serve plaintiff's lot or a majority of the lots within the district until laterals could be constructed. This would require the creation of local districts within the main trunk line district. As an assessment cannot be predicated on future action of public authorities, plaintiff's land could not be assessed for the main trunk line sewer. Crutchfield v. Nash, 84 M 556, 276 P 938 (1929).

Powers of City Council Limited: The statutes of this state relating to the creation of special improvement districts not only qualify and limit the powers which the City Council may exercise but they define with particularity the mode in which the restricted authority may be used, and compliance with their provisions is the sine qua non to the creation of a special improvement district for making improvements the expense of which is to be a charge against the property included. Johnston v. Hardin, 55 M 574, 179 P 824 (1919); Cooper v. Bozeman, 54 M 277, 169 P 801 (1917); Shapard v. Missoula, 49 M 269, 141 P 544 (1914).

Right to Attack Validity of Creation of District: Where an owner joined in a petition for the creation of a special improvement district and thereafter, in creating it, a large part of the property described therein was excluded by the City Council, the petitioner was not estopped from subsequently attacking the validity of the creation by the fact that he joined in the petition. Lewistown v. Warren, 52 M 356, 157 P 954 (1916).

Construction of Section: The provisions of this section were not repealed by implication by Ch. 89, L. 1913, relating to special improvements in cities and towns. Shapard v. Missoula, 49 M 269, 141 P 544 (1914).

Federal Property: The constitutional provision that a state shall not impose any taxes upon property therein belonging to the United States includes special assessments for street improvements. Ford v. Great Falls, 46 M 292, 127 P 1004 (1912).

Theory of Act:

With respect to special improvements, the "superficial area" rule is the rule of this state; it amounts to a legislative declaration that all property in a proposed district is, presumptively, equally benefited by the improvement contemplated. Mansur v. Polson, 45 M 585, 125 P 1002 (1912).

The whole theory of local taxation or assessments is that the improvements for which they are levied afford a remuneration in the way of benefits. Power v. Helena, 43 M 336, 116 P 415 (1911).

School District Property: The property of a school district, devoted exclusively to public school purposes, is, in the absence of express constitutional or statutory exemption, liable for the payment of assessments made for special municipal improvements. Kalispell v. School District, 45 M 221, 122 P 742 (1912).

Constitutionality: Laws providing for the creation of special improvement districts and imposing a tax by way of assessment upon the property legislatively determined to be benefited are not open to the objection that they deprive the owner of his property without due process of law. McMillan v. Butte, 30 M 220, 76 P 203 (1904).

Attorney General's Opinions

Special Improvement Districts — Legal Services — City Controls: Because a special improvement district (SID) is a creature of statute, with the power to create it clearly vested in the city, a developer seeking creation of a special improvement district has no authority to designate a private attorney to perform legal services in connection with the SID or to fix the fee for such legal services. 38 A.G. Op. 29 (1979).

Paying for Condemned Property Outside City Limits: In the absence of such a provision as contained in this section, the power of a municipality to create a special improvement district in a city for the construction of a project to protect city property from overflows would be implied on grounds of special necessity, and in such case, as well as where the power is expressly conferred, property in the special improvement district may properly be assessed for the purpose of paying for condemned property lying outside the city limits. Hansen v. Havre, 112 M 207, 114 P2d 1053 (1941).

Case Notes

Resolution Creating Special Improvement District — Not Subject to Referendum: A resolution creating a municipal special improvement district that encompasses less area than the municipal limits is not subject to referendum because the resolution affects only the people within the improvement district rather than the people of the municipality as a whole. The Supreme Court further held that the resolution creating a special improvement district is part of an administrative procedure, not a legislative action subject to referendum. Shelby v. Sandholm, 208 M 77, 676 P2d 178, 41 St. Rep. 186 (1984), distinguished in The Greens at Fort Missoula, LLC v. Missoula, 271 M 398, 897 P2d 1078, 52 St. Rep. 501 (1995).

Extended District: Besides those requirements enumerated in this section, the City Commission must take two additional steps under 7-12-4109 to have a valid resolution of intention for an "extended" district. Smith v. Bozeman, 144 M 528, 398 P2d 462 (1965).

Construction of Section: The words "approximate estimate" should not be construed liberally. Koich v. Helena, 132 M 194, 315 P2d 811 (1957).

Sufficiency of Resolution:

Plaintiffs unsuccessfully challenged in the District Court the validity of the creation by the City Council of a special improvement district (SID) to expand off-street parking in downtown Missoula. The SID was proposed to the City Council by the Parking Commission. Two alternatives were presented. One involved addition of parking spaces on three surface lots. The other involved addition of parking spaces on two lots and construction of a parking garage on a third lot. Both proposals entailed acquisition of the same parcels of land. The City Council then adopted, pursuant to this section, a resolution of intention to create an SID, including both alternative plans in the resolution. Written protests were filed, and opposition to creation of the SID was expressed at a public hearing. The City Council then adopted a resolution creating the SID. In the resolution, the general nature of the improvements was set forth in the alternative. On appeal, the Supreme Court ruled that the alternative structure of the resolution of intention did not deny property owners notice of the cost and nature of the proposed improvement. Nor does this section preclude use of the alternative form. Stevens v. Missoula, 205 M 274, 667 P2d 440, 40 St. Rep. 1267 (1983).

Where improvement was amply covered by general description contained in resolution of intention, that waterworks were to be constructed outside of special improvement district for purpose of furnishing water for pipes laid in district, held sufficient, so far as concerns description of work chargeable to district. Lumbermen's Trust Co. v. Ryegate, 61 F2d 14 (9th Cir. 1931).

A resolution of intention to create a special improvement district, the title of which stated that it was a "resolution of intention", etc., and the body of which substantially contained the recitals required by statute and advised the taxpayers of the time and place where their objections to its creation would be heard, was sufficient as against the objection that in it the City Council had not declared its intention to create it. Aiken v. Glendive, 60 M 1, 197 P 1003 (1921).

Boundary: Under this section, a city has the power to fix the boundary of a special improvement district at any distance from the front line of a street and is not required to include the whole platted area of each lot. Ricker v. Helena, 68 M 350, 218 P 1049 (1923).

Discretion of Council:

In an action to set aside the proceedings of a City Council had in the creation of a special street improvement district and to enjoin the carrying out of a paving contract entered into, on the grounds that the city had joined in one district property abutting on several streets, that the character of work to be done on one street was different from that to be done on others, and that property on several streets would not be benefited by the paving on another, proceedings reviewed and held, in view of the power lodged in the City Council by this section to include in one district and in one contract any number of streets, any kind of work, etc., that the Council did not abuse its discretion. Ricker v. Helena, 68 M 350, 218 P 1049 (1923).

The City Council as a special tribunal to conduct the hearing is clothed with limited powers only, and no presumption in favor of its jurisdiction will be indulged. The statute measures its authority, and compliance with the terms of the statute is a condition precedent to the right to act. Johnston v. Hardin, 55 M 574, 179 P 824 (1919).

Departure From Resolution: Under a resolution of intention to create a special improvement district for the purpose of paving streets, with the necessary excavations, cutting, filling, etc., and "incidental work", held that defendant city was properly enjoined from entering into a contract the provisions of which departed substantially from the purposes set forth in the resolution, in that they included reduction in the street widths and the construction of new parking, curbing, and storm sewers, each of which constitutes a distinct city improvement under this section, and none of which was therefore subject to inclusion under the term "incidental work". Evans v. Helena, 60 M 577, 199 P 445 (1921).

Substantial Compliance: A resolution passed by the Town Council reciting the creation of an improvement district and that the resolution should be deemed one of intention to create, and creating it, followed by a description of its boundaries and of the character of the proposed improvements, with an estimate of the cost, etc., and that objections to its creation and the final adoption of the resolution would be heard in a certain place at a given time, held to have been in substantial compliance with statutory provisions. Harvey v. Townsend, 57 M 407, 188 P 897 (1920).

Boundary Description Incorrect: Where a resolution of intention to create a special improvement district described the boundaries of an entirely different district from that referred to in the notice served upon the owner of property affected, the City Council did not acquire jurisdiction to proceed with the improvement. Johnston v. Hardin, 55 M 574, 179 P 824 (1919).

Necessary Steps to Create Districts: The successive steps necessary to be taken by a City Council in the creation of special improvement district are: (1) the adoption of a resolution of intention; (2) the service of the required notice; (3) a hearing and determination against protests; and (4) the passage of a resolution creating the district. The first three of these steps are jurisdictional, and a failure to take any one of them is fatal to the proceedings. Johnston v. Hardin, 55 M 574, 179 P 824 (1919); Shapard v. Missoula, 49 M 269, 141 P 544 (1914).

Creation of District Without Resolution of Intention: Before a special improvement district can be created, the City Council must pass a resolution of intention to do so, give notice of its passage, etc. Where the Council, in an endeavor to create such a district, passed a resolution which proclaimed the creation of the district and an intention to assess the property liable for the cost of the improvement, the proceedings were void in limine for want of a proper resolution of intention. Cooper v. Bozeman, 54 M 277, 169 P 801 (1917).

Description of Boundaries: By a resolution to create a special improvement district described as being bounded by certain lots, such lots were not incorporated in but excluded from the proposed district. Lewistown v. Warr, 52 M 353, 157 P 953 (1916).

Purpose of Boundary Description: Proceedings for the imposition of a special improvement tax are in invitum, and before property can be held subject to the burden, it must be described with sufficient certainty that the owner cannot be misled, it being the intention of the statute that the resolution of intention shall contain a description of the proposed district by a line which marks its exterior boundaries. Lewistown v. Warr, 52 M 353, 157 P 953 (1916).

Resolution of Intention — Primary Step: The resolution of intention is the primary step to be taken in every instance and is the basis of the whole proceeding, the omission of which is fatal and renders all the subsequent proceedings nugatory. Shapard v. Missoula, 49 M 269, 141 P 544 (1914).

Amendment effective March 24, 1995.

Applicability: Section 16, Ch. 229, L. 1995, provided: "[This act] applies to all special improvement districts and rural special improvement districts created after [the effective date of this act] and, at the option of the city, town, or county, to bonds and warrants issued after [the effective date of this act], if the district was created before [the effective date of this act]." Effective March 24, 1995.

1985 Amendment: In (3), inserted "describe generally the method or methods by which the costs of the improvements will be assessed", before "protests" inserted "written", after "making" inserted "or acquisition", inserted last sentence requiring that notice state exact purchase price if proposal is for purchase of an existing improvement, and made minor changes in punctuation and phraseology.

Case Notes

Notice:

Landowners who appear before the City Council to protest the establishment of an improvement district do not thereby waive their right to restrain its establishment on the ground of defective publication of notice. Guffey v. Helena, 140 M 211, 369 P2d 803 (1962).

Parties who have either received notice or waived it by appearing to protest may not take advantage of the failure of notice to other parties who have neither protested nor appeared as parties to the suit. Shaw v. Kalispell, 135 M 284, 340 P2d 523 (1959), explained in Guffey v. Helena, 140 M 211, 369 P2d 803 (1962).

This section does not require the City Clerk to mail copies of the required notice to persons who are neither record owners nor personally known owners of an interest in property in the district, since they have been careless in failing to record their ownership. Shaw v. Kalispell, 135 M 284, 340 P2d 523 (1959), explained in Guffey v. Helena, 140 M 211, 369 P2d 803 (1962).

Failure of the notice mentioned in this section to refer to the resolution for a description of boundaries is insufficient to vitiate the proceedings. (See 1995 amendment as to notice requirements.) Harvey v. Townsend, 57 M 407, 188 P 897 (1920).

The caption of a notice is not part of the notice itself and cannot be looked to to supply any deficiency in the notice. Johnston v. Hardin, 55 M 574, 179 P 824 (1919).

In the absence of the statutory notice of the City Council's intention to create a special improvement district, plaintiff property owner was not called upon to act, an inference deducible from his complaint that he had actual knowledge that his property was to be included in the proposed district being insufficient. Johnston v. Hardin, 55 M 574, 179 P 824 (1919).

Publication of a notice of intention to create a special improvement district, which contained the proper reference to time and place for hearing objections to its final adoption, was sufficient. Allen v. Butte, 55 M 205, 175 P 595 (1918).

Purpose of Resolution: The essential purpose of a resolution of intention is to: (1) apprise the taxpayers that the city intends to propose a special improvement district; (2) describe the area that will be encompassed in the district; (3) describe the type and character of improvements that will be included within the district; and (4) state the cost of the improvements to be made. Koich v. Helena, 132 M 194, 315 P2d 811 (1957).

Failure to Mail Notice: A special improvement district for the purpose of raising funds was void where one of the property owners affected was not mailed a notice. Wood v. Kalispell, 131 M 390, 310 P2d 1058 (1957).

Newspaper Publishing Five Days a Week Considered a Daily: The provision "must be published for five days in a daily newspaper" was met by publication for 5 consecutive days in a paper, which 5 days constituted all its publications for a week, it having been held that a newspaper published 5 days in the week is a "daily" in the popular sense. (See 1995 amendment.) Hansen v. Havre, 112 M 207, 114 P2d 1053 (1941).

Sufficiency of Resolution: Besides those requirements enumerated in 7-12-4104, the City Commission must take two additional steps under this section to have a valid resolution of intention for an "extended" district. Smith v. Bozeman, 144 M 528, 398 P2d 462 (1965).

Purpose of Assessment: Where a district was created for the purpose of paying for improvements at intersections as authorized by this section and another district was created under 7-12-4167 to defray the cost of the street where it abuts on privately owned property, there was in no sense double taxation. The assessments were for different purposes. One assessment was to raise money to defray the cost of the intersections and the other to defray the cost of the street where it abuts on privately owned property. Bidlingmeyer v. Deer Lodge, 128 M 292, 274 P2d 821 (1954).

Public Benefit: In an action to recover improvement taxes paid under protest, held that, this section not so providing, a resolution of intention to create an extended improvement district including lots not fronting on the improvement, for the purpose of installing water mains and fire protection apparatus, need not recite that the contemplated work was of more than local or ordinary public benefit, the adoption of the resolution being a sufficient finding that in the opinion of the City Council the proposed improvement was of that character. *Almas v. Case Notes

Determination of Area of Protest: The phrase, "the area of the property to be assessed", as used in this section to describe those persons entitled to protest creation of an improvement district, depends upon the method of assessment used by the city under 7-12-4161. Smith v. Bozeman, 144 M 528, 398 P2d 462 (1965).

Property Owned by City Also to Be Computed: In determining whether a given percentage of the owners of property affected by a proposed special improvement have filed protests against it, the City or Town Council is authorized by this section to take into consideration property owned by it and included in the district, such property being subject to assessment therefor the same as privately owned property. Ricker v. Helena, 68 M 350, 218 P 1049 (1923).

Withdrawal From Protest: A property owner in a city who has signed a protest against the creation of a special improvement district may, within the time allowed for presenting such protest, withdraw therefrom and thus defeat the protest. Hawley v. Butte, 53 M 411, 164 P 305 (1917).

Sufficiency of Protest: An alleged protest to street paving, filed by abutting owners, stating the reasons why they did not desire the paving done during a certain year and stating that they were willing to have the street paved 2 years later and that payment therefor should be required in three annual installments, was not an unqualified protest to the paving. *McMillan v. Waiver of Claim for Damages: By failure of an objecting property owner to give notice of defects or irregularities in the proceedings to the Council within 60 days after the contract for the work is let, he waives all claim for damages under this section. *Harvey v. Vacation of Street by Mayor-Council Government — Legal Effect on City's Interest in Street: Under this section, a municipality has the authority to close all or part of a street to through traffic without giving up its legal interest in the street or to vacate all or part of the street and revoke its legal interest in it. A municipality with a mayor-council form of government is bound by the procedures in this section rather than by 7-3-4448, which applies only to commission-manager forms of government, when it seeks to discontinue, close, or vacate a street. The choice between vacating a street and closing a street is a matter for the discretion of the municipal officers of a mayor-council form of government. 46 A.G. Op. 4 (1995), clarifying *Wynia v. Sewer District Not Local Self-Governing Unit: The lower court granted a multicounty sewer district's motion for summary judgment, ruling that the district had the right to impose hookup inspection fees on the appellant, Seypar, Inc. Seypar, Inc., argued that the district did not have the authority to impose the fee against individual property owners and that the cost should have been assessed against the whole district. The Supreme Court ruled that although state law gave the district the same administrative powers as County Commissioners have over a single county sewer district, those powers are not the same as a local self-governing unit and therefore the district did not have the authority to exercise any power not prohibited by Montana law. The Supreme Court stated that since the district was not self-governing, it could not argue that the statutes relating to municipal districts applied to it by analogy. The Supreme Court held that the district did have the power to impose hookup fees under 7-12-2151. Seypar, Inc. v. Water & Sewer District No. 363, 1998 MT 149, 289 M 263, 960 P2d 311, 55 St. Rep. 578 (1998).

Amendment effective October 1, 2001.

1993 Amendment: Chapter 250 at beginning of (1) inserted exception clause; in first sentence of (3) changed time for opening bids from not less than 10 days to not less than 5 days or more than 12 days and inserted second sentence requiring elapse of 15 days if advertisement is made by posting; inserted (4) requiring that certain conversion work be done by the responsible public utility; and made minor changes in style. 1985 Amendment: In (1), substituted "of making or acquiring" for "of the making of", inserted "including incidental expenses", and "for each improvement to be made or acquired for the benefit of the district"; and in (2) substituted language allowing city council to use multiple methods of assessment and to have flexibility in assessing for more than one improvement for "The method of assessment provided for in 7-12-4163 shall not apply to assessments in improvement districts created under the provisions of 7-12-4109."

Case Notes

Method of Assessment: Since there is a direct correlation between this section and 7-12-4112, as expressed in the phrase, "the area of the property to be assessed", the method of assessment used by the city governs the basis for determining those persons entitled to protest creation of an improvement district. Smith v. Bozeman, 144 M 528, 398 P2d 462 (1965).

Double Taxation: Where a district was created for the purpose of paying for improvements at intersections as authorized by 7-12-4109 and another district was created to defray the cost of the street under this section, there was in no sense double taxation. The assessments were for different purposes. One assessment was to raise money to defray the cost of the intersections and the other to defray the cost of the street where it abuts on privately owned property. Bidlingmeyer v. Deer Lodge, 128 M 292, 274 P2d 821 (1954).

1993 Amendment: Chapter 269 inserted (3) allowing each lot or parcel of land to be assessed an equal amount of the cost of the improvement.

1987 Codification: Section 5, Ch. 631, L. 1987, concerning city council or city commission assessment of the cost of an improvement, was codified as subsection (2) of 7-12-4162.

1985 Amendment: In (1), in first sentence substituted "an improvement against benefited property in the district" for "such improvements against the entire district", before "within such district" inserted "assessed", inserted "assessable" in two places, inserted "all benefited lots or parcels in", and inserted second and third sentences defining assessable area and providing size limitations of assessable area; in (2) before "property" inserted "benefited"; and in (3) in two places before "land", inserted "benefited".

Case Notes

Failure to Prove Mistake or Fraud in City Determination of Boundary of Special Improvement District — Summary Judgment Proper: The city of Missoula included plaintiffs' property in a storm sewer drainage special improvement district, and plaintiffs filed a complaint, alleging that pursuant to this section, they could not be included in the special improvement district absent some benefit to them from the proposed system. The District Court heard contradicting evidence on the question of benefit, but concluded that plaintiffs failed to produce evidence of mistake or fraud as required in Stevens v. Missoula, 205 M 274, 667 P2d 440 (1983), and summarily dismissed plaintiffs' complaint. The Supreme Court affirmed. Under Stevens, a city's determination of benefit and creation of special improvement district boundaries is conclusive absent proof of mistake or fraud that precludes the exercise of sound judgment. Plaintiffs did not satisfy the threshold requirement in Stevens and thus could not prevail even if the facts articulated in the complaint were true. Enger v. Missoula, 2001 MT 142, 306 M 28, 29 P3d 514 (2001).

Estoppel to Protest: The question of estoppel under 7-12-4176 does not preclude a property owner from protesting a figure used as the "assessable area" in a resolution of intention for purposes of determining the sufficiency of the protest under 7-12-4113, since it applies only to the actual assessment as stated in the resolution of assessment. Smith v. Bozeman, 144 M 528, 398 P2d 462 (1965).

1993 Special Session Amendment: Chapter 27 in (1), near end, substituted "department of revenue" for "county assessor of the county in which such city or town is situated"; in (2) substituted "The department of revenue shall enter the special assessments and taxes upon the property tax record for the county" for "The county assessor shall thereupon enter same upon the assessment roll of the county"; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective January 1, 1994.

Applicability: Section 171(2), Ch. 27, Sp. L. November 1993, provided that the amendments to this section apply to tax years after December 31, 1993.

Collection by City Treasurer: Assessments for special city improvements which under this section the County Treasurer is required to collect, held to fall within the meaning of the words "tax" and "taxes" as employed in 7-6-4413, making it the duty of the County Treasurer to collect city taxes where a city has not imposed that duty upon its own Treasurer. *State ex rel. Attorney General's Opinions

Application of Sale Proceeds to Delinquent Special Improvement District Assessments: A County Treasurer may not require delinquent special improvement district assessments to be paid in addition to the sale price of tax deed land because when a tax deed is issued, special assessment liens that were due and payable at that time are extinguished. However, the County Treasurer must apply the sale proceeds of the land to delinquent assessments, as provided in 7-8-2306. 45 A.G. Op. 24 (1994).

Acceleration of Future Installments of Special Assessments Upon Delinquency: A city whose taxes are collected by the county has statutory authority to accelerate future installments of special assessments when one installment becomes delinquent. 42 A.G. Op. 82 (1988).

Payment of Delinquent Taxes, Including Special Assessments, to Effect Assignment of Rights: Under 15-17-303 (since repealed), an assignee must pay the amount for which the property was bid at the tax sale, and no provision is included for an assignment following partial payment of the delinquent general taxes, excluding unpaid special assessments, which are treated the same as general taxes under 7-12-4183. Therefore, a city must pay all delinquent taxes, including special assessments, to a county to effect an assignment of the rights of the county in property struck off following a tax sale. 41 A.G. Op. 77 (1986).

Payment of Special Assessments Due Prior to Deed Issuance: Following the issuance of a tax deed to a county, the county is not responsible for payment of delinquent special assessments, accelerated under authority of 7-12-4183, due prior to issuance of the deed. 41 A.G. Op. 77 (1986).

1985 Amendment: In (1), after “cost of” inserted “acquiring or” and after “years” deleted “payments to be made in equal annual installments”; inserted (2) relating to payment in installments; and inserted (3) relating to prepayment of assessments.

Assessments to Include Interest to Maturity: Special improvement district bonds are not general obligations of the city, and their payment is strictly limited to the fund provided by statute and ordinance; the lien of the assessments extends to each lot or parcel of land separately and not jointly, and payment thereof on one lot or issue of tax deed thereon discharges the lien thereon; assessments upon property in the district must, under this section, include the interest on the bonds to maturity, as part of the cost of such improvements. *State ex rel. 7-12-4191. Assessments and certain other charges as liens.

Case Notes

Tax Deed of Special Improvement Assessments Payable Before Execution: A general tax lien and a special improvement assessment lien are not of equal rank. Support of government is higher obligation than cost of local improvement. Where a special assessment for city improvement became delinquent on November 30, 1940, and was certified by the city to the County Clerk on December 7, 1940, and by the County Treasurer entered upon the tax rolls as a lien against the property, a county tax deed issued on December 23, 1940, extinguished the lien for the 1940 installment of the city special improvement assessment, because under 15-18-309 (since repealed) such assessment installment was payable before execution of the tax deed. Hartman v. Nimmack, 116 M 392, 154 P2d 279 (1944), cited in First Trust Co. of Mont. v. Great Falls, 256 M 390, 845 P2d 1227, 50 St. Rep. 45 (1993).

Extinguishment of Lien: Under our statutory provisions with relation to special improvements in cities and towns, any special assessment made and levied to defray the cost and expenses of special improvements constitutes a lien upon all property included in an improvement district, but under the provisions of 15-18-403 (since repealed), such a lien is extinguished by the issuance of a tax deed on sale of the property for delinquent taxes. Stanley v. Jeffries, 86 M 114, 284 P 134 (1929); State ex rel. Great Falls v. Jeffries, 83 M 111, 270 P 638 (1928).

Commencement of Lien: Where the City Council had acquired jurisdiction to order a special improvement and levy the assessment to pay for it, the assessment became a lien against the property benefited by it from the date the assessment became due, not affected by the circumstance that plaintiffs had recovered judgments against the city for damages caused by the improvement. Allen v. Butte, 55 M 205, 175 P 595 (1918).

City Obligation to Make Revolving Fund Loans and Levy Taxes to Discharge Special Improvement District Bonds: When a city has established a revolving fund to secure payments on special improvement district (SID) bonds and when an SID fund does not have sufficient amounts to make payments on its bonds, the city must continue to make loans from the revolving fund to the SID fund and continue to levy the property tax in accordance with 7-12-4222 until the obligations on all bonds and warrants in the SID are discharged. 42 A.G. 1985 Amendment: In first sentence inserted "acquisition or" and "or incurred in the issuance of the bonds or warrants of the district, including incidental expenses".

Case Notes

No Power to Assess Expenses Apart From Bond Sale: Under this statute, a city does not have the authority to levy special improvement district assessments against property for incidental expenses of anticipated improvements when the improvements are not constructed on the property by the city. The statute clearly provides that creation costs shall be payable by special improvement district bonds. Assessments for special improvements must be in proportion to the benefits conferred by the improvement. Tocci v. Three Forks, 216 M 159, 700 P2d 171, 42 St. Rep. 720 (1985).

Issuance of Bonds at Discount: City Council has no power to issue bonds or warrants at a discount in payment of special improvement work, and a contract let to one who in making out his bid took into consideration the fact that the warrants he would receive were worth only 90 cents on the dollar and therefore added 10% to the actual cost was invalid as an attempt to do indirectly what the Council was prohibited from doing directly. *Evans v. 2003 Amendment: Chapter 277 deleted former (3) that read: "(3) As used in part 41 and this part, unless the context clearly indicates otherwise, the following definitions apply:

(a) "Amortization bonds" means the form of bonds that bear interest at a fixed rate and on which:

- (i) a part of the principal must be paid each time that interest becomes payable;
- (ii) the part payment of principal increases at each installment in the same amount that the interest decreases;
- (iii) the combined interest and principal due on each due date remains the same until the bonds are paid;

(iv) the final payment may vary from prior payments in the amount resulting from disregarding fractional costs in prior payments; and

(v) the initial payment may be larger than subsequent payments if the increase represents interest accrued over an additional period not greater than 6 months.

(b) "Serial bonds" means a bond issue payable in semiannual or annual installments commencing not more than 2 years from the date of issue, any one installment consisting of one or more bonds, with the principal amount of bonds maturing in each installment not exceeding five times the principal amount of the bonds maturing in the immediately preceding installment." Amendment effective July 1, 2003.

2001 Amendment: Chapter 162 in (1)(a) inserted last two sentences providing that bonds or warrants sold at a private, negotiated sale may bear interest at a rate varying at times and on terms determined by the governing body of the municipality and allowing the terms to include a maximum interest rate or convertibility to a fixed rate; inserted (1)(b) stating when variable rate bonds may be sold at a private, negotiated sale; in (1)(c) in second sentence substituted "may bear the corporate seal" for "must bear the corporate seal"; in (3) in definition of amortization bonds in introductory clause inserted "that bear interest at a fixed rate and" and in definition of serial bonds near beginning substituted "semiannual or annual installments" for "annual installments"; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective March 28, 2001.

1997 Amendment: Chapter 459 deleted former (3) that read: "(3) All special improvement district bonds must be amortization bonds unless, in the judgment of the city council, serial bonds will be more advantageous to the district and can be sold at a comparatively reasonable rate or rates of interest"; and made minor changes in style.

1989 Amendments: Chapter 256 in (2) inserted last sentence relating to when the term of a bond commences; in (4)(b) substituted definition of serial bonds for former language that read: "'Serial bonds' means the form of bonds that are payable in annual installments and on which the amount maturing each year may not be more than three times the principal amount of bonds maturing in any previous year"; and made minor changes in phraseology. Amendment effective March 23, 1989.

Chapter 449 in (2), in first sentence, after "years", inserted clause authorizing a 30-year period for refunding bonds; in (4)(b) increased the annual maturity amount to five times from three times the principal amount from the previous year; and made minor changes in phraseology. Amendment effective April 5, 1989.

7-12-4206. Redemption of bonds and warrants.Compiler's Comments

1995 Amendment: Chapter 423 at end of (1) substituted "as provided in the resolution authorizing the issuance of the bonds" for "in order of registration, on any interest payment date"; in first sentence of (2) extended redemption date from 10 days after notice to 30 days after notice; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective April 13, 1995.

Applicability: Section 53, Ch. 423, L. 1995, provided: "[This act] applies to bonds issued under the provisions of [this act] after [the effective date of this act]." Effective April 13, 1995.

1985 Amendment: In (1) substituted "Special improvement district warrants or bonds shall be redeemed on any interest payment date from the proceeds of the bonds or warrants remaining after payment of all costs of the improvements, as provided in 7-12-4205, or from the prepayment of assessments levied in the district. Special improvement district bonds or warrants are subject to redemption and prepayment at the option of the city, in order of registration, on any interest payment date" for "The warrants or bonds shall be redeemed by the treasurer when there is money in the special improvement district fund against which the warrants or bonds are drawn, on presentation of the coupons belonging thereto, and any money remaining shall be applied to the payment of the principal and the redemption of the warrants or bonds in the order of their registration"; in (2), deleted former first sentence that read: "Whenever there is any money in any special improvement district fund after paying the interest on the warrants or bonds drawn against the fund, the treasurer shall call in for payment outstanding warrants or bonds which, together with the interest thereon to the date of redemption, will equal the amount of the fund on that date", in first sentence substituted "mailing of notice" for "of service of notice", in second sentence, after "give", deleted "notice by publication once in a newspaper published in the city or, at the option of the treasurer, by", and inserted "to be redeemed" in two places, and inserted last sentence requiring Treasurer to publish notice of redemption if addresses of holders of bonds or warrants are not known.

Case Notes

Where Action Held Maintainable to Recover on Warrants Paid Out of Order by County Treasurer: While the rule as to a city's liability to warrant holders damaged by reason of their warrants being paid out of order does not generally apply to county warrants, held, that where the County Commissioners created a special improvement district within an unincorporated town for the installation of waterworks, the county assumed the same duties as rest upon incorporated cities and towns and therefore was properly held liable for damage sustained by a holder of warrants not paid in the order of registration when the special fund became exhausted, and holder could presume Treasurer would do his duty by calling and giving notice. Witter v. Phillips County, 111 M 352, 109 P2d 56 (1941).

Mandamus to Pay Principal Held Up for Payment of Interest After Maturity: Where court refused mandamus proceedings on the ground that under this section the Treasurer was required to first pay all the accrued interest on outstanding bonds before payment of any principal, held, on appeal, that assessments could not provide a fund for payment of interest after maturity of the bonds and that plaintiff was entitled to payment of the principal of the bond sued upon but not to interest accrued thereon after maturity. State ex rel. Griffith v. Shelby, 107 M 571, 87 P2d 183 (1939).

Misapplication of Fund by Treasurer: The office of City Treasurer is a continuing one regardless of the person occupying the office at any particular time. The Treasurer is the servant of the city, and where he misapplies trust funds, such as for special improvement purposes, the municipality is liable to the warrant holders. Blackford v. Libby, 103 M 272, 62 P2d 216 (1936).

Statute of Limitations on Recovery — Trust Rule: The Statute of Limitations does not begin to run against registered city warrants or bonds until the City Treasurer calls them for payment or until the holder has an immediate cause of action. Being a trust fund, under the rule that as between trustee and beneficiary of an express and continuing trust, the Statute of Limitations does not begin to run until trust is repudiated and the beneficiary has received notice. Blackford v. Libby, 103 M 272, 62 P2d 216 (1936), distinguished as to creation of a trust and tolling of the statute of limitations in Samson v. St., 285 M 310, 948 P2d 232, 54 St. Rep. 1165 (1997).

1993 Amendment: Chapter 10 near middle of (1) deleted reference to Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corporation; and made minor changes in style.

1985 Amendment: Near middle of (1), after "bank", inserted "savings and loan association, or credit union", and after "corporation", inserted "federal savings and loan insurance corporation, or national credit union administration".

7-12-4221. Creation of special improvement district revolving fund.Compiler's Comments

Case Notes

Bond Issues — Payment: Where a special improvement district was established under 7-12-4102 and bonds were issued "payable from the collection of the special tax or assessment which is a lien against the real estate within said improvement district", the bonds were not a general obligation of the town and the town could not be compelled to redeem the bonds from a water fund made up of water rentals from water users, even though the town may have had authority to make payments from such fund. State ex rel. Truax v. Lima, 121 M 152, 193 P2d 1008 (1948).

Constitutionality — Validity as to Districts Created in Future, Invalidity as to Those Established in the Past: Contention that 7-12-4221 through 7-12-4228, referring to the matter of special improvement district revolving funds, are in conflict with Art. XIII, sec. 1, 1889 Mont. Const.; contravene Art. V, sec. 26, 1889 Mont. Const.; and conflict with Art. XII, sec. 11, 1889 Mont. Const. (now Art V, sec. 9, 1972 Mont. Amendment effective March 24, 1995.

Applicability: Section 16, Ch. 229, L. 1995, provided: "[This act] applies to all special improvement districts and rural special improvement districts created after [the effective date of this act] and, at the option of the city, town, or county, to bonds and warrants issued after [the effective date of this act], if the district was created before [the effective date of this act]." Effective March 24, 1995.

1983 Amendment: In (1)(b) in the middle and at the end, inserted "secured thereby" following "special improvement district bonds and warrants"; and in (2) inserted "secured by the revolving fund" after "any bond or warrant of such district" near beginning and after "alley approach warrants" near end.

1981 Amendments: Chapter 308 substituted the last two sentences of (1)(b) concerning when a tax may not be levied and, if levied, the amount permitted for "such levy, together with such transfer, not to exceed in any one year 5% of the principal amount of the then-outstanding special improvement district bonds or sidewalk, curb, and alley approach warrants".

Chapter 435 inserted (1)(a)(ii) relating to deposit of up to 5% in revolving fund.

2001 Amendment: Chapter 162 at end inserted sentence stating that the loan must be made even if, in the case of bonds or warrants bearing interest at a variable rate, the interest rate on the special assessments when the loan is made is less than or later becomes less than the interest rate on the bonds or warrants. Amendment effective March 28, 2001.

1995 Amendment: Chapter 229 at beginning of first sentence inserted "During the period described in 7-12-4225(2)" and near middle, after "fund", inserted "after a transfer from the appropriate district reserve account, if established"; at end of second sentence substituted "and money available in the district fund" for "when added to such insufficient amount, as the case may require"; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective March 24, 1995.

Applicability: Section 16, Ch. 229, L. 1995, provided: "[This act] applies to all special improvement districts and rural special improvement districts created after [the effective date of this act] and, at the option of the city, town, or county, to bonds and warrants issued after [the effective date of this act], if the district was created before [the effective date of this act]." Effective March 24, 1995.

1983 Amendment: In first sentence, inserted "which are secured by the revolving fund".

Case Notes

"May" to Mean "Must": The provision of this section "may, by order of the council be loaned" out of the special improvement revolving fund, held mandatory, the word "may" meaning "must", thus leaving no discretion in the city officials or their successors. (See 2001 amendment.) Hansen v. Havre, 112 M 207, 114 P2d 1053 (1941).

Unconstitutional in Part: Chapter 24, L. 1929 (7-12-4221 through 7-12-4228), insofar as it authorizes cities to assume liabilities for losses suffered by holders of special improvement bonds and warrants issued prior to the passage of the act, amounts to a reimbursement of the holders of such losses and is violative of Art. XII, sec. 11, 1889 Mont. Const. (now Art. V, sec. 9, 1972 Mont. Const.). Stanley v. Jeffries, 86 M 114, 284 P 134 (1929).

Part Case Notes

Benefit of Improvement to Be Commensurate With Burden of Levy: Although the creation of a sanitary and storm sewer district under the statutes was not challenged, appellant landowner challenged the creation of the district on the grounds that the burden imposed by the improvement tax to be levied exceeded the benefit to the property. As the property value after the improvement would increase from $500 per acre to $1,500 per acre, the trial court's finding that the benefit was commensurate with the burden was upheld. *Duffie v. (2) Garbage and ash collection districts outside a municipality must become a solid waste district or part of an existing solid waste district upon passage of a resolution by the county commission.

(3) (a) The resolution must provide for compliance with the provisions of Title 7, chapter 13, part 2.

(b) If the boundaries and service charges for the new district remain the same as for the garbage and ash collection district, notice of intention or right to protest, as provided in 7-13-208 through 7-13-211, need not be provided."

Part Case Notes

Estoppel for Late Challenge to District's Creation: Residents of a joint refuse disposal district established by three counties were estopped from challenging the creation of the district more than 5 years after its creation. Public policy required estoppel. To invalidate the district would cause considerable confusion. Such things as taxes, bonds, and contracts related to the district need to be secure, and the public depended on the district. Hammermeister v. N. Mont. Joint Refuse Disposal District, 278 M 464, 925 P2d 859, 53 St. Rep. 1009 (1996).

Establishment of District by County With Self-Governing Power: Title 7, ch. 13, part 2, is not mandatory upon a county charter form of government when it establishes a refuse disposal district (now solid waste management district) and system. That part applies to the establishment of a refuse disposal district (now solid waste management district) by governments that are of general power status, not those with self-government status. Title 7, ch. 13, part 2, does not direct or require a local government to provide a service within the meaning of 7-1-114. Clopton v. Madison County Comm'n, 216 M 335, 701 P2d 347, 42 St. Rep. 851 (1985).

Part Attorney General's Opinions

School District Not Exempt From Payment of Solid Waste Management District Assessments: Article VIII, sec. 5, Mont. Const., authorizes the Legislature to exempt state property from taxation, and 15-6-201 exempts school district property from taxation. However, taxation does not generally include special assessments or user fees. The purpose of a solid waste management district assessment is to recoup the costs of providing infrastructure and services that directly and tangibly benefit affected properties, not to raise general revenue or fund other programs. Therefore, solid waste management district assessments are not considered taxes within the meaning of 15-6-201. School district properties are not exempt from paying reasonable solid waste management fees that do not exceed the cost of waste management services. 48 A.G. Op. 21 (2000). See also 46 A.G. Op. 7 (1995).

No County Obligation to Provide Waste Disposal and Landfill Services to Towns: Under 7-11-104 and 7-13-203, a county has no legal obligation to provide solid waste disposal and landfill services to towns that have used the county landfill on a charge-per-load basis if there is no refuse disposal district (now solid waste management district) or interlocal agreement between the towns and county to provide those services. 43 A.G. Op. 1 (1989).

Nonusers Within District as "Receiving a Service" — Liability for Assessment: A property owner is "receiving a service", as that phrase is used in 7-13-231, for the purposes of fee assessment under this part whether or not the property owner is actually using facilities. 40 A.G. Op. 22 (1983). This holding was applied specifically to solid waste management districts in 44 A.G. Op. 28 (1992).

Attorney General's Opinions

Solid Waste District Not Special Taxing District or Political Subdivision: Under the rationale of 17-5-1604 and 42 A.G. Op. 80 (1988), a refuse disposal district (now solid waste management district) has no independent governing body and therefore does not fall within the definition of "special taxing district". Further, under the rationale of 43 A.G. Op. 56 (1990), because a refuse board (now solid waste management district board) is not a separate and independent body and has not been delegated supervisory authority over a refuse disposal district (now solid waste management district), a refuse disposal district (now solid waste management district) cannot be considered a political subdivision, as that term is used in 17-5-1604. 43 A.G. Attorney General's Opinions

County Powers Not Inclusive of Legislative Powers — Closing of County Incinerator Considered Administrative Act Not Subject to Initiative and Referendum: Absent a charter granting self-government powers, a county that exercises only general powers is limited to whatever powers that the Legislature expressly or impliedly grants. Even though the Montana Constitution extends initiative and referendum authority to voters of local government entities, that power is limited to the local government's legislative authorization. Beyond basic corporate powers exercised by a Board of County Commissioners, a general government county functions through administrative boards, districts, and commissions created under specific statutory authority. In this case, Park County created an administrative refuse district and subsequently closed the county-owned incinerator. The closing of the incinerator was subject to the powers of initiative and referendum only if it was within the county's legislative jurisdiction. However, the incinerator closing was an administrative rather than legislative act and thus was not subject to initiative and referendum. 50 A.G. Op. 8 (2004).

No County Obligation to Provide Waste Disposal and Landfill Services to Towns: Under 7-11-104 and this section, a county has no legal obligation to provide solid waste disposal and landfill services to towns that have used the county landfill on a charge-per-load basis if there is no refuse disposal district (now solid waste management district) or interlocal agreement between the towns and county to provide those services. 43 A.G. County Commission's Approval Power — Withdrawal of Approval: A county refuse board (now solid waste management district board) contracted with an individual to operate a sanitary landfill. Because the individual failed to obtain an operator's license, the County Commissioners were exposed to possible liability. The withdrawal of approval was proper under the circumstances. The Board of County Commissioners' express power of approval is complemented by the implied power to withhold approval upon a showing of adequate cause. A logical extension of an implied power to withhold approval is an implied power to withdraw approval. Ryan v. Bd. of County Comm'rs, 190 M 273, 620 P2d 1203, 37 St. Rep. 1965 (1980).

Rescission of Landfill Operation Contract — Operator Unlicensed: The county refuse board (now solid waste management district board) contracted with an individual to operate a landfill. Because the individual failed to comply with the statutory and contractual requirements to obtain a license to operate the landfill, the Department of Health Solid Waste Management Bureau began refusing to lift sanitary restrictions on proposed subdivisions in the area. The refusal prevented the approval of those subdivisions and thereby exposed the County Commissioners to potential liability. Because there was a failure of consideration through the fault of the individual, the Commissioners properly rescinded the contract. *Ryan v. School District Not Exempt From Payment of Solid Waste Management District Assessments: Article VIII, sec. 5, Mont. Const., authorizes the Legislature to exempt state property from taxation, and 15-6-201 exempts school district property from taxation. However, taxation does not generally include special assessments or user fees. The purpose of a solid waste management district assessment is to recoup the costs of providing infrastructure and services that directly and tangibly benefit affected properties, not to raise general revenue or fund other programs. Therefore, solid waste management district assessments are not considered taxes within the meaning of 15-6-201. School district properties are not exempt from paying reasonable solid waste management fees that do not exceed the cost of waste management services. 48 A.G. Op. 21 (2000). See also 46 A.G. Op. 7 (1995).

Attorney General's Opinions

Enactment of Local Government Ordinance Providing That Delinquent Solid Waste Service Charges Become Lien on Property Served: A city-county charter that provided that levies for special services were the obligation of the property owners was not in conflict with state constitutional powers delegated to local governments or with state law governing local governments, nor was it inconsistent with state provisions in an area affirmatively subjected to state control. Therefore, a local government with self-governing powers may enact an ordinance that provides that delinquent solid waste management service charges become a lien on the property served, consistent with the remedy available to a solid waste management district for collecting its delinquent service charges under this section. 44 A.G. Op. 34 (1992).

Issuance of Revenue Bonds Payable From Service Charges Not Allowed: The restrictive language of 7-13-308(1)(a) prohibits a joint solid waste management district from issuing revenue bonds payable from service charges placed on property tax notices to property owners and collected with property taxes. 44 A.G. Op. 19 (1991).

Collection of Entire Annual Refuse District Fee During Initial Year of Operation: The entire annual refuse district (now solid waste management district) fee may be collected on tax notices due in the initial year of district operation even though services will be provided for only a portion of the calendar year. 43 A.G. Op. 78 (1990).

Failure to Pay Disposal Fee Subjects Property to Tax Sale: The nonpayment of a refuse disposal (now solid waste disposal) fee by someone receiving a service from a refuse disposal district (now solid waste management district) constitutes a lien upon the underlying real property, and that property thereby becomes subject to a tax sale under the proceedings provided in Title 15, ch. 17. 40. A.G. Op. 45 (1984).

Tax Notices for Service Charges Not to Be Mailed Until Service Actually Begun: Under the language of the applicable statutes, the fee for the services of a refuse disposal district (now solid waste management district) could not be charged until the services of the district had commenced. The fee is to be collected in the same assessment of taxes that is sent to members of the district under this section which provides a schedule for collection beginning in the month that service begins. Tax notices containing the fee may therefore not be mailed until service is begun. (See 1991 amendment.) 40 A.G. Op. 45 (1984).

Joint Solid Waste Management District as Political Subdivision — No Authority to Issue Bonds for Workers' Compensation Reserve Fund: Because a joint solid waste management district has been vested with broad plenary powers that may be exercised independent of a city or county governing body, a joint district must be considered a political subdivision within the meaning of 2-9-211. However, a joint solid waste management district or similar political subdivision does not have specific or express authority under 39-71-403 to participate in workers' compensation plan No. 1 or to issue bonds to establish a workers' compensation self-insurance fund. The bonding authority in 2-9-211 may not be used as a basis for issuance of bonds for the establishment of a reserve fund to guarantee payment of workers' compensation claims. 45 A.G. Op. 22 (1994).

1991 Amendment: In (7), after "purposes", inserted "or sell sewer service" and in two places, after "water", inserted "or sewerworks capacity".

1991 Statement of Intent: The statement of intent attached to Ch. 645, L. 1991, provided: "A statement of intent is provided for this bill because rulemaking authority is delegated to the board of health and environmental sciences [functions now transferred to Department of Natural Resources and Conservation] to prescribe procedures for administrative enforcement actions undertaken by the department of health and environmental sciences [functions now transferred to Department of Natural Resources and Conservation] in administering the public water supply laws, as provided in Title 75, chapter 6, and to develop a fee schedule to enable the department to recover costs in administering these laws. Rulemaking authority is also delegated to the department to develop fees to pay for costs of reviewing plats and subdivisions under the laws related to sanitation in subdivisions, as provided in Title 76, chapter 4. It is the intent of the legislature that the rules establish a reasonable fee schedule that approximates the department's actual and necessary costs.

The legislature anticipates that the department will expand its enforcement activity in order to address ongoing and increasing health problems with public water supply systems and public sewage systems in Montana. In undertaking this effort, the legislature expects that the department will have the option to pursue administrative enforcement as a means of expediting and encouraging compliance with Title 75, chapter 6. Nonetheless, it is the department's duty to clearly inform each violator of:

- (1) the nature of the action taken against it;
- (2) what the department requires to resolve the matter; and
- (3) what legal avenues are available to the violator if he desires to contest the matter.

The legislature recognizes that an economic hardship may be imposed on a public water supply system in order for that system to be brought into compliance with state and federal public water supply laws and that this hardship may be further increased by the levying of administrative and civil penalties for noncompliance. It is the intention of the legislature that the department adopt rules that establish a procedure for the progressive enforcement of this act in which the levying of administrative and civil penalties is a final action. The department may adopt rules that allow for the bypass of the enforcement procedures and the immediate assessment of penalties if specific circumstances warrant this action.

The rules also require the board of health and environmental sciences [functions now transferred to Department of Natural Resources and Conservation] to develop fees for recovery of costs incurred by the department in delivering services to persons who own or operate or intend to own or operate a public water supply system or public sewage system. These costs include costs associated with review of engineering plans and specifications, inspections, and general assistance. To assist the board in developing these rules, the department shall prepare and submit to the board a detailed estimate of projected costs associated with these services for fiscal years 1992 and 1993. The board shall develop a fee schedule that will provide revenues that are commensurate with the projected costs. A similar approach should be used by the department in developing rules setting new fees for review of plats and subdivisions under 76-4-105."

Attorney General's Opinions

Eligibility for Coal Impact Grants: "Local governmental units" eligible to receive impact grants from the Coal Board under 90-6-205 and 90-6-206 include counties, incorporated cities and towns, consolidated local governments, school districts, and any other statutorily created government unit or district empowered to exercise delegated sovereign powers over a defined geographical region of the state; county water and sewer districts; rural improvement districts that include areas of more than one county and have separate governing bodies (counties may apply for grants to pay for rural improvement district expenses); and special improvement districts within cities, towns, and consolidated units. Opinion No. 74, Vol. 36, Official Opinions of the Attorney General, is overruled except that portion excluding Indian tribes from impact grant eligibility. 37 A.G. Op. 22 (1977).

Section Not Codified: Section 16-4521, R.C.M. 1947, was not codified in the MCA, it being redundant with this section. This section has not been repealed and is still valid law. Citation may be made to sec. 21, Ch. 242, L. 1957. See 1-2-208, stating that amendment to a codified provision is given effect over an uncoded provision.

Compiler's Comments

1985 Amendment: At end of (3) changed "7-13-2248" to "7-13-2247".

Attorney General's Opinions

Nonresident Corporate Property Owner Entitled to Vote: Since the election of officers of a district may be combined with the election to create the district, it is clear that the Legislature intended to allow nonresident corporate property owners to participate in the entire election process. 38 A.G. 7-13-2231. District to be governed by board of directors.

Compiler's Comments

2005 Amendment: Chapter 341 in (1) inserted third sentence concerning appointment of directors in certain circumstances. Amendment effective July 1, 2005.

Severability: Section 14, Ch. 341, L. 2005, was a severability clause.

1997 Amendment: Chapter 234 in (1), in second sentence, inserted "conducted by mail ballot, as provided in Title 13, chapter 19, or must be"; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective April 11, 1997.

Case Notes

Jurisdiction of Public Service Commission Over County Water Districts: The board of directors is only intended to displace the County Commissioners' authority with regard to water and sewer functions. The board of directors is empowered to establish rates; however, such rates are subject to review and alteration by the P.S.C. if unjust, unreasonable, or discriminatory. *Helena v. Part 23

County Water and/or Sewer Districts

Continued

Part Compiler's Comments

Severability Clause: Section 2, Ch. 263, L. 1967, was a severability clause.

Part Case Notes

No Duty of County to Collect Delinquent Water and Sewer Charges — Mandamus Denied: A water and sewer district sought a writ of mandamus to compel a county to collect delinquent assessment owed by an individual. This part does not set forth a clear legal duty on the part of the county to collect the delinquent charges. The county can assess taxes sufficient to cover both bonded indebtedness payments and operating expenses, but only after advance notice required by 7-13-2304 through 7-13-2307. Delinquent water and sewer assessments levied against an individual are different from taxes levied against all district property under 7-13-2302. Absent a clear legal duty, mandamus was properly denied. RAE Subdivision County Water & Sewer District v. Gallatin County, 233 M 456, 760 P2d 755, 45 St. Rep. 1631 (1988).

Jurisdiction of Public Service Commission Over County Water Districts: Nothing in 7-13-2201 through 7-13-2348 expressly precludes the review and regulatory process of the P.S.C. pursuant to Title 69. The board of directors is empowered to establish rates; however, such rates are subject to review and alteration by the P.S.C. if unjust, unreasonable, or discriminatory. Helena v. Dept. of Public Service Regulation, 194 M 173, 634 P2d 192, 38 St. Rep. 1560 (1981).

Part Attorney General's Opinions

County Water District Subject to Single Audit Act: A county water district is a local government entity and is thus subject to the requirements of the State of Montana Single Audit Act, Title 2, ch. 7, part 5. The requirement applies whether or not the county water district has accepted local, state, or federal funds during the year. 50 A.G. Op. 3 (2003).

Federal Revenue Sharing Funds — Allocation by Board of County Commissioners: The Board of County Commissioners of a county which has not adopted a self-government form of local government may not make a grant of federal revenue sharing funds to individual county residents for the purpose of creating a water district under Title 7, ch. 13, parts 22 and 23, because there is no express or necessarily implied authority under which such a grant could be made and because the statutes provide a different mechanism for the creation and funding of a water district. 39 A.G. Op. 6 (1981).

1995 Amendment: Chapter 518 in (2), in introductory clause, inserted review requirement and substituted "for the services, facilities, and benefits directly afforded by the facilities, taking into account services provided and direct benefits received that will be sufficient in each year to provide income and revenue adequate for" for "pay the operating expenses of the district, provide for repairs and depreciation of works owned or operated by it, pay the interest on any bonded debt, and so far as possible, provide a sinking or other fund for the payment of the principal of such debt as it may become due"; inserted (2)(a) through (2)(d) stating what the charges must be adequate to pay for; inserted (3) providing that a facility may not be used without paying the established rate and providing sanctions for nonpayment; inserted (4) providing for collection of delinquent charges, notice to the delinquent persons, content of the notice, a list of properties with unpaid charges, and assessment of the charges as a tax against the properties; inserted (5) allowing suit to collect unpaid charges; in (6) substituted references to facilities for references to treatment works; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective April 25, 1995.

Case Notes

No Authority to Levy Annual Assessment Against Nonusers: This section does not authorize a water and sewer district to levy annual assessments against nonusers. The assessments against the defendants were therefore void. RAE Subdivision County Water & Sewer District v. Frank J. Trunk & Son, 251 M 22, 823 P2d 845, 48 St. Rep. 1065 (1991).

Gallatin County*, 233 M 456, 760 P2d 755, 45 St. Rep. 1631 (1988).

Attorney General's Opinions

County Water and Sewer District General Obligation Bonds Payable by Levy on All District Property: Under 7-13-2331, general obligation bonds for water and sewer districts are issued in the same manner prescribed for school district bonds, unless the school district process conflicts. School district bonds are payable by levy on the taxable value of all real and personal property within a school district. Sections 7-13-2301 and 7-13-2303 and this section set the manner and conditions for payment of a bonded debt that is primarily based on revenue or fees generated from water and sewer district services and contingently backed by a tax levy upon lands benefited by the district, but do not expressly outline the manner and conditions for payment of a bonded debt based on a general obligation. Therefore, general obligation bonds issued by a county water and sewer district are payable by levy on the taxable value of all real and personal property in the district in the same manner as school district bonds. 49 A.G. Op. 22 (2002).

Water and Sewer District Levies for Repayment of Loan Obligation as Property Taxes: Assessments levied by a water and sewer district pursuant to this section for the purpose of repaying a general loan obligation are considered property taxes under Title 15, ch. 10, part 4. Therefore, the property tax limitations of part 4 apply, even if the district has never previously exercised its levy authority under this section. 43 A.G. Op. 46 (1989).

Payment of Property Taxes for Municipal Sewer Service by County District Residents: Persons receiving municipal sewer services but residing within a county water and sewer district are required to pay that portion of property taxes imposed pursuant to this section with respect to the district's expenditures unrelated to principal and interest payments for bonded indebtedness. 43 A.G. Attorney General's Opinions

County Water and Sewer District General Obligation Bonds Payable by Levy on All District Property: Under this section, general obligation bonds for water and sewer districts are issued in the same manner prescribed for school district bonds, unless the school district process conflicts. School district bonds are payable by levy on the taxable value of all real and personal property within a school district. Sections 7-13-2301 through 7-13-2303 set the manner and conditions for payment of a bonded debt that is primarily based on revenue or fees generated from water and sewer district services and contingently backed by a tax levy upon lands benefited by the district, but do not expressly outline the manner and conditions for payment of a bonded debt based on a general obligation. Therefore, general obligation bonds issued by a county water and sewer district are payable by levy on the taxable value of all real and personal property in the district in the same manner as school district bonds. 49 A.G. Op. 22 (2002).

1981 Amendment: Inserted "Except as provided in subsection (5)" at the beginning of (1); inserted (5) relating to adding contiguous land.

Case Notes

Jurisdiction of Public Service Commission: The Public Service Commission (P.S.C.) has no authority to determine water service area boundaries of an incorporated city, nor may the P.S.C. assume jurisdiction over the expansion of an adjoining county water district. Under this section, control over the size of a county water district is expressly vested in the board of directors and the electors. The statute does not mention a requirement of P.S.C. approval before land may be added to a county water district. It should be noted, however, that the P.S.C. has authority under 69-3-201 to determine on a case-by-case basis whether adequate service is provided at reasonable rates to customers who are within the service area. Billings v. P.S.C., 193 M 358, 631 P2d 1295, 38 St. Rep. 1162 (1981).

Consideration of Alternative Sites Not Required in All Cases Prior to Finding That Taking of Property Is Necessary Under Eminent Domain Laws: Adams argued that the District Court had erred in granting the condemnation order requested by the county with respect to his property, which he had purchased with an existing lease on the land covering the transmitters already located on the land. When Adams and the county were unable to negotiate a new lease or sale of the property, even though the county offered to purchase the land for more than the appraised value, the county obtained the condemnation order. Adams argued that the county had failed to show that it had looked at alternative sites prior to obtaining a condemnation order for taking his land. The Supreme Court ruled that in the case before it, it was not necessary to look at alternative sites because the structures were already on the property and the cost of moving or replacing the structures on new land would result in a substantial cost to the public and therefore the county had demonstrated by a preponderance of the evidence that the taking was necessary. Park County v. Adams, 2004 MT 295, 323 M 370, 100 P3d 640, (2004).

Statutory Purpose of Television District Is to Serve Public Interest and Convenience — Public Use With Respect to Condemnation Laws: Adams argued that the District Court had erred in granting the condemnation order requested by the county with respect to his property, which he had purchased with an existing lease on the land covering the transmitters already located on the land. When Adams and the county were unable to negotiate a new lease or sale of the property, even though the county offered to purchase the land for more than the appraised value, the county obtained the condemnation order. The Supreme Court held that the statutes governing television districts established that the districts were to be created to serve the public interest, convenience, and necessity in the construction, maintenance, and operation of television translator stations and therefore the statutory mandate to serve the public interest did constitute public use with respect to eminent domain laws. *Park County v. Attorney General's Opinions

Collection of Television District Taxes: Absent a legislative declaration that a lien exists on property owned by a person against whom television district taxes are imposed and in view of the fact that such taxes are imposed against specific persons directly, the proper remedy for nonpayment of television district taxes should be in personam rather than in rem. The normal debt collection process is the proper means for enforcing collection of television district taxes. 38 A.G. Op. 40 (1979).

Duty to Maintain Pipes and Mains: When a city grants a water company the right to lay pipes and mains, there is also imposed an obligation to keep them in repair. Even though Public Service Commission rules required the owner of the premises being served by the water company to own, operate, maintain, and repair the curb box, neither the city nor the water company could pass the burden of reasonably safe maintenance on to the property owner. The property owner is merely the water company's agent for the performance of the water company's duty to maintain the pipes and mains. Nord v. Butte Water Co., 96 M 311, 30 P2d 809 (1934).

Duty to Restore Excavated Streets: A water company authorized by a city to excavate streets in supplying water to the city was under an obligation to restore the streets to the condition in which they were found and anticipate and guard against the effect of natural causes that might render them dangerous. The primary duty did not rest with the city. The water company's negligence in so restoring made it liable to the plaintiff when she overturned her carriage and suffered injuries as a result of the negligence. *Robinson v. Town Code Not Permitted to Charge for Unused Garbage Services: L&L Sanitation (L&L) hauled garbage for a number of years for the town of Culbertson. When its contract ended and was awarded to another hauler, L&L advertised to haul commercial and residential garbage for citizens living inside and outside the town limits. Citizens who requested L&L services then contacted the town clerk to discontinue their town garbage service but were advised that they could not discontinue their town garbage service and that if they did not pay their garbage bills, their water service would be turned off. L&L sought a declaratory judgment that the town, pursuant to its own town code, could not restrict garbage collection to the town's contracted service and had no power to shut off water service to any person or business disposing of garbage through contract with L&L or otherwise. The District Court found for the city, noting that although the town code did not provide that the town's contracted garbage service was exclusive, neither did the code provide that the collection fee was abated if the town collection service was not used. The Supreme Court reversed after examining the applicable town code and holding that the code neither required nor permitted a fee to be charged for its garbage service unless the service was used. The issue of the town's power to discontinue water service for failure to pay for garbage service was apparently not addressed. Labatte v. Culbertson, 282 M 342, 938 P2d 611, 54 St. Rep. 377 (1997).

Constitutionality — Substantial Impairment of Contractual Obligations: On November 25, 1978, a city and a private garbage collection service entered into a contract in which the latter was to provide garbage collection services for the city from November 1, 1978, through June 30, 1979. On June 30, 1979, the city voted to provide its own garbage service beginning July 1, 1979. Retroactive application of this section would clearly substantially impair the contractual obligations of the city. Whether it constitutes an unconstitutional impairment of contract under Art. II, sec. 31, Mont. Const., was not decided because the contract expired before the effective date of the statute. D & F Sanitation Serv. v. Red Lodge, 196 M 490, 640 P2d 461, 39 St. Rep. 287 (1982).

Effective Date: On November 25, 1978, a city and a private garbage collection service entered into a contract in which the latter was to provide garbage collection services for the city from November 1, 1978, through June 30, 1979. On June 30, 1979, the city voted to provide its own garbage service beginning July 1, 1979. This section was not applicable, as there was no contract in existence on the section's effective date of July 1, 1979. Furthermore, this section was not intended to apply to contracts in existence before January 1, 1979. D & F Sanitation Serv. v. Red Lodge, 196 M 490, 640 P2d 461, 39 St. Rep. 287 (1982).

"Public Sewer" Defined:

In a sewer system composed of both public and district sewers, the main artery or trunkline is the public sewer. Also, a sewer built according to public sewer specification, which fits into the general sewer system of the city, serves the public, and will drain a large area of the city when other sewers are established, is a public sewer. *Crutchfield v. A sewer system designated a trunk sewer and intended to serve as an outlet for the district sewers to be constructed later is a public sewer; its construction costs cannot be assessed under the special improvement district laws. Rush v. Grandy, 66 M 222, 213 P 242 (1923).

Case Notes

Main Trunkline Sewer Not to Be Paid for by Assessments: A special improvement district was created for construction of a main trunkline sewer, district main sewer, and submain sewer. This system would not serve a majority of the lots within the district until lateral sewers could be constructed, requiring the creation of local districts within the main trunkline district. This was improper, as the sewer system contemplated was a public sewer system and could not be paid for by assessments on the property within the district. Crutchfield v. Nash, 84 M 556, 276 P 938 (1929).

Special Improvement District Laws Not Appropriate for Public Sewers: A sewer system designated a trunk sewer and intended to serve as an outlet for the district sewers to be constructed later was a public sewer; its construction costs could not be assessed under the special improvement district laws. Rush v. Grandy, 66 M 222, 213 P 242 (1923).

Attorney General's Opinions

Jurisdiction Over Municipal Sewer Rates: Chapter 13, part 42, confers jurisdiction over municipal sewage rates upon the Public Service Commission only when the city finances its sewer system under the SID method for district sewers, appropriates money from the general or sewer fund or issues municipal bonds for public sewers, and has obtained voter approval to impose such rates as provided in 7-13-4204. 37 A.G. Op. 65 (1977).

Service Charge for Sewer Connection: A municipality may impose an initial service charge for connections to the municipal sewer system based upon the size of the water service as long as the fee is reasonable and can be placed in a special fund used for repairs and capital improvements. No special provisions exist as to public notice or hearings. 37 A.G. Op. 30 (1977).

Municipal Sewage and/or Water Systems

Part Case Notes

Termination of Service — Federal Due Process Requirements: The declaration by the State of Montana in 7-13-430, the pertinent enabling legislation, that municipally owned water service utilities are to be created for the benefit of the public, taken in conjunction with the fact that under 7-13-4306 the services provided by such utilities may be terminated only for cause, establishes that a customer has a justified expectation of continued water service, created and secured by existing state and local law. Accordingly, a customer serviced by a municipally owned water service utility in the State of Montana may assert a "legitimate claim of entitlement" within the protection of the federal Due Process Clause of the 14th amendment. This court reads the Due Process Clause to require, prior to termination of utility services for nonpayment of charges: (1) notice informing the customer not only of the possibility of termination but also of a procedure for challenging a disputed bill; and (2) an established procedure for resolution of disputes or some specified avenue of relief to customers who dispute the existence of a liability. Frates v. Great Falls, 568 F. Supp. 1330, 40 St. Rep. 1307 (D.C. Mont. 1983).

Implied Power of City to Allocate Proportionate Share of Construction Cost: A city sought to construct a shop complex that would be used by various departments of the city, including the water and sewer department. Although there is no express statute, the city possesses an implied power to allocate a share of the construction costs against the funds of each department. Greener v. Great Falls, 157 M 376, 485 P2d 932 (1971).

Net Income — Reasonable Expenses: A city sought to construct a shop complex that would be used by various departments of the city, including the water and sewer department. Construction costs were to be partially financed by money from the special funds of the departments and would be paid in installments over 5 years. As the repayment of outstanding bonds was not in jeopardy, the payments were held to be reasonable expenses of operation and maintenance of the water and sewer department. Greener v. Great Falls, 157 M 376, 485 P2d 932 (1971).

Constitutionality: Legal electors under 7-13-4303 (now repealed) were not the proper parties to attack its constitutionality on the grounds that some people who could not vote would have to pay or that some people outside of the city might be charged. Also, that there were some people who could vote on the project but would not be required to pay for it did not yield an unreasonable classification. Billings v. Nore, 148 M 96, 417 P2d 458 (1966).

Separate Accounting Required for Equipment Reserve Account in Enterprise Fund: Enterprise funds, such as funds generated from the provision of income-producing municipal services like water and sewer systems, may not be consolidated with revenue from other sources. A city may not reclassify equipment reserves maintained in the enterprise funds. Therefore, equipment reserve accounts in enterprise funds must be maintained separately from other equipment reserve accounts in a capital improvement fund. 44 A.G. Op. 5 (1991).

Retention of Municipal Authority After Incorporation in County District: Section 7-13-2202 disclaims any intent to supersede through formation of a county district a municipality's authority with respect to maintenance or creation of a sewer and water system. Therefore, a municipality retains all authority granted under this part with respect to providing water and sewer services after a county water and sewer district, which includes the municipality, has been incorporated. 43 A.G. Op. 13 (1989).

System Development Fees Allowable Form of Financing Future Expansion of City Water and Sewer System: When liberally construed, it is within the power of a self-governing municipality, as well as a reasonable extension of a city's express statutory authority, to implement the collection and accumulation of system development fees to fund a portion of the cost of future expansion of municipal water and sewer systems. The fees are proper as long as they are based on reasonably anticipated future costs of the city and the revenue generated from the fees is used solely to fund facility expansion or to pay for bonds sold for that purpose. *Lechner v. inspection fees on the appellant, Seypar, Inc. Seypar, Inc., argued that the district did not have the authority to impose the fee against individual property owners and that the cost should have been assessed against the whole district. The Supreme Court ruled that although state law gave the district the same administrative powers as County Commissioners have over a single county sewer district, those powers are not the same as a local self-governing unit and therefore the district did not have the authority to exercise any power not prohibited by Montana law. The Supreme Court stated that since the district was not self-governing, it could not argue that the statutes relating to municipal districts applied to it by analogy. The Supreme Court held that the district did have the power to impose hookup fees under 7-12-2151. *Seypar, Inc. v. Assessment to Be Equitable: Plaintiffs were assessed a tax for a portion of the costs of storm sewers and paid this tax under protest. At trial, the plaintiffs showed that it was highly unlikely that water running off their property would end up in the sewer system. Therefore, the assessments were not as equitable as possible in proportion to the services rendered and were erroneous. Berger v. Billings, 186 M 326, 607 P2d 558, 37 St. Rep. 397 (1980).

Commercial/Residential Rate Disparity: That commercial users of a storm sewer were charged three times as much as residential users is not objectionable because of the difference in runoff from the property. Billings v. Nore, 148 M 96, 417 P2d 458 (1966).

Duty Upon City to Administer: This section imposes a duty on a city to impose rates following an affirmative bond issue. A city ordinance setting forth the rates is an administrative act. Billings v. Nore, 148 M 96, 417 P2d 458 (1966).

Indirect Benefit Assessable: Because persons living within an existing storm sewer system would be indirectly benefited by a proposed extension of the system, they were properly assessable. Billings v. Nore, 148 M 96, 417 P2d 458 (1966).

No Violation of Legislature's Authority to Delegate Power: In authorizing a municipality to set rates for a water or sewage system, the Legislature has not violated its authority to delegate its powers. A considerable amount of administrative detail is necessary to implement such rates. Billings v. Nore, 148 M 96, 417 P2d 458 (1966).

Prevention of Pollution Not Required: Subsection (1) is specific and directly deals with rates and charges. The language does not require a finding of prevention of pollution before rates and charges can be assessed. Billings v. Nore, 148 M 96, 417 P2d 458 (1966).

Vacant Lots Not Charged for Storm Sewers: That certain vacant lots were not charged for storm sewer service is not objectionable because runoff was minimal and enforcement of the charges was impractical. Billings v. Nore, 148 M 96, 417 P2d 458 (1966).

Municipal Authority to Set Water and Sewer Service Rates — Applicability of Human Rights Act to Setting of Water and Sewer Rates: A provision in this section provides that the rates for municipal water and sewer charges may be fixed in advance and must be uniform for like services in all parts of the municipality. The city of Bozeman sought to provide discounts or preferential rates to senior citizens on water and wastewater charges. The question was whether the senior rates violated the statutory requirement for uniform or equitable rates. The Attorney General held that because water and sewer ratemaking is not an area affirmatively subject to state control, a local government with self-government powers may set rates for those services without regard to the requirements of this section. However, the Attorney General noted that age discrimination does violate Title 49, ch. 2, commonly known as the Montana Human Rights Act, that Bozeman is subject to the Act despite its status as a self-governing municipality, and that discrimination in government services is affirmatively subject to state control. Without deciding whether Bozeman's proposed ordinance would meet the standard of strict construction of reasonable grounds based on age, the Attorney General nevertheless concluded that 49-2-308 of the Act did apply to the Bozeman ordinance setting senior rates for municipal water and sewer services. 50 A.G. Op. 10 (2004).

Service Charge for Sewer Connection: A municipality may impose an initial service charge for connections to the municipal sewer system based upon the size of the water service as long as the fee is reasonable and can be placed in a special fund used for repairs and capital improvements. No special provisions exist as to public notice or hearings. 37 A.G. Op. 30 (1977).

No Lien for Nonpayment of Water Bill: A city or town may not file a lien against a landowner's property due to a tenant's failure to pay for water service contracted for and used by the tenant. Discontinuance of service is the only statutory remedy provided for nonpayment of water charges. When a power is conferred upon a municipality and the mode in which it is to exercise that power is prescribed, such mode must be pursued. 40 A.G. Op. 7 (1983).

City Resolution Allowing Implied Consent to Annexation Upon Continued Use of Utility Services Affirmed: The city of Whitefish adopted a municipal resolution requiring that property owners consent to annexation in order to continue to receive city utility services and allowing the city to imply consent to annexation from property owners that continued to receive the services after they received notice requiring them to disconnect from the utilities. Property owners contended that the resolution was invalid, but the District Court held the resolution valid, and the Supreme Court affirmed. The Attorney General held in 46 A.G. Op. 12 (1995), that a municipality may establish a rule requiring consent to annexation as a condition for continued receipt of services, and that opinion is in accord with 69-7-201. Further, the utility rule in this case put the burden on the property owner to arrange to disconnect from services if protesting annexation, so once proper notice was given, under 7-2-4710 and 28-2-503 the city's procedure to imply consent was a proper method to determine if a property owner wished to continue to receive city services or to protest annexation. Gregg v. Whitefish City Council, 2004 MT 262, 323 M 109, 99 P3d 151 (2004).

Recorded Waiver of Annexation Protest by Prior Property Owner — Present Owner Precluded From Protesting Annexation: In 1966, the city of Whitefish adopted a policy that a landowner outside the city boundary had to agree to waive the right to protest future annexation in order to continue to receive city water and sewer services. The waivers were properly recorded and later used by the city to invalidate annexation protests by current landowners in 1998. The District Court concluded that the waivers constituted a covenant running with the land and that the current owners were precluded from protesting the proposed annexation. On appeal, the current owners argued that the right to protest in 7-2-4710 resided with the current property owner and that the statutory consent to annexation authorized by this section only applied to the initiation of services and could not transfer to subsequent purchasers. The Supreme Court disagreed. Under 7-1-113, a self-governing entity may act even when there are controlling state laws as long as the local government's actions are not inconsistent with or lower or less stringent than state requirements. The purpose of this section is to ensure that property owners outside a municipality can request utility services and to ensure that the local government can later require annexation in exchange for utilities. Creating a covenant that runs with the land furthers this purpose. In addition, 70-17-203 also provides that every covenant made for the direct benefit of the property runs with the land. The waivers directly benefited the property and were allowable, so the District Court was affirmed. Gregg v. Whitefish City Council, 2004 MT 262, 323 M 109, 99 P3d 151 (2004). See also State ex rel. Swart v. Molitor, 190 M 515, 621 P2d 1100 (1981).

City's Annexation Ordinance Not Coercive: A city's annexation ordinance requiring property to be annexed prior to extension of water and sewer services was not tantamount to coercion and would not render the principles of estoppel inapplicable. Schanz v. Billings, 182 M 328, 597 P2d 67, 36 St. Rep. 1163 (1979).

City Ordinance Not Conclusive Presumption of Necessity — Standard of Proof: A city ordinance adopted pursuant to 7-5-4106 did not establish a conclusive presumption that the taking of private property for a water system was necessary. The controlling statutes are in this part, and absent an agreement to purchase, 7-13-4404 requires that the standard of proof outlined in 70-30-111 be met before private property may be taken for a public use. Since the District Court has the power to determine whether a condemnation is necessary, the votes of the people and the city council cannot be considered as dispositive of the issue of necessity; however, the public interest as expressed in these votes must be considered and weighed with the other factors in determining whether acquisition is necessary. *Missoula v. Power of Local Governments to Require All Residents to Connect to City Water Supply: The defendants argued that a city ordinance requiring them to hook up to the city water system violated their right to privacy by denying them the freedom to choose the type of water they wanted to use. The Supreme Court held that the interest asserted did not involve matters so fundamentally affecting the defendants' rights as to invoke constitutional protection. The court also held that a local government's concern with preventing health problems is a legitimate reason for controlling the water supply and a proper exercise of governmental power. *Ennis v. Method of Installing Fixtures Within City's Discretion: As the statute is silent on the method to be used in tapping the main and installing the necessary fixtures, a city has discretionary power to decide the matter. Where a city chose its own employees, not licensed plumbers, to do the work exclusively instead of hiring independent plumbing contractors, it did not abuse its discretion. *Leischner v. City Ordinance Not Conclusive Presumption of Necessity — Standard of Proof: A city ordinance adopted pursuant to 7-5-4106 did not establish a conclusive presumption that the taking of private property for a water system was necessary. The controlling statutes are in Title 7, chapter 13, part 44, and absent an agreement to purchase, this section requires that the standard of proof outlined in 70-30-111 be met before private property may be taken for a public use. Since the District Court has the power to determine whether a condemnation is necessary, the votes of the people and the city council cannot be considered as dispositive of the issue of necessity; however, the public interest as expressed in these votes must be considered and weighed with the other factors in determining whether acquisition is necessary. Missoula v. Mtn. Water Co., 228 M 404, 743 P2d 590, 44 St. Rep. 1633 (1987), affirmed in Missoula v. Mtn. Water Co., 236 M 442, 771 P2d 103, 46 St. Rep. 494 (1989).

Local Water Quality Districts

Part Compiler's Comments

1991 Statement of Intent: The statement of intent attached to Ch. 357, L. 1991, provided: "A statement of intent is required for this bill in order to provide guidance to the board of health and environmental sciences [functions now transferred to Board of Environmental Review] concerning rulemaking and approval of local water quality programs. The board shall adopt rules concerning the format of local water quality programs, including the level of information necessary for a local water quality district to show that its proposed program will be consistent with Title 75, chapter 5, and that its program will be effective in protecting, preserving, and improving the quality of surface water and ground water. The board may define by rule the types of best management practices that may be imposed upon each of the types of facilities and sources of pollution that may be regulated by local ordinances as authorized under [section 24(4)] [75-5-311(4)]. It is the intent of the legislature that administrative responsibilities be clearly allocated and, when necessary, clearly divided between the department of health and environmental sciences [functions now transferred to Department of Environmental Quality] and a local water quality district, insofar as possible, to ensure that permitholders, permit applicants, and citizens are not subject to conflicting or duplicative requirements. Through its approval of local water quality programs, the board of health and environmental sciences [functions now transferred to Board of Environmental Review] shall ensure that the department of health and environmental sciences' [functions now transferred to Board of Environmental Review] ability to continue to administer federally delegated water quality protection programs is not impaired. The board may also adopt rules to specify the procedures the department of health and environmental sciences [functions now transferred to Department of Environmental Quality] shall follow pursuant to 75-5-106 to authorize a local water quality district to enforce provisions of Title 75, chapter 5. It is the intent of the legislature that the boundaries of local water quality districts should correspond to the area or areas in which water quality problems have been documented.

Except as expressly provided in this bill, nothing in this bill may be considered to limit or restrict the authority of local governments to adopt rules and regulations authorized by other laws of the state."

Case Notes

Authority of County to Dedicate Public Road on Public Land Prior to Statehood: Defendants contended that plaintiff county had no authority to dedicate a public road over a school section of state land and requested summary judgment on the issue. Summary judgment was denied, and on appeal, the Supreme Court affirmed. The road was established several months before Montana statehood, at a time when the land was still under the authority of the federal government. Because the land had not yet been conveyed to the state, the Board of County Commissioners had authority under sec. 2477, Revised Statutes of the United States (1866), to create roads across the section of federal land. Powell County v. 5 Rockin' MS Angus Ranch, Inc., 2004 MT 337, 324 M 204, 102 P3d 1210 (2004). See also Peterson v. Baker, 81 P 681 (Wash. 1905), and U.S. v. Wyo., 195 F. Supp. 692 (D.C. Wyo. 1961).

County Roads Properly Established Prior to 1895 — Record Taken as a Whole — Summary Judgment Proper: Powell County filed an action seeking a declaratory judgment and injunctive relief to establish that two roads were considered public roads established in 1889 and 1903. Defendants denied that the roads were public and counterclaimed to quiet title. The District Court found for the county, and defendants appealed, but the Supreme Court affirmed. As held in McCauley v. Thompson-Nistler, 2000 MT 215, 301 M 81, 10 P3d 794 (2000), there were four ways that a public highway could be established prior to 1895: (1) by action of the proper authorities in accordance with statute; (2) by prescriptive use for the period required by statute; (3) by opening and dedication by the private owner; and (4) upon partition of real property. In the present case, there was some question whether the roads in question were properly established in 1889; however, as provided in Reid v. Park County, 192 M 231, 627 P2d 1210 (1981), a party is not required to produce complete documentary evidence of procedures that created a road many years ago, and the District Court may consider whether the record taken as a whole indicates that a public road was created. The record in this case sufficiently established the creation and dedication of the roads at issue, and absent any disputed material facts concerning whether the roads were properly created, summary judgment was proper. Powell County v. 5 Rockin' MS Angus Ranch, Inc., 2004 MT 337, 324 M 204, 102 P3d 1210 (2004).

No Intent to Abandon Public Road Despite Reconveyance of Surrounding Property to Private Interests: In 1939 and 1940, the Shelby Country Club conveyed 160 acres of land to the city of Shelby with the understanding that the city would beautify the property as a park and lease it to the country club for a golf course. The city graded a road to the property and maintained Club Road thereafter. When the city could not obtain funds for a park, the property was reconveyed to the country club, and eventually, plaintiff acquired most of the property, while an 11.75-acre parcel was acquired by defendants. Plaintiff sought to have Club Road declared a private road and asked for damages for defendants' use of the road. The city subsequently annexed the road into the city limits and intervened in the suit, along with Toole County, to protect the public interest. The District Court declared Club Road to be a public road, and the Supreme Court affirmed. Although the District Court relied on section 32-103, R.C.M. 1947, rather than the applicable section 1612, R.C.M. 1921, the fact remained that once Club Road was laid out by the city as a public road and maintained its character through more than 50 years of public use, it remained a public road despite the reconveyance of the surrounding property to private interests, absent any clear intent by the city to abandon it. Smith v. Russell, 2003 MT 326, 318 M 336, 80 P3d 431 (2003).

Substantial Evidence of Establishment of County Road — Quiet Title Denied: Plaintiffs petitioned to have a road crossing their property abandoned as a county road, and when the county denied the petition, plaintiffs sought to quiet title and injunctive relief to prevent public use of the road. The District Court denied the request. Applying Reid v. Park County, 192 M 231, 627 P2d 1210 (1981), the Supreme Court examined the record as a whole and determined that the road had been proposed, viewed, constructed, and dedicated in substantial compliance with laws in effect in 1915 and that long-time historic use clearly indicated that the road was a public road. Absent any evidence that the county ever took affirmative steps to indicate an intent to abandon the road, the road remained a public road, and the District Court was affirmed. Galassi v. Lincoln County Bd. of Comm'rs, 2003 MT 319, 318 M 288, 80 P3d 84 (2003).

Creation of County Road — Applicability of Curative Statute of 1895: Garrison brought an action against Lincoln County, alleging that the county had no right or interest in a road that crossed Garrison's property. The District Court held that the road was a county road or, alternatively, that even if the road was not a county road, the public had obtained a prescriptive easement covering the road. Garrison appealed, arguing that County Commissioners in 1912 and 1913 failed to strictly comply with the statutory requirements for creating a county road, rendering the road private property, despite the fact that the road was declared public in 1913 and had been used extensively by the public and maintained by the county for over 50 years. The District Court properly relied on Reid v. Park County, 192 M 231, 627 P2d 1210 (1981), to conclude that the record taken as a whole presented clear evidence that despite discrepancies in its description or location, a county road was created and that any defects in the procedure used to create the road were remedied by the curative statute 2600 of the Political Code of 1895 that provided that all roads laid out, traveled, or used by the public were considered public highways.

Garrison v. Lincoln County, 2003 MT 227, 317 M 190, 77 P3d 163 (2003), distinguishing Pederson v. Dawson County, 2000 MT 339, 303 M 158, 17 P3d 393 (2000).

County Right-of-Way Considered Easement — Injunction Proper Remedy to Ensure Access to Right-of-Way: Jefferson County filed a complaint for a temporary injunction, an order allowing entry upon land to survey McCarty Creek Road, which passed through McCauley's land to public land beyond, and an order setting a show cause hearing. The District Court issued the injunction allowing the survey and set a date for hearing. At the hearing, the court found extensive documentary evidence, dating back to 1883, confirming the existence of McCarty Creek Road and, in its final order, determined that the road, as it crossed McCauley's property, was a dedicated and established county road. The court further enjoined McCauley from interfering with access or obstructing ingress and egress on the road. The Supreme Court affirmed, finding substantial credible evidence to support the District Court's determination and finding no abuse of discretion in enjoining McCauley from interfering with the public use of McCarty Creek Road. Jefferson County v. McCauley Ranches, 1999 MT 333, 297 M 392, 994 P2d 11, 56 St. Rep. 1329 (1999), following Bolinger v. Bozeman, 158 M 507, 493 P2d 1062 (1972), Reid v. Park County, 192 M 231, 627 P2d 1210, 38 St. Rep. 631 (1981), and Bailey v. Ravalli County, 201 M 138, 653 P2d 139, 39 St. Rep. 2010 (1982), and distinguishing Porter v. K&S Partnership, 192 M 175, 627 P2d 836 (1981), Knudson v. McDunn, 271 M 61, 894 P2d 295 (1995), and Lurie v. Sheriff, 284 M 207, 944 P2d 205, 54 St. Rep. 847 (1997).

Contempt Order Against County for Failure to Follow Proper Procedures Annulled: The lower court found the county in contempt for abandoning and changing a portion of a road without following the procedures suggested in an earlier court order. The Supreme Court stated that not all of the record had been before the lower court. An examination of the entire record indicated that the county had tried to follow the procedures set out in statute and the earlier court order. The Supreme Court annulled the contempt order and suggested that the parties might want to move to have the injunction against changing or abandoning the relevant portion of the road dissolved. State ex rel. Fallon County v. District Court, 245 M 382, 801 P2d 610, 47 St. Rep. 2187 (1990).

Abandoned Public Road to Revert to Abutting Property Owners: An action was filed to quiet title to a county road that had been established as a public road in 1909. The certificate of dedication of the 1909 plat stated that the streets therein were "granted and dedicated to the use of the public forever". In 1944, pursuant to section 1635, R.C.M. 1935, a petition for county road closure was filed. That same year the petition was granted by the County Commissioners. After 1944, neither the plaintiffs nor their predecessors in interest paid any taxes on the roadway and no portion of the roadway was fenced into the lands now belonging to the plaintiffs until 1980. The court quieted title in the plaintiffs, ruling that the 1909 plat dedication was the equivalent of a right-of-way deed under which the public acquired only the right-of-way and the incidents necessary to its enjoyment and that upon abandonment the fee in the street reverted to the abutting landowners, with each abutting landowner taking fee from the edge of his property to the center of the street. Bailey v. Ravalli County, 201 M 138, 653 P2d 139, 39 St. Rep. 2010 (1982), followed in Herreid v. Hauck, 254 M 496, 839 P2d 571, 49 St. Rep. 884 (1992).

Bid Calling and Fund Expenditure — Administrative Functions: In calling for bids and preparing to expend county funds for a paving project, the County Commissioners were performing administrative functions in furtherance of their responsibility to manage and maintain county roads. For this reason a referendum directing them not to expend funds or call for bids was invalid. The referendum did not address the decision of whether the county should pave the road, a legislative function. Chouteau County v. Grossman, 172 M 373, 563 P2d 1125 (1977).

Attorney General's Opinions

Access to Rivers and Streams Via County Road Right-of-Way and Bridges: Given that the public has the right to use public highways in any manner and for any purpose consistent with or reasonably incidental to public travel, this right includes the use of public rights-of-way created by county roads to gain access to rivers and streams. Using a county road right-of-way as an access point to a river or stream right-of-way is consistent with and reasonably incidental to the public's right to travel on county roads. Further, a bridge and its abutments, as part of a public highway, offer the same access to rivers and streams for recreational use as the highway to which they are attached. However, the public's right of access is not unlimited and is subject to the following limitations: (1) the recreating public must stay within the county road and bridge right-of-way, which is assumed to be 60 feet unless otherwise stated by petition or dedication; (2) access may be limited by the reasonable exercise of a governing body's police power to control the use of roads for purposes such as safety and parking; and (3) use of a public highway may be limited by the manner in which it was created, such as a road created by prescriptive easement, which is limited both in size and usage to the original use during the prescriptive period and may include access for hunting, fishing, and recreation. 48 A.G. Op. 13 (2000).

Maintenance of County Roads — Discretionary or Mandatory: A county is required to maintain county roads established through the petition process but is not legally required to maintain other county roads, which include county roads created by dedication to the public. The Board of County Commissioners exercised its discretion to authorize maintenance of a county road created by dedication to the public from 1952 until 1981. The county is not required by law to maintain the road but has, within the limits of available funds, the power and discretion to do so. 41 A.G. Op. 32 (1985).

Duty to Install Culverts: The duty to build bridges imposed by 7-14-2204(1) includes the duty to install culverts when such devices are deemed most appropriate for conveying water beneath a public street or highway. 38 A.G. Op. 39 (1979).

Authority to Close Roads Because of Hazardous Conditions: Because the county is potentially liable for failure to maintain county roads in a safe condition, it has the implied power to temporarily close county roads when hazardous conditions exist. It is also responsible for the placement and maintenance of traffic control devices necessary to warn and regulate traffic. The procedures to be followed and the individual who is to make the decision to close roads are to be determined by the Board of County Commissioners. A county road superintendent or supervisor, if appointed, would be appropriate. Only in case of extreme emergency may the Highway Patrol block traffic. 37 A.G. Op. 116 (1977).

"Public Highways" — Forest Development Roads: Use of the term "public highways" for the purpose of imposing a gross vehicle weight tax, a special fuels tax, license plates requirements, or weight limitations does not include forest development roads. 37 A.G. Op. 9 (1977).

1995 Amendment: Chapter 336 inserted second sentence allowing Board to assign or allocate responsibility to county surveyor or to county road superintendent.

Attorney General's Opinions

Parameters of County Commission Authority to Permit County Road Use for Pipelines: A Board of County Commissioners is charged with a significant amount of discretion under 7-1-2103, this section, and 7-14-2107 in determining whether to permit the use of a county road right-of-way for the laying of permanent or temporary pipelines. This discretion is potentially limited by state regulations under Title 69, ch. 13, concerning pipeline carriers, depending on specific factual situations. To be consistent with the holding in Bolinger v. Bozeman, 158 M 507, 493 P2d 1062 (1972), the Board must find that the action: (1) is necessary for the best interest of the county roads and the road districts; (2) does not unreasonably impair the special easements of abutting owners in the street for purposes of access, light, and air; and (3) is conducive to the public welfare and serves one of the purposes for which highways and streets are dedicated. 42 A.G. Op. 40 (1987).

Responsibility for Costs of Maintenance and Repair of County Road Established by Petition: If a rural special improvement district is created to improve a county road established by the county road petition process, the district is responsible for the costs of maintenance and repair of the road. 41 A.G. Op. 61 (1986).

Authority to Close Roads Because of Hazardous Conditions: Because the county is potentially liable for failure to maintain county roads in a safe condition, it has the implied power to temporarily close county roads when hazardous conditions exist. It is also responsible for the placement and maintenance of traffic control devices necessary to warn and regulate traffic. The procedures to be followed and the individual who is to make the decision to close roads are to be determined by the Board of County Commissioners. A county road superintendent or supervisor, if appointed, would be appropriate (see 1995 amendment allowing appointment of County Surveyor). Only in case of extreme emergency may the Highway Patrol block traffic. 37 A.G. Op. 116 (1977).

7-14-2103. Duties of county commissioners concerning county roads.

Compiler's Comments

1999 Amendment: Chapter 440 in (2) at end of first sentence substituted "established in accordance with this chapter" for "petitioned for by freeholders"; inserted (4) concerning level and scope of maintenance; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective October 1, 1999.

Preamble: The preamble attached to Ch. 440, L. 1999, provided: "WHEREAS, it has become necessary to clarify the duties of boards of county commissioners regarding roads under their jurisdiction; and

WHEREAS, it is appropriate to specify how the maintenance and oversight of certain roads may be transferred to a county in a manner that protects private property rights and allows the public to participate in the process; and

WHEREAS, clarifying in statute the definition of a county road and the rights and responsibilities of a board of county commissioners will prevent county road-related disputes from entering the court system."

1993 Amendment: Chapter 253 near beginning of (2) and (3), after "board", substituted "may" for "shall"; and made minor changes in style.

Case Notes

No Abandonment of County Road Through Combination of Nonuse and Building of Highway: Defendants fenced a section of Flathead County road G since 1955, placing five gates across the road in various places. The road provided the only access for a land company and was used by state personnel to access state lands. The road was established in 1893, and no document on record indicated that the road was ever abandoned. Defendants refused to remove the gates upon request, so suit was filed to enjoin them from erecting and maintaining gates across the road, and because no genuine issue of fact existed to show that the county abandoned or intended to abandon the road, the District Court granted summary judgment to the state. To prove abandonment of a road by a government entity, there must be a showing of a clear intent to abandon and the conduct that is claimed to demonstrate the intent to abandon must be some affirmative official act, rather than mere implication. On appeal, defendants argued that the county evidenced its clear intent to abandon the right-of-way by the coupling of two circumstances: (1) relocation of a roadway by the public authority; and (2) subsequent nonuse of the roadway. The Supreme Court found the argument illogical. If nonuse does not create abandonment and the building of a highway does not create abandonment, then the combination of the two also does not create abandonment. The District Court was affirmed. St. v. Fisher, 2003 MT 207, 317 M 49, 75 P3d 338 (2003), following Baertsch v. Lewis & Clark County, 256 M 114, 845 P2d 106 (1992).

Attorney General's Opinions

Responsibility for Costs of Maintenance and Repair of County Road Established by Petition: If a rural special improvement district is created to improve a county road established by the county road petition process, the district is responsible for the costs of maintenance and repair of the road. 41 A.G. Op. 61 (1986).

Maintenance of County Roads — Discretionary or Mandatory: A county is required to maintain county roads established through the petition process but is not legally required to maintain other county roads, which include county roads created by dedication to the public. The Board of County Commissioners exercised its discretion to authorize maintenance of a county road created by dedication to the public from 1952 until 1981. The county is not required by law to maintain the road but has, within the limits of available funds, the power and discretion to do so. 41 A.G. Op. 32 (1985).

Authority to Close Roads Because of Hazardous Conditions: Because the county is potentially liable for failure to maintain county roads in a safe condition, it has the implied power to temporarily close county roads when hazardous conditions exist. It is also responsible for the placement and maintenance of traffic control devices necessary to warn and regulate traffic. The procedures to be followed and the individual who is to make the decision to close roads are to be determined by the Board of County Commissioners. A county road superintendent or supervisor, if appointed, would be appropriate. Only in case of extreme emergency may the Highway Patrol block traffic. 37 A.G. Op. 9 (1977).

Case Notes

Right-of-Way Incidents: Where a county grants a city permission to lay a sewerline along a county road, the consent of landowners abutting the road is not necessary. A public right-of-way may be used as the convenience and welfare of the public demand, not only according to the usages when dedicated but in light of advancing civilization. Bolinger v. Bozeman, 158 M 507, 493 P2d 1062 (1972), followed in Adams v. Dept. of Highways, 230 M 393, 753 P2d 846, 45 St. Rep. 298 (1988), and Jefferson County v. McCauley Ranches, 1999 MT 333, 297 M 392, 994 P2d 11, 56 St. Rep. 1329 (1999).

Attorney General's Opinions

Access to Rivers and Streams Via County Road Right-of-Way and Bridges: Given that the public has the right to use public highways in any manner and for any purpose consistent with or reasonably incidental to public travel, this right includes the use of public rights-of-way created by county roads to gain access to rivers and streams. Using a county road right-of-way as an access point to a river or stream right-of-way is consistent with and reasonably incidental to the public's right to travel on county roads. Further, a bridge and its abutments, as part of a public highway, offer the same access to rivers and streams for recreational use as the highway to which they are attached. However, the public's right of access is not unlimited and is subject to the following limitations: (1) the recreating public must stay within the county road and bridge right-of-way, which is assumed to be 60 feet unless otherwise stated by petition or dedication; (2) access may be limited by the reasonable exercise of a governing body's police power to control the use of roads for purposes such as safety and parking; and (3) use of a public highway may be limited by the manner in which it was created, such as a road created by prescriptive easement, which is limited both in size and usage to the original use during the prescriptive period and may include access for hunting, fishing, and recreation. 48 A.G. Op. 13 (2000).

Parameters of County Commission Authority to Permit County Road Use for Pipelines: A Board of County Commissioners is charged with a significant amount of discretion under 7-1-2103, 7-14-2102, and this section in determining whether to permit the use of a county road right-of-way for the laying of permanent or temporary pipelines. Right-of-Way Applicable to Operation and Maintenance Road in Herd District Within Irrigation Project: As part of the Huntley irrigation project, Yellowstone County constructed an operation and maintenance road along one side of an irrigation canal. A nearby property owner later used the road to move cattle, and after plaintiffs complained to the County Sheriff several times over a period of years, plaintiffs installed cattle guards. The county subsequently removed the cattle guards, claiming that the road was a county road and that the county had a 60-foot right-of-way, giving it the right to remove obstructions, including cattle guards and overgrowth from trees obstructing the road. The county then trimmed and killed several of plaintiffs' trees, and plaintiffs sued the county, contesting the county's right-of-way. The District Court examined the historical use of the road and determined that the county's right-of-way was about 20 feet. The court also held that because the property was in a herd district and because all the parties preferred cattle guards to gates, the county was required to replace the cattle guards. The county appealed, but the Supreme Court affirmed. The county road was superimposed on the operation and maintenance road and thus was not more or less extensive than the operation and maintenance road, so the easement was 20 feet as the road currently existed. Further, because the project was a federal operation, the rights of the federal government prevailed. A witness for the federal government testified that cattle guards were preferable, so ordering the replacement of the cattle guards was also not erroneous. Weatherwax v. Yellowstone County, 2003 MT 215, 317 M 119, 75 P3d 788 (2003).

Attorney General's Opinions

Maintenance of Bridge Utilized by Public but Not Located on County Road: Prior to July 1, 1979, it would appear that a bridge on a road utilized by the public, which was located over a boundary between two counties, would be the common responsibility of the two counties. However, by adding a definition of "public bridges", the 1979 Legislature made it clear that counties are not responsible for maintenance of bridges that, although utilized by the public, are not located in a city or town in the county or on a county road maintained by the county. 38 A.G. Mill Increase for County Roads and Bridges Not Exception to I.M. No. 105 Tax Freeze: The 1989 increase in allowable mills for county road construction, maintenance, or improvement, as set out in this section, and for county bridge construction, maintenance, and repair, as set out in 7-14-2502, was not an exception to the I.M. No. 105 property tax freeze established in 15-10-402, but rather was intended to be implemented by a reduction of millage in other areas of the county budget. (See 1999 amendment.) 43 A.G. Op. 74 (1990).

Mill Levy Increase — Proration to Parts of Fiscal Year to Accommodate October Effective Date: Section 7-14-2501 was amended in 1981 to authorize the Board of County Commissioners to levy 15 mills rather than 12 mills for the county road fund. (See 2001 amendment.) The increase, under the 1981 amendments to 1-2-201, becomes effective October 1, 1981. However, the county budget year begins July 1, 1981. The reasonable way to give effect to both amendments is to construe them to allow the Board to apply a rate of 12 mills for the 3 months of the current county fiscal year which fall before October 1, 1981, and a rate of 15 mills for the 9 months of the current county fiscal year which fall after October 1, 1981. 39 A.G. Maintenance of Bridge Utilized by Public but Not Located on County Road: Prior to July 1, 1979, it would appear that a bridge on a road utilized by the public, which was located over a boundary between two counties, would be the common responsibility of the two counties. However, by adding a definition of "public bridges", the 1979 Legislature made it clear that counties are not responsible for maintenance of bridges that, although utilized by the public, are not located in a city or town in the county or on a county road maintained by the county. 38 A.G. The tax rate and filing method applicable to a well that qualifies as interim production under section 10 but which did not qualify as new production under 15-23-601 [now repealed] prior to the applicability date of this act does not change for tax periods prior to the applicability date."

1985 Amendment: In (1), near middle of lead-in language, before "taxable value", inserted "total of the" and after "property therein", inserted "plus the amount of new production taxes levied divided by the appropriate tax rates described in 15-23-607(2)(a) or (2)(b) [now repealed] and multiplied by 60%".

Part 26

Establishment, Alteration, and Abandonment of County Roads

Part Case Notes

Authority of County to Dedicate Public Road on Public Land Prior to Statehood: Defendants contended that plaintiff county had no authority to dedicate a public road over a school section of state land and requested summary judgment on the issue. Summary judgment was denied, and on appeal, the Supreme Court affirmed. The road was established several months before Montana statehood, at a time when the land was still under the authority of the federal government. Because the land had not yet been conveyed to the state, the Board of County Commissioners had authority under sec. 2477, Revised Statutes of the United States (1866), to create roads across the section of federal land. Powell County v. 5 Rockin' MS Angus Ranch, Inc., 2004 MT 337, 324 M 204, 102 P3d 1210 (2004). See also Peterson v. Baker, 81 P 681 (Wash. 1905), and U.S. v. Wyo., 195 F. Supp. 692 (D.C. Wyo. 1961).

County Roads Properly Established Prior to 1895 — Record Taken as a Whole — Summary Judgment Proper: Powell County filed an action seeking a declaratory judgment and injunctive relief to establish that two roads were considered public roads established in 1889 and 1903. Defendants denied that the roads were public and counterclaimed to quiet title. The District Court found for the county, and defendants appealed, but the Supreme Court affirmed. As held in McCauley v. Thompson-Nistler, 2000 MT 215, 301 M 81, 10 P3d 794 (2000), there were four ways that a public highway could be established prior to 1895: (1) by action of the proper authorities in accordance with statute; (2) by prescriptive use for the period required by statute; (3) by opening and dedication by the private owner; and (4) upon partition of real property. In the present case, there was some question whether the roads in question were properly established in 1889; however, as provided in Reid v. Park County, 192 M 231, 627 P2d 1210 (1981), a party is not required to produce complete documentary evidence of procedures that created a road many years ago, and the District Court may consider whether the record taken as a whole indicates that a public road was created. The record in this case sufficiently established the creation and dedication of the roads at issue, and absent any disputed material facts concerning whether the roads were properly created, summary judgment was proper. Powell County v. 5 Rockin' MS Angus Ranch, Inc., 2004 MT 337, 324 M 204, 102 P3d 1210 (2004).

No Intent to Abandon Public Road Despite Reconveyance of Surrounding Property to Private Interests: In 1939 and 1940, the Shelby Country Club conveyed 160 acres of land to the city of Shelby with the understanding that the city would beautify the property as a park and lease it to the country club for a golf course. The city graded a road to the property and maintained Club Road thereafter. When the city could not obtain funds for a park, the property was reconveyed to the country club, and eventually, plaintiff acquired most of the property, while an 11.75-acre parcel was acquired by defendants. Plaintiff sought to have Club Road declared a private road and asked for damages for defendants' use of the road. The city subsequently annexed the road into the city limits and intervened in the suit, along with Toole County, to protect the public interest. The District Court declared Club Road to be a public road, and the Supreme Court affirmed. Although the District Court relied on section 32-103, R.C.M. 1947, rather than the applicable section 1612, R.C.M. 1921, the fact remained that once Club Road was laid out by the city as a public road and maintained its character through more than 50 years of public use, it remained a public road despite the reconveyance of the surrounding property to private interests, absent any clear intent by the city to abandon it. Smith v. Russell, 2003 MT 326, 318 M 336, 80 P3d 431 (2003).

Right-of-Way Applicable to Operation and Maintenance Road in Herd District Within Irrigation Project: As part of the Huntley irrigation project, Yellowstone County constructed an operation and maintenance road along one side of an irrigation canal. A nearby property owner later used the road to move cattle, and after plaintiffs complained to the County Sheriff several times over a period of years, plaintiffs installed cattle guards. The county subsequently removed the cattle guards, claiming that the road was a county road and that the county had a 60-foot right-of-way, giving it the right to remove obstructions, including cattle guards and overgrowth from trees obstructing the road. The county then trimmed and killed several of plaintiffs' trees, and plaintiffs sued the county, contesting the county's right-of-way. The District Court examined the historical use of the road and determined that the county's right-of-way was about 20 feet. The court also held that because the property was in a herd district and because all the parties preferred cattle guards to gates, the county was required to replace the cattle guards. The county appealed, but the Supreme Court affirmed. The county road was superimposed on the operation and maintenance road and thus was not more or less extensive than the operation and maintenance road, so the easement was 20 feet as the road currently existed. Further, because the project was a federal operation, the rights of the federal government prevailed. A witness for the federal government testified that cattle guards were preferable, so ordering the replacement of the cattle guards was also not erroneous. Weatherwax v. Yellowstone County, 2003 MT 215, 317 M 119, 75 P3d 788 (2003).

No Abandonment of County Road Through Combination of Nonuse and Building of Highway: Defendants fenced a section of Flathead County road G since 1955, placing five gates across the road in various places. The road provided the only access for a land company and was used by state personnel to access state lands. The road was established in 1893, and no document on record indicated that the road was ever abandoned. Defendants refused to remove the gates upon request, so suit was filed to enjoin them from erecting and maintaining gates across the road, and because no genuine issue of fact existed to show that the county abandoned or intended to abandon the road, the District Court granted summary judgment to the state. To prove abandonment of a road by a government entity, there must be a showing of a clear intent to abandon and the conduct that is claimed to demonstrate the intent to abandon must be some affirmative official act, rather than mere implication. On appeal, defendants argued that the county evidenced its clear intent to abandon the right-of-way by the coupling of two circumstances: (1) relocation of a roadway by the public authority; and (2) subsequent nonuse of the roadway. The Supreme Court found the argument illogical. If nonuse does not create abandonment and the building of a highway does not create abandonment, then the combination of the two also does not create abandonment. The District Court was affirmed. St. v. Fisher, 2003 MT 207, 317 M 49, 75 P3d 338 (2003), following Baertsch v. Lewis & Clark County, 256 M 114, 845 P2d 106 (1992).

Statutory Requirements to Be Followed for Creation of County Road: The Pedersons contended that because the county had constructed their road, maintained it, and accepted a right-of-way easement for the road, the county's actions were tantamount to acceptance of the road as a county road. The Supreme Court held that state law required the County Commissioners to make an affirmative decision to establish a county road and that in the present case, there was no record of any action taken by the Board; therefore, a county road could not have been established. Pederson v. Dawson County, 2000 MT 339, 303 M 158, 17 P3d 393, 57 St. Rep. 1441 (2000).

Public Highway Established Pursuant to 1895 Law — Mere Nonuse by County Not Considered Abandonment — Inapplicability of Prescriptive Easement and Reverse Adverse Possession: The District Court found that the Tucker Gulch Road was clearly defined and in use by the public for at least 27 years prior to enactment of sec. 2600, The Codes and Statutes of Montana (1895), which declared all highways and roads then used by the public as public highways. However, the court went on to hold that it was not a petitioned county road and that there was a prescriptive easement by the public over the road that had been lost through abandonment and by reverse adverse possession when a new road was relocated near the old one. The District Court properly found that Tucker Gulch Road was a public highway; however, mere nonuse or lack of maintenance by the county was insufficient to indicate a clear intent to abandon the road without notice and a public hearing. Moreover, the county's failure to respond to several quiet title actions in which the county was not served and the county's adoption of a resolution naming the road did not indicate an intent to abandon. Abandonment cannot be established by mere implication. The Supreme Court cited Baertsch v. Lewis & Clark County, 256 M 114, 845 P2d 106 (1992), for the general rule that title to a public road may not be obtained by adverse possession. The Supreme Court also cited Granite County v. Komberec, 245 M 252, 800 P2d 166 (1990), and affirmed the District Court's finding that there was not a public prescriptive easement along the relocated new road because most of the nonpermissive use of the new road was by occasional recreationists. The District Court's conclusion that creation of the easement was not specific and that the easements were designed for the access of the owners for activities associated with residential living was in error, however, absent evidence in the access agreement or survey establishing such a restriction. Thus, the grant of unrestricted access to landowners who had owned a mine adjoining the property in question was not in error. McCauley v. Thompson-Nistler, 2000 MT 215, 301 M 81, 10 P3d 794, 57 St. Rep. 855 (2000), distinguishing Pub. Lands Access Ass'n, Inc. v. Boone & Crockett Club Foundation, Inc., 259 M 279, 856 P2d 525 (1993), and followed in Lee v. Musselshell County, 2004 MT 64, 320 M 294, 87 P3d 423 (2004).

Abandonment of State Highway — Statements by State Field Supervisor Contemporaneous With Removal of Asphalt Held Not Evidence of Official Act by State Evidencing Clear Intent to Abandon Easement — Asphalt Alone Not "Highway": DeVoe brought a declaratory judgment action against the state, claiming that the removal of asphalt from a curving intersection and statements by a supervisor of a crew removing the old roadway evidenced an intent by the state to abandon its easement granted in 1937. DeVoe argued that statements by James Williams, the state's field project manager in charge of removal of the asphalt from the section of highway on the state's easement claimed by DeVoe to have been abandoned, showed that the state intended to abandon the easement. The Supreme Court held that the statements by Williams, to the effect that the state might give up the easement, were evidence of an intent to abandon but did not constitute evidence of an official act by the state indicating a clear intent to abandon the 1937 easement. The Supreme Court also noted that a "highway" is defined as including the highway right-of-way and that, for this reason, removal of asphalt does not constitute removal of the highway. The Supreme Court held that the District Court properly granted summary judgment against DeVoe because the District Court properly found that the easement was still subject to highway-related uses. DeVoe v. St., 281 M 356, 935 P2d 256, 54 St. Rep. 207 (1997).

Abandonment of County Road — Discretion in County Commission:

Following remand of Baertsch, infra, the landowners appealed the District Court decision establishing the county's 100-foot right-of-way. The Supreme Court affirmed on all issues, holding that the trial court properly determined that: (1) procedural requirements for creating the right-of-way by statute were met; (2) the County Commission, in granting the petition for the right-of-way in 1890, was obviously granting its contents, which was a request for a 100-foot right-of-way; (3) mere nonuse of the right-of-way, even for extended periods of time, was insufficient in itself to indicate an intent to abandon the public property; (4) the public road could not be obtained by adverse possession; (5) failure to apply equitable estoppel did not create a manifest injustice to the landowners; and (6) because the county was not properly a party to the prior litigation, res judicata did not apply. Baertsch v. Lewis & Clark County, 256 M 114, 845 P2d 106, 49 St. Rep. 1162 (1992), followed in DeVoe v. St., 281 M 356, 935 P2d 256, 54 St. Rep. 207 (1997).

After the decision in Ingram-Clevenger, infra, essentially the same landowners filed their complaint in this action, contending that: (1) the county road in its entirety was never properly dedicated; (2) the county abandoned all that portion of the road right-of-way not actually used for roadway and barrow pits; (3) the landowners obtained title to the disputed portion of the right-of-way by adverse possession; and (4) the county's claim was barred by equitable estoppel. The county raised the defense of res judicata, and the District Court concluded that res judicata was applicable. On appeal, the Supreme Court held that the issues in the two cases were not the same, noting that in Ingram-Clevenger the title to the road was not involved whereas in this case the claims were related to the title and could not properly have been presented as part of the proceedings for vacation of the road. As a result, the present case was not barred under a theory of res judicata, merger, the rule against splitting causes of action, or the doctrine of equitable estoppel. The case was remanded for a trial of the issues on the merits. Baertsch v. Lewis & Clark County, 223 M 206, 727 P2d 504, 43 St. Rep. 1660 (1986).

This part provides that the abandonment of a county road is discretionary with the Board of County Commissioners; thus, unless discretion is manifestly abused, mandamus will not lie. Although the provisions of 7-14-2103(3) appear to mandate the abandonment of a road upon proper petition, this part, being more specific, governs and the provisions of 7-14-2103(3) may be interpreted to conform with this part. Ingram-Clevenger, Inc. v. Lewis & Clark County, 194 M 43, 636 P2d 1372, 38 St. Rep. 1696 (1981).

Adverse Possession Inapplicable to Title to Public Roads: The general rule in Montana law is that title to public roads may not be obtained by adverse possession. Baertsch v. Lewis & Clark County, 256 M 114, 845 P2d 106, 49 St. Rep. 1162 (1992), following Billings v. Pierce Packing Co., 117 M 255, 161 P2d 636 (1945).

Statutory Requirements to Be Followed: Madison County attempted to establish a county road across defendants' land. The county invoked eminent domain. Section 70-30-108 requires compliance with the statutory provisions relating to the establishment of county roads. Title 7, ch. 14, generally requires a chain of events involving: (1) the filing of a proper petition with the county; (2) the option of the county surveying a specific route; (3) the county determination of the affected landowners and assessment of their damages; (4) the county offer of an award of damages; and (5) if the award is rejected, the beginning of condemnation proceedings. In this case the county did not receive a proper petition. The county offered damages for one proposed route but began condemnation on a different route for which no offer was made. The proceedings did not comply with the statutes and were not cured by 7-14-2609. The county may not ignore the mandates of the statutes or they would be of no consequence. Madison County v. Elford, 203 M 293, 661 P2d 1266, 40 St. Rep. 457 (1983).

Equitable Estoppel — Not Applicable to Road Abandonment: County officers gave erroneous information on how to petition for abandonment of a county road. Although the public has a right to rely on the advice of public officers, the doctrine of equitable reliance was not applicable. Because the public interest in the disposal of public lands merits a higher consideration than the reliance on statements made by public officers, road abandonment requires substantial compliance with statutory requirements. Chennault v. Sager, 187 M 455, 610 P2d 173, 37 St. Rep. 857 (1980), distinguished, in cases involving a private right of action, in Quirin v. Weinberg, 252 M 386, 830 P2d 537, 49 St. Rep. 331 (1992), and followed in Baertsch v. Lewis & Clark County, 256 M 114, 845 P2d 106, 49 St. Rep. 1162 (1992).

Part Attorney General's Opinions

"Discontinue" Clarified: The term "discontinue", as used in Title 7, ch. 14, parts 26 and 41, is synonymous with the terms "abandon" and "vacate". 40 A.G. Op. 23 (1983).

Case Notes

Authority of County to Dedicate Public Road on Public Land Prior to Statehood: Defendants contended that plaintiff county had no authority to dedicate a public road over a school section of state land and requested summary judgment on the issue. Summary judgment was denied, and on appeal, the Supreme Court affirmed. The road was established several months before Montana statehood, at a time when the land was still under the authority of the federal government. Because the land had not yet been conveyed to the state, the Board of County Commissioners had authority under sec. 2477, Revised Statutes of the United States (1866), to create roads across the section of federal land. Powell County v. 5 Rockin' MS Angus Ranch, Inc., 2004 MT 337, 324 M 204, 102 P3d 1210 (2004). See also Peterson v. Baker, 81 P 681 (Wash. 1905), and U.S. v. Wyo., 195 F. Supp. 692 (D.C. Wyo. 1961).

County Roads Properly Established Prior to 1895 — Record Taken as a Whole — Summary Judgment Proper: Powell County filed an action seeking a declaratory judgment and injunctive relief to establish that two roads were considered public roads established in 1889 and 1903. Defendants denied that the roads were public and counterclaimed to quiet title. The District Court found for the county, and defendants appealed, but the Supreme Court affirmed. As held in McCauley v. Thompson-Nistler, 2000 MT 215, 301 M 81, 10 P3d 794 (2000), there were four ways that a public highway could be established prior to 1895: (1) by action of the proper authorities in accordance with statute; (2) by prescriptive use for the period required by statute; (3) by opening and dedication by the private owner; and (4) upon partition of real property. In the present case, there was some question whether the roads in question were properly established in 1889; however, as provided in Reid v. Park County, 192 M 231, 627 P2d 1210 (1981), a party is not required to produce complete documentary evidence of procedures that created a road many years ago, and the District Court may consider whether the record taken as a whole indicates that a public road was created. The record in this case sufficiently established the creation and dedication of the roads at issue, and absent any disputed material facts concerning whether the roads were properly created, summary judgment was proper. Powell County v. 5 Rockin' MS Angus Ranch, Inc., 2004 MT 337, 324 M 204, 102 P3d 1210 (2004).

No Intent to Abandon Public Road Despite Reconveyance of Surrounding Property to Private Interests: In 1939 and 1940, the Shelby Country Club conveyed 160 acres of land to the city of Shelby with the understanding that the city would beautify the property as a park and lease it to the country club for a golf course. The city graded a road to the property and maintained Club Road thereafter. When the city could not obtain funds for a park, the property was reconveyed to the country club, and eventually, plaintiff acquired most of the property, while an 11.75-acre parcel was acquired by defendants. Plaintiff sought to have Club Road declared a private road and asked for damages for defendants' use of the road. The city subsequently annexed the road into the city limits and intervened in the suit, along with Toole County, to protect the public interest. The District Court declared Club Road to be a public road, and the Supreme Court affirmed. Although the District Court relied on section 32-103, R.C.M. 1947, rather than the applicable section 1612, R.C.M. 1921, the fact remained that once Club Road was laid out by the city as a public road and maintained its character through more than 50 years of public use, it remained a public road despite the reconveyance of the surrounding property to private interests, absent any clear intent by the city to abandon it. Smith v. Russell, 2003 MT 326, 318 M 336, 80 P3d 431 (2003).

Substantial Evidence of Establishment of County Road — Quiet Title Denied: Plaintiffs petitioned to have a road crossing their property abandoned as a county road, and when the county denied the petition, plaintiffs sought to quiet title and injunctive relief to prevent public use of the road. The District Court denied the request. Applying Reid v. Park County, 192 M 231, 627 P2d 1210 (1981), the Supreme Court examined the record as a whole and determined that the road had been proposed, viewed, constructed, and dedicated in substantial compliance with laws in effect in 1915 and that long-time historic use clearly indicated that the road was a public road. Absent any evidence that the county ever took affirmative steps to indicate an intent to abandon the road, the road remained a public road, and the District Court was affirmed. Galassi v. Lincoln County Bd. of Comm'rs, 2003 MT 319, 318 M 288, 80 P3d 84 (2003).

County Right-of-Way Considered Easement — Injunction Proper Remedy to Ensure Access to Right-of-Way: Jefferson County filed a complaint for a temporary injunction, an order allowing entry upon land to survey McCarty Creek Road, which passed through McCauley's land to public land beyond, and an order setting a show cause hearing. The District Court issued the injunction allowing the survey and set a date for hearing. At the hearing, the court found extensive documentary evidence, dating back to 1883, confirming the existence of McCarty Creek Road and, in its final order, determined that the road, as it crossed McCauley's property, was a dedicated and established county road. The court further enjoined McCauley from interfering with access or obstructing ingress and egress on the road. The Supreme Court affirmed, finding substantial credible evidence to support the District Court's determination and finding no abuse of discretion in enjoining McCauley from interfering with the public use of McCarty Creek Road.

Jefferson County v. McCauley Ranches, 1999 MT 333, 297 M 392, 994 P2d 11, 56 St. Rep. 1329 (1999), following Bolinger v. Bozeman, 158 M 507, 493 P2d 1062 (1972), *Reid v. Contempt Order Against County for Failure to Follow Proper Procedures Annulled: The lower court found the county in contempt for abandoning and changing a portion of a road without following the procedures suggested in an earlier court order. The Supreme Court stated that not all of the record had been before the lower court. An examination of the entire record indicated that the county had tried to follow the procedures set out in statute and the earlier court order. The Supreme Court annulled the contempt order and suggested that the parties might want to move to have the injunction against changing or abandoning the relevant portion of the road dissolved. State ex rel. Fallon County v. District Court, 245 M 382, 801 P2d 610, 47 St. Rep. 2187 (1990).

Quiet Title Action — Record Taken as a Whole: A landowner filed an action to quiet title to a county road established 80 years earlier, claiming that defects in the 1902 proceedings prevented establishment of a statutorily created 60-foot-wide public highway and that the existing public road was acquired by prescriptive use and was limited to the greatest width actually used. The record contained the actual petition to establish a road, signed by more than 20 residents of the area, including the appellant's predecessor in interest. The District Court decreed the road to be a 60-foot-wide declared county right-of-way, and the Supreme Court affirmed. The county is not required to prove on the face of the record that public officials had jurisdiction to create a public road if the record, taken as a whole, shows that a public road was created. Sheldon v. Flathead County, 218 M 270, 707 P2d 540, 42 St. Rep. 1573 (1985). See also O'Neill v. St., 225 M 364, 732 P2d 1330, 44 St. Rep. 305 (1987).

Abandoned Public Road to Revert to Abutting Property Owners: An action was filed to quiet title to a county road that had been established as a public road in 1909. The certificate of dedication of the 1909 plat stated that the streets therein were "granted and dedicated to the use of the public forever". In 1944, pursuant to section 1635, R.C.M. 1935, a petition for county road closure was filed. That same year the petition was granted by the County Commissioners. After 1944, neither the plaintiffs nor their predecessors in interest paid any taxes on the roadway and no portion of the roadway was fenced into the lands now belonging to the plaintiffs until 1980. The court quieted title in the plaintiffs, ruling that the 1909 plat dedication was the equivalent of a right-of-way deed under which the public acquired only the right-of-way and the incidents necessary to its enjoyment and that upon abandonment the fee in the street reverted to the abutting landowners, with each abutting landowner taking fee from the edge of his property to the center of the street. Bailey v. Ravalli County, 201 M 138, 653 P2d 139, 39 St. Rep. 2010 (1982), followed in Herreid v. Hauck, 254 M 496, 839 P2d 571, 49 St. Rep. 884 (1992).

Proceedings to Abandon Public Roadway Not to Be Questioned When More Than Thirty Years Have Elapsed Since Abandonment: In 1944, a roadway was abandoned by the County Commissioners pursuant to proceedings instituted under section 1635, R.C.M. 1935. In its review of the District Court's 1981 decision to quiet title to the roadway in the abutting property owners, the Supreme Court ruled that even though the record does not affirmatively show that the statutory notice requirements were met, in the absence of any question being raised by abutting landowners or the county over a period of more than 30 years, the proceedings cannot now be questioned. Bailey v. Ravalli County, 201 M 138, 653 P2d 139, 39 St. Rep. 2010 (1982).

Quiet Title Action — Petition to Establish Road: A landowner brought an action to quiet title to a road crossing his property. Despite jurisdictional defects, such as failure to require production of a copy of the petition establishing the road or proof that the petition was signed by 10 qualified petitioners, the record taken as a whole showed that a public road was created. Reid v. Park County, 192 M 231, 627 P2d 1210, 38 St. Rep. 631 (1981), followed in Jefferson County v. McCauley Ranches, 1999 MT 333, 297 M 392, 994 P2d 11, 56 St. Rep. 1329 (1999), and Galassi v. Lincoln County Bd. of Comm'rs, 2003 MT 319, 318 M 288, 80 P3d 84 (2003), and Lee v. Musselshell County, 2004 MT 64, 320 M 294, 87 P3d 423 (2004).

Insufficient Petition to Abandon — Number of Signatures: A petition for abandonment of a county road without the necessary number of signatures does not substantially comply with statutes on abandonment. Thus, the County Commissioners were without authority to act with respect to the abandonment. Chennault v. Sager, 187 M 455, 610 P2d 173, 37 St. Rep. 857 (1980).

Petition by District Freeholders Affected — Majority in District Required: When the only persons signing a petition for abandonment of a county road were the four freeholders residing on land adjacent to the road, their petition was insufficient. "A majority of the freeholders of the road district" cannot be construed "a majority of those directly affected", even though the road district in this instance consisted of an entire county containing 40,000 residents. Chennault v. Sager, 187 M 455, 610 P2d 173, 37 St. Rep. 857 (1980).

Substantial Compliance: Under former law, technical strictness in complying with the statute was not required, only substantial compliance. Oates v. Knutson, 182 M 195, 595 P2d 1181, 36 St. Rep. 1011 (1979).

"Discontinue" Clarified: The term "discontinue", as used in Title 7, ch. 14, parts 26 and 41, is synonymous with the terms "abandon" and "vacate". 40 A.G. Op. 23 (1983).

Case Notes

Substantial Evidence of Establishment of County Road — Quiet Title Denied: Plaintiffs petitioned to have a road crossing their property abandoned as a county road, and when the county denied the petition, plaintiffs sought to quiet title and injunctive relief to prevent public use of the road. The District Court denied the request. Applying Reid v. Park County, 192 M 231, 627 P2d 1210 (1981), the Supreme Court examined the record as a whole and determined that the road had been proposed, viewed, constructed, and dedicated in substantial compliance with laws in effect in 1915 and that long-time historic use clearly indicated that the road was a public road. Absent any evidence that the county ever took affirmative steps to indicate an intent to abandon the road, the road remained a public road, and the District Court was affirmed. Galassi v. Lincoln County Bd. of Comm'rs, 2003 MT 319, 318 M 288, 80 P3d 84 (2003).

No Abandonment of County Road Through Combination of Nonuse and Building of Highway: Defendants fenced a section of Flathead County road G since 1955, placing five gates across the road in various places. The road provided the only access for a land company and was used by state personnel to access state lands. The road was established in 1893, and no document on record indicated that the road was ever abandoned. Defendants refused to remove the gates upon request, so suit was filed to enjoin them from erecting and maintaining gates across the road, and because no genuine issue of fact existed to show that the county abandoned or intended to abandon the road, the District Court granted summary judgment to the state. To prove abandonment of a road by a government entity, there must be a showing of a clear intent to abandon and the conduct that is claimed to demonstrate the intent to abandon must be some affirmative official act, rather than mere implication. On appeal, defendants argued that the county evidenced its clear intent to abandon the right-of-way by the coupling of two circumstances: (1) relocation of a roadway by the public authority; and (2) subsequent nonuse of the roadway. The Supreme Court found the argument illogical. If nonuse does not create abandonment and the building of a highway does not create abandonment, then the combination of the two also does not create abandonment. The District Court was affirmed. St. v. Fisher, 2003 MT 207, 317 M 49, 75 P3d 338 (2003), following Baertsch v. Lewis & Clark County, 256 M 114, 845 P2d 106 (1992).

Public Highway Established Pursuant to 1895 Law — Mere Nonuse by County Not Considered Abandonment — Inapplicability of Prescriptive Easement and Reverse Adverse Possession: The District Court found that the Tucker Gulch Road was clearly defined and in use by the public for at least 27 years prior to enactment of sec. 2600, The Codes and Statutes of Montana (1895), which declared all highways and roads then used by the public as public highways. However, the court went on to hold that it was not a petitioned county road and that there was a prescriptive easement by the public over the road that had been lost through abandonment and by reverse adverse possession when a new road was relocated near the old one. The District Court properly found that Tucker Gulch Road was a public highway; however, mere nonuse or lack of maintenance by the county was insufficient to indicate a clear intent to abandon the road without notice and a public hearing. Moreover, the county's failure to respond to several quiet title actions in which the county was not served and the county's adoption of a resolution naming the road did not indicate an intent to abandon. Abandonment cannot be established by mere implication. The Supreme Court cited Baertsch v. Lewis & Clark County, 256 M 114, 845 P2d 106 (1992), for the general rule that title to a public road may not be obtained by adverse possession. The Supreme Court also cited Granite County v. Komberec, 245 M 252, 800 P2d 166 (1990), and affirmed the District Court's finding that there was not a public prescriptive easement along the relocated new road because most of the nonpermissive use of the new road was by occasional recreationists. The District Court's conclusion that creation of the easement was not specific and that the easements were designed for the access of the owners for activities associated with residential living was in error, however, absent evidence in the access agreement or survey establishing such a restriction. Thus, the grant of unrestricted access to landowners who had owned a mine adjoining the property in question was not in error. McCauley v. Thompson-Nistler, 2000 MT 215, 301 M 81, 10 P3d 794, 57 St. Rep. 855 (2000), distinguishing Pub. Lands Access Ass'n, Inc. v. Boone & Crockett Club Foundation, Inc., 259 M 279, 856 P2d 525 (1993), and followed in Lee v. Musselshell County, 2004 MT 64, 320 M 294, 87 P3d 423 (2004).

Court Jurisdiction: The District Court did not follow proper statutory procedure for obtaining jurisdiction to abandon or order the abandonment of a road; therefore, it did not have jurisdiction to order County Commissioners to abandon the road and could not hold the Commissioners in contempt for violating the order. Bd. of County Comm'rs v. District Court, 203 M 44, 659 P2d 266, 40 St. Rep. 284 (1983), followed in Lee v. Musselshell County, 2004 MT 64, 320 M 294, 87 P3d 423 (2004).

Case Notes

Closed for School Purposes: Erection of fence by school board on city-owned land adjacent to street in such a manner as to block neither vehicular nor pedestrian traffic would not be a discontinuance, closing, or vacation of all or part of street and would not fall within natural import of language "closed for school purposes" as used in this section, so that approval by 75% of lot owners on street was not required. State ex rel. Smart v. Big Timber, 165 M 328, 528 P2d 688 (1974).

Evidence of Public Detriment: Where the record did not show that the Commissioners made a finding of fact that a street could be closed without detriment to the public interest but it did show a detriment to abutting landowners, to the city, and to the public interest generally, the petition for discontinuance should have been denied. *Miller v. Operation of Ferry a Proprietary Function: The county operated an aerial basket carrier to transport the public across a river in the winter season when the county ferry was inoperable. The county was found to be performing a proprietary function in operating the carrier and hence was liable for the plaintiff's injuries sustained while attempting to board the carrier. (Section 1, Ch. 38, L. 1943, declared such operation by the county to be a governmental function.) *Jacoby v. Part 41
General Provisions Related to Municipal Trafficways and Public Grounds

Part Attorney General's Opinions

“Discontinue” Clarified: The term “discontinue”, as used in Title 7, ch. 14, parts 26 and 41, is synonymous with the terms “abandon” and “vacate”. 40 A.G. Op. 23 (1983).

7-14-4101. Municipal authority to establish, alter, and maintain trafficways and public grounds.

Case Notes

City Authority to Plant Trees: Plaintiff filed suit against the city to prevent the planting of trees in the boulevard area of the sidewalk in front on his property. The District Court dismissed plaintiff's complaint for failure to state a cause of action because the City Council has broad discretion under this section to alter and maintain city streets and avenues, including the planting of trees. A statement by the City Council Public Works Committee that no trees would be planted if plaintiff objected did not create a contract binding on the city. The elements of a contract are missing here, and there was no action by the City Council as required by 7-5-4121 to create a contract. Duncan v. Missoula, 239 M 201, 779 P2d 519, 46 St. Rep. 1619 (1989).

Limited Power to Vacate: The power of a city to vacate, discontinue, or close a street is limited by 7-14-2616. State ex rel. Smart v. Big Timber, 165 M 328, 528 P2d 688 (1974).

Issuance of License Conditional on Removal of Encroachment: Although a town has express authority to compel the removal of encroachments upon public property within its boundaries, it may do so indirectly under 7-21-4101 by tying the removal of a house encroaching on an alley to the issuance of a license to operate a mobile home court. Barnes v. Belgrade, 164 M 467, 524 P2d 1112 (1974).

Method of Issuing Bonds: When an indebtedness is incurred for the paving, repairing, and widening of streets, the accepted method of issuing bonds is by means of a special assessment and the creation of a special improvement district under 7-12-4131. Dietrich v. Deer Lodge, 124 M 8, 218 P2d 708 (1950).

No Power to Incur Indebtedness: This section does not give a City or Town Council the power to incur indebtedness or issue bonds for street purposes. Dietrich v. Deer Lodge, 124 M 8, 218 P2d 708 (1950).

Street Work Within Exclusive Jurisdiction of City: With relation to work to be done on the streets of a city, such streets are within the exclusive jurisdiction of the municipality through its Council. State ex rel. Butte v. Healy, 105 M 227, 70 P2d 437 (1937).

Case Notes

Municipality's Authority to Adopt Ordinance Limiting University Students' Rights to Park on City Streets: A university student association challenged the legality of a city ordinance limiting parking in residential areas near the university to residents of those areas. The Supreme Court held that municipalities have the power to regulate parking and that regulating parking to relieve congestion in certain residential neighborhoods was a reasonable exercise of governmental authority. Assoc. Students v. Missoula, 261 M 231, 862 P2d 380, 50 St. Rep. 1301 (1993).

Equitable Estoppel — Municipal Corporations: After a building permit was issued and construction began, it was discovered that the building encroached upon a city street. Relying on the assurance of the City Council that the building would not have to be removed, the builder resumed construction. Later the City Council ordered the building removed. Although the doctrine of equitable estoppel is applied to municipal corporations with great caution and only in exceptional cases, all six elements were present in this case. Boulder v. Bullock, 193 M 493, 632 P2d 716, 38 St. Rep. 1344 (1981).

Issuance of License Conditional on Removal of Encroachment: Although a town has express authority to compel the removal of encroachments upon public property within its boundaries, it may do so indirectly under 7-21-4101 by tying the removal of a house encroaching on an alley to the issuance of a license to operate a mobile home court. Barnes v. Belgrade, 164 M 467, 524 P2d 1112 (1974).

State Law and Ordinance Covering Same Subject: Since state traffic laws in effect in 1951 covered offenses both within and without municipalities, a city ordinance prohibiting drunken driving and providing for a penalty was void. An ordinance punishing an act made penal by an existing state law must yield to the state law. Billings v. Herold, 130 M 138, 296 P2d 263 (1956).

Parking Meters: The state has given the cities and towns a broad and comprehensive power over the streets within their limits. The use of parking meters as an aid in regulating motor vehicle traffic is a valid exercise of this power. Glodt v. Missoula, 121 M 178, 190 P2d 545 (1948).

Property Owner's Liability — Removal of Snow: A city ordinance which requires a property owner to keep the adjoining sidewalks free from snow and ice under penalty of fine is not intended for the protection of the individual by the owner. Rather, the owner is aiding the city in discharging the city's primary duty. Failure to comply with the ordinance with consequent injury to a pedestrian does not give rise to a cause of action against the owner. Steen v. Grenz, 167 M 279, 538 P2d 16 (1975); Childers v. Deschamps, 87 M 505, 290 P 261 (1930).

Electric Lighting System Owned by Corporation: Under this section, 69-4-101, and the sections authorizing special improvement districts, an improvement district may be created for the purpose of maintaining an electric lighting system and furnishing electrical current to the system even though the system is owned by an individual or corporation. Marchi v. Brackman, 130 M 228, 299 P2d 761 (1956).

Nuisance Action Improper: A claim under this section that parking meters are a nuisance and obstruction necessitating removal by the city is improper, as this section merely authorizes a city to clean and enforce cleaning of streets. Glodt v. Missoula, 121 M 178, 190 P2d 545 (1948).

Garbage Removal Within Police Power: The authority of cities to remove garbage and to provide a special tax against the property from which it is removed to meet the cost falls within the police power in the interest of public health. N. Pac. Ry. v. Lutey, 104 M 321, 66 P2d 785 (1937).

Duty of City — Sidewalks: If a city ordinance requires the abutting owner to keep a sidewalk in repair, the city's duty to the public is not affected; it merely makes the abutting owner a joint agent with the city for the performance of the city's duties. Headley v. Hammond Bldg., Inc., 97 M 243, 33 P2d 574 (1934).

Nuisance Created by City's Disposal of Garbage: Although a city has the power to regulate the removal and disposition of garbage, it does not have the right to so deposit it as to create a condition injurious to health or offensive to the senses and thus interfere with the comfortable enjoyment of life and property. Lennon v. Butte, 67 M 101, 214 P 1101 (1923).

Removal of Snow and Ice by Occupant: An ordinance required the occupant of premises to keep adjoining sidewalks free of ice and snow. As the remedy against the occupant is merely cumulative and not inconsistent with the power granted, a city has the right to proceed against the occupant as well as the owner. Helena v. Kent, 32 M 279, 80 P 258 (1905).

Attorney General's Opinions

Authority to Tax for Garbage Removal Services: A city does not have authority under 7-14-4106(1) to impose a tax for city garbage removal services; rather, 7-6-4401 provides this authority. 38 A.G. Op. 30 (1979).

(Annotator's Note: Section 7-14-4106(1), MCA 1978, contained a typographical error that was determinative of this aspect of the opinion. The error was corrected in the Official Report of the Code Commissioner—1979 at page 8. Section 7-14-4106(1) does indeed authorize a city to impose a tax for city garbage removal services.)

2001 Amendment: Chapter 574 near end substituted "charge" for "tax"; and deleted former (2) that read: "(2) The city or town council may further, until full liquidation is realized, include in such tax an amount not to exceed 20% of any floating indebtedness consisting of valid outstanding warrants drawn and issued against the fund or funds used to defray the expense of removing such matter, existing at the close of business on June 30, 1943, together with not to exceed such per centum of the current interest thereon from such last-mentioned date. The money derived from such portion of such levy and assessment for such additional amount, if included in such tax, may only be expended toward liquidating such floating indebtedness, together with the interest thereon, and not otherwise"; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective July 1, 2001.

Case Notes

Assessment of All Property Within City: It is not always possible to ascertain from what property garbage in the streets arises. Whether all of the property in a city derives a benefit from its removal is doubtful; however, its removal is necessary for the public health. If the levy in question covers too much property, the assessment is unlawful in part only. N. Pac. Ry. v. Lutey, 104 M 321, 66 P2d 785 (1937).

Garbage Removal Within Police Power: The authority of cities to remove garbage and to provide a special tax against the property from which it is removed to meet the cost falls within the police power in the interest of public health. N. Pac. Ry. v. Lutey, 104 M 321, 66 P2d 785 (1937).

Tax Similar to Special Assessment: The special tax provided for by this section in essence requires property owners to pay for services rendered. It is similar to a special assessment in that the city must determine what property should be assessed. Such a determination, in the absence of fraud or manifest mistake, is conclusive. N. Pac. Ry. v. Lutey, 104 M 321, 66 P2d 785 (1937).

7-14-4107. Maintenance of trafficways.Compiler's Comments

1983 Amendment: Near beginning of section, after "town council" substituted "may" for "has power to"; after "for the" substituted "maintenance" for "sprinkling"; near middle of section, after "town and" substituted "may fix" for "to fix the"; and at end of section, inserted references to Title 7, ch. 12, part 44.

Case Notes

Burden on County to Show Material Fact Regarding Height of Hedge — Nonconforming Use Not Proved — Summary Judgment Improper: A municipal code provision, passed in 1978, regulated, for traffic safety purposes, the height of hedges that could be grown on corners of intersections at 3 feet, but also permitted the existence of nonconforming uses prior to 1978. Ramirez was injured in a vehicle accident at an intersection where the hedge was taller than 5 feet and sought to hold the county accountable for failing its duty to enforce the ordinance. In granting summary judgment to the county, the District Court held the hedge to be a prior nonconforming use, noting that the hedge had been there since at least 1959. The Supreme Court reversed, finding that the county had offered no proof that the hedge was either taller than 3 feet in 1978 or had not been trimmed since 1978. The county did not meet its burden of showing the absence of this genuine issue of material fact; thus, summary judgment was improper. Ramirez v. Hatch, 1999 MT 107, 294 M 316, 979 P2d 1281, 56 St. Rep. 441 (1999).

Sprinkling as Maintenance — Liability of City: Because the sprinkling of streets is related more to the maintenance of the streets than to public health, it is a corporate rather than a governmental function. A city is therefore liable for injuries arising from the negligence of the driver of a sprinkling truck. Griffith v. Butte, 72 M 552, 234 P 829 (1925).

Sidewalk Along State Highway Within Department's Jurisdiction: A city cannot levy a special assessment for a sidewalk installed by the city along a state highway without the involvement of the Department of Highways (now Department of Transportation). *Palffy v. Purchase of Sidewalk, Curb, or Gutter Warrants by City Officials Prohibited: An elected or appointed city official may not purchase a sidewalk, curb, or gutter warrant without violating the prohibition against city officers' purchasing city warrants. These warrants are not covered by the exceptions of 2-2-204, nor are they held by a city officer for services rendered or evidence of the funded indebtedness of the city. 38 A.G. Op. 79 (1980).

2001 Amendment: Chapter 354 in (3) in first sentence after “must be published” deleted “or posted in three public places” and in second sentence substituted “as provided in 7-1-4127” for “in a newspaper or posted at least 1 week before the petition is acted on”; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective October 1, 2001.

1989 Amendment: In (1), in middle of introductory phrase after “town”, deleted “upon the petition in writing of all owners of lots on the street or alley” and at end inserted “upon”; inserted (1)(a) and (1)(b) concerning petitions; and in (2), after “school purposes”, inserted clause relating to discontinuance of street or alley and at end, after “closed”, deleted “will be required”.

Section Not Codified: The last paragraph of section 11-2801, R.C.M. 1947, a validation clause, was not codified in the MCA. This clause has not been repealed and is still valid law. Citation may be made to sec. 1, Ch. 36, L. 1945.

Case Notes

Authority to Permanently Close: The City Commission had authority to make a temporary closure permanent without a further petition when the original petition requested that action be taken “on a trial basis until a final determination has been made by the City Commission that the overall effect . . . has been beneficial”. This language gave the Commission continuing authority after the closure on a temporary basis. Wynia v. Great Falls, 183 M 458, 600 P2d 802, 36 St. Rep. 1589 (1979).

Closure Versus Vacation: Closure and vacation are not synonymous. The former merely alters the use of a street, while the latter effects the vacation of the city's legal interest in the street. Therefore, a city may close a street without meeting the notice requirements of 7-3-4448 if it complies with the notice requirements of this section, and in such a case the requirement of 7-3-4448 that the right of access be maintained does not apply. Further, there is no reversion to the lot owners of half the closed street since the city retains its rights in the street. Wynia v. Great Falls, 183 M 458, 600 P2d 802, 36 St. Rep. 1589 (1979).

Percentage of Signatures Required — Closure for School Purposes: When the petition for closure requested the closure of four segments of a street, the required number of signatures was 75% of the lot owners of the whole part of the street to be closed and not 75% of the lot owners abutting on a particular closed segment. The whole part of the street to be closed was determined by looking at the total effect of the simultaneous closure of the four segments. Wynia v. Great Falls, 183 M 458, 600 P2d 802, 36 St. Rep. 1589 (1979).

Restriction of Access by Street Closure Not Compensable: The abutting lot owners do not suffer compensable damage when a street closure restricts their access to their property as long as some “adequate and reasonable” means of access are preserved. Wynia v. Great Falls, 183 M 458, 600 P2d 802, 36 St. Rep. 1589 (1979).

Liability of City for Actions of Executive Branch Officers of City With Self-Governing Powers: Although this section gives city councils the power to regulate and repair sidewalks, the section does not apply when a city has adopted a charter that provides for separate branches of government and delegates different duties to each branch. When a charter gave the executive branch the power to enforce the ordinance pertaining to sidewalk repair, any negligent acts or omissions connected with the maintenance of sidewalks were attributable to the executive branch and neither the city's legislative body nor its agents were implicated by the executive's failure to repair the sidewalks. Accordingly, the city was not immune from suit under 2-9-111 for the negligent maintenance of a city sidewalk. Woods v. Billings, 248 M 254, 811 P2d 534, 48 St. Rep. 421 (1991).

Lack of Notice: An assessment levied in 1908 to pay for the expense incurred by a city in the construction of a sidewalk without first giving the owner of the abutting property notice and affording him an opportunity to construct it himself, as required by the statute and an ordinance of the city then in force, was invalid and constituted no lien on the property. *Murray v. 2007 Amendment: Chapter 61 made minor changes in style. Amendment effective October 1, 2007.

Case Notes

Railroad Right-of-Way — Extent of Uses: When the grant of a right-of-way is made to a railroad company without restrictions, it contemplates not merely the railroad as it may be established in the first instance but the railroad with all its necessary appurtenances as it may from time to time come necessarily to be. The construction and use of coal docks by the railroad company within its right-of-way are therefore proper. Smith v. N. Pac. Ry., 50 M 539, 148 P 393 (1915).

Commercial Railroad Distinguished From Street Railroad: A mining company's railroad used for carriage of its and the public's supplies, ore, and merchandise is not a commercial railroad as distinguished from a street railroad. Kipp v. Davis-Daly Copper Co., 41 M 509, 110 P 237 (1910).

Mining Company's Railroad as Public Use: A city may permit the use of its streets in any manner and for any purpose reasonably incident to public travel. Because modes of public travel change, the owner of adjacent property is presumed to have received compensation when the way was created for changing public uses. The use of a mining company's railroad for carriage of its and the public's supplies, ore, and merchandise which otherwise would be transported by teams is a public use. *Kipp v. Not Applicable to Street Railroads: Because this section does not apply to street railroads, an ordinance requiring a street railway company to light its track within the corporate limits without expense to the city is void. Helena Light & Ry. v. Helena, 47 M 18, 130 P 446 (1913).

7-14-4303. Authorization for and regulation of street railroads.Case Notes

Railroads and Street Railroads Distinguished: The frequent use in the laws of this state of the prefix "street" before "railroads" or "railways" indicates the legislative intention to maintain a distinction between railroads and street railroads. In construing enactments pertaining to railroads, they should not be held to apply to street railroads unless the intention is apparent. Helena Light & Ry. v. Helena, 47 M 18, 130 P 446 (1913).

Legislative Finding of "Public Purpose" Upheld: Legislation having for its purpose the eradication of slums and the substitution of safe and sanitary dwellings is well within the definition of "public purpose". The Legislature having so declared, it is not the duty or the prerogative of the Supreme Court to interfere with that finding in the absence of a clear showing that the determination was wrong. Rutherford v. Great Falls, 107 M 512, 86 P2d 656 (1939).

County Housing Authority — Implicit Power to Finance Rehabilitation of Private Dwellings: A county housing authority has implicit statutory power to administer the Community Development Block Grant (CDBG) program for the rehabilitation of privately owned housing, and a general power county government may therefore administer the CDBG program through a county housing authority. This conclusion is reached because the Legislature recognizes the existence of substandard housing in rural as well as urban areas, and the constitution mandates the resolution of reasonable doubts in favor of local government power. 40 A.G. Op. 17 (1983).

General Government Power County — No Power to Finance Rehabilitation of Private Dwellings: A county with general government powers has no inherent authority to administer a program for the rehabilitation of privately owned housing funded under the Community Development Block Grant program since no statutes expressly confer this power on general power county governments. 40 A.G. Equitable Estoppel Defense Defeated — Failure of Counterclaim to State Claim for Which Relief May Be Granted: The city of Whitefish sought and obtained a permanent injunction against Troy Town Pump, Inc. (Town Pump), requiring removal of a sign that violated the city's ordinance. Town Pump's defense was that the city's approval of the original building plan equitably estopped the city's claim. Alternatively, Town Pump counterclaimed for the costs of remodeling the building. In order for the city to obtain a permanent injunction, it first had to overcome Town Pump's counterclaim that it was equitably estopped from doing so. The city successfully defeated the counterclaim. Absent a legal theory upon which to base damages, the city could not be held liable, so the District Court did not err in dismissing Town Pump's counterclaim for damages on grounds that it failed to state a claim for which relief could be granted. Whitefish v. Troy Town Pump, Inc., 2001 MT 58, 304 M 346, 21 P3d 1026 (2001).

Revocation of Prior City Approval of Building Plan Based on Incorrect Conclusion That Proposed Fascia Did Not Constitute Sign — Equitable Estoppel Inapplicable — Jurisdiction Properly Retained: The city of Whitefish adopted a master plan that included a policy providing that commercial signs are a blighting factor and that contained strict limits on the size and character of signs. Troy Town Pump, Inc. (Town Pump), submitted blueprints to the city for a new exterior, referred to as a fascia, that included lettering above an awning. The city manager reviewed the blueprints for the design before it was installed and, believing that only the written words but not the entire awning constituted a sign, approved the design and issued a building permit. When installed, the awning consisted of a band of translucent, raspberry-colored material 4 feet 11 inches high, extending about 162 feet across the entire length of the front of the building. Four rows of white fluorescent light tubes located behind the awning extended the entire length of the material and lit it from behind, and four neon lights were placed in front of the awning, which ran horizontally the entire length of the front of the building and approximately 42 feet along the rear of the building. The City Council concluded that the entire awning constituted a sign that violated the city ordinance because it was too big and directed Town Pump to remove the lighting. When Town Pump refused, the city sought an injunction prohibiting Town Pump from operating the lighting. Town Pump's defense was that the city's claims were barred under the doctrine of equitable estoppel, because the design had already been reviewed and the building permit issued. During a bench trial, the city manager testified that if he had realized that the fascia would create a lighting scheme that dwarfed the lettering and far exceeded general lighting needs, he would not have approved the building permit. The District Court issued a permanent injunction requiring removal of all lighting and reserved jurisdiction to determine whether the entire awning constituted a sign within the meaning of the ordinance, thereby justifying further injunctive relief. In a subsequent order, the court granted the city's motion for judgment on the pleadings on the counterclaim on grounds that the counterclaim failed to state a claim upon which relief could be granted. Town Pump appealed. The Supreme Court held that original approval of the building permit was based on an incorrect misrepresentation of law, not fact, that the fascia did not constitute a sign. Thus, Town Pump failed to establish the first element of equitable estoppel, which requires a misrepresentation of fact. Further examination revealed that Town Pump failed to establish even one element of equitable estoppel, dooming its defense to the city's request for an injunction. The city's broad definition of sign was intended to include not only traditional signs, but also embellishments intended to draw attention to a traditional sign or to the business itself, so the District Court did not abuse its discretion in ordering removal of the lighting. Further, under the city's broad request for relief, the court did not err in retaining jurisdiction to allow the city to return to court after the lighting was removed to consider an order requiring removal of the awning. The court simply exercised its discretion in a manner that allowed it to grant all relief necessary in the matter. Whitefish v. Troy Town Pump, Inc., 2001 MT 58, 304 M 346, 21 P3d 1026 (2001).

Arbitrary Denial of Building Permit by City Council — City, City Council, and Individual Council Members Liable: In an action under 43 U.S.C. 1983, the court of appeals upheld the District Court's holding that the Billings City Council's refusal to issue a building permit after the applicant had satisfied all the requirements for issuing the permit was an arbitrary and capricious action that deprived the applicant of his substantive due process rights. The city, City Council, and individual members of the City Council have no immunity from such action and are all liable for damages. Bateson v. Geisse, 857 F2d 1300 (9th Cir. 1988).

Case Notes

"Area" Concept — Taking: The "area" concept of taking, that so long as a city establishes boundaries of an urban renewal district it need not prove necessity for taking individual properties, does not prevail if it is shown that the property is not reasonably necessary to the clearance of the blighted area and prevention of recurrence of blight. Helena v. DeWolf, 162 M 57, 508 P2d 122 (1973).

No Conclusive Presumption of Public Use: Condemnation by a city for urban renewal of a blighted area does not create a conclusive presumption of public use and necessity as provided by 7-5-4106. Helena v. DeWolf, 162 M 57, 508 P2d 122 (1973).

Showing of Necessity to Take Property: A city sought to condemn property for parking facilities designed to serve structures to be built by private enterprise. Because the city was unable to predict when such structures would be built, if at all, a showing of necessity to take property for an urban renewal project was not made. Helena v. DeWolf, 162 M 57, 508 P2d 122 (1973).

The department of commerce may request the board of examiners to issue the bonds for one or more specified projects for a single or multiple entities in one or more series, but the total amount of bonds issued may not exceed $20 million. Bond proceeds are appropriated to the department, and the department is authorized to construct the infrastructure improvements or acquire the equipment, to contract with the city or county in which a project is located, to contract with a certified community lead organization, as defined in 90-1-116, or to contract with the developer of an approved project for the construction of the infrastructure improvement or the acquisition of equipment upon a determination that it is in the best interest of the project. The plans and specifications for the infrastructure and equipment to be financed from the proceeds of the bonds must be approved by and be acceptable to the department following a review of the plans and specifications of the infrastructure by the architecture and engineering division of the department of administration, but the design and construction of the infrastructure and the acquisition of equipment for approved projects are not, with the exception of Title 18, chapter 2, part 4, subject to the public procurement requirements contained in Title 18. The portions of aerospace transportation and technology infrastructure development projects that are infrastructure and equipment financed with bond proceeds are owned by the state, and may be leased to the local government creating the tax increment financing district or to the entity for whom the project is created at a fair value, taking into consideration job creation and overall tax revenue generated by the project the use must be governed by a development agreement between the state and the developer of the project. The agreement may provide for the use of the infrastructure and equipment at less than fair market value, taking into consideration the number of jobs to be created by the project, the salary range of the jobs, the amount of capital contributed by the developer, and the projected tax revenue to be received by the state and local governments from the project over the term of the lease or use agreement. For purposes of this section, state and local governments may not provide telecommunications or other services in competition with private providers unless private providers cannot provide the services.

(3) It is the intent of the legislature that debt service payments for the bonds authorized by this section will be covered by the totality of the taxes generated by the aerospace transportation and technology infrastructure development projects to be calculated by an economic impact analysis of the projects on state tax revenue. Prior to requesting the board of examiners to issue the bonds, the department of commerce shall determine that the developer of a proposed project has the financial ability to construct and implement the project based upon audited financial statements. When requesting the board of examiners to issue the bonds, the department of commerce shall present to the department of administration for presentation to the board of examiners the following:

(a) evidence satisfactory to the board that each aerospace transportation and technology infrastructure development project has committed itself to locate its project in Montana and has acquired a site for the project; and

(b) a certificate signed by the director of the office of budget and program planning that the tax revenue to be received by the state from each aerospace transportation and technology infrastructure development project over the term of the bonds will be sufficient to pay the principal amount of and interest on and interest on the bonds issued to assist with the specific project.

(4) For the purposes of this section, "equipment" means machinery used in the design, manufacture, repair, and maintenance of aerospace transportation and technology projects." Amendment effective May 5, 2001.

Section 1, Ch. 6, Sp. L. May 2000, amended sec. 5, Ch. 269, L. 1999, to provide: "Authorization of bonds. (1) The board of examiners is authorized to issue and sell general obligation bonds in an amount not exceeding $20 million for aerospace transportation and technology infrastructure development projects, as defined in 7-15-4283, except as provided in subsection (2) of this section, in accordance with the terms and in the manner required by Title 17, chapter 5, part 8, and upon the authority granted to the board by this section. The bonds are in addition to any other authorization to the board to issue and sell general obligation bonds and subject to the conditions set forth in this section.

General Municipal Statutes Not Applicable to Housing Authority: After the City Council exercises its discretion to empower the Mayor to appoint Commissioners and proceed with incorporation of a housing authority, appropriates money for the authority's first-year expenses, and does other acts of similar import, the general municipal statutes cease to have any further application to the authority, it being under the exclusive control of 7-15-4401, et seq., and 7-15-4501, et seq. State ex rel. Great Falls Housing Authority v. Great Falls, 110 M 318, 100 P2d 915 (1940).

Contract With City for Slum Clearance: A contract between a city and a housing authority whereby the city agreed to eliminate unsafe and unsanitary dwellings in the city to an extent at least equal to the number of new dwelling units to be erected by the authority and to cooperate generally in the program of the authority was valid. Rutherford v. Great Falls, 107 M 512, 86 P2d 656 (1939).

Power of Municipal and County Housing Authorities to Enter Into Interlocal Agreements: The Missoula Housing Authority may not enter into an interlocal agreement with Ravalli and Mineral Counties to administer federal rent subsidy programs beyond its jurisdictional boundaries. However, it may so administer via cooperative agreements with other housing authorities. 39 A.G. Op. 37 (1981).

Administration of Federal Rent Supplement Program — Purpose of Municipal Housing Authorities — Jurisdictional Area: Although there is no explicit statutory authority for a municipal housing authority to administer federal rent supplement funds, an authority may do so because the purpose of the federal program falls within the range of duties of a municipal housing authority. The federal program may not be administered outside an authority's 10-mile jurisdictional boundaries. 39 A.G. Op. 4 (1981).

"Persons of Low Income": That this section authorizes the commissioners to determine who are "persons of low income" without providing a specific standard does not result in an unconstitutional delegation of legislative powers. Because housing authorities will be funded chiefly by federal programs, the federal restrictions will assure uniformity in the standard throughout the state. *Rutherford v. Subcontractor's Lien Against Housing Authority Improper: A subcontractor's mechanics' lien (now construction lien) for utility installation on a Montana Housing Authority project was improper. Attorney General's Opinions

County Authorized to Appropriate Money for Museum — City Authorized to Appropriate Money for Public Purpose — Constitutionality Analyzed: Pursuant to this section, a county, but not a city, is authorized to create a program to provide grants to private, nonprofit museums. However, pursuant to 7-1-4124, a city is allowed to grant money to public or private entities as long as the grant is for a public purpose, such as a museum that would enhance the education and enjoyment of the general public, but that would not be merely for the gain of a private entity. The Attorney General declined to opine regarding the constitutionality of 7-1-4124 or this section, in light of the prohibition in Art. V, sec. 11(5), Mont. Const., against the appropriation of public funds for any private individual, private association, or private corporation not under control of the state, but did analyze that constitutional provision as it related to the question of county or city expenditures for grants to private museum programs, concluding that the constitutional prohibition applies only to the appropriation of public funds by the Legislature, not by local governmental entities. 48 A.G. Op. 12 (2000), overruling prior opinions to the contrary in 37 A.G. Op. 25 (1977), 37 A.G. Op. 105 (1978), and 39 A.G. Op. 25 (1981).

County Power — Revenue Sharing Funds: Under this section, counties may acquire already established museums or collections from private individuals or organizations by purchase, lease, or loan and may contract with private organizations for the management and operation of an established county museum. In either case, any relationship between a county and a nonprofit organization must be a contractual one, the terms of which are left to the reasonable exercise of the discretion of County Commissioners. Federal revenue sharing funds may be used in connection with these contracts. 37 A.G. Op. 105 (1978).

The board of trustees must consist of at least three members and no more than nine members, and the members of the board must be residents of the county”; and made minor changes in style.

1991 Amendment: Substituted (2) concerning establishment of number of members and terms of board of trustees for former (2) that read: “(2) The board consists of three responsible persons, electors and residents of the county. The initial terms of members must be staggered, with the term of one of the members expiring on June 30 of the next year, the term of the second member expiring on June 30 of the second year, and the term of the third member expiring on June 30 of the third year. The board shall, at its regular meeting in July of each year, appoint a member to the board of trustees to take the place of the member whose term expired on June 30 immediately preceding”.

1989 Amendment: In (1), after first occurrence of “museum”, inserted “facility for the arts”, after second occurrence of “museum” inserted “facility”, and at end substituted “for the administration of the county museum fund as provided in this part” for “for such museum or collection”; and made minor changes in grammar and phraseology.

Part 23County Board of Park Commissioners*Part Attorney General's Opinions

Board — No Authority to Levy Tax: A County Park Board does not have the authority to levy a special tax for park purposes. 40 A.G. Op. 49 (1984).

Authority of Board of County Commissioners Over Parkland: A County Park Board may not sell county park property. However, a Board of County Commissioners may sell land that has been dedicated to the public for park purposes in accordance with procedures set out in 7-16-2324, and it may sell county land which has been used or purchased but not dedicated for park purposes subject to the limitations set out in 7-8-2211 through 7-8-2220. 36 A.G. Op. 38 (1975).

Duties of County Park Board: A County Park Board may expend its funds only for the improvement of any parkland to which the county holds legal title. However, Montana law does not require a County Park Board to develop every parcel of parkland or any particular parcel of parkland. 36 A.G. Op. 38 (1975).

Restriction of Use to Residents of a Particular Area: Generally, a County Park Board may not restrict the use of any county park to the residents of any particular area, although the history and circumstances of each park must be reviewed to determine whether there are any special circumstances that would create an exception to this general rule. Of course, no such restriction exception should be made without also considering whether the constitutional guarantee of equal protection under the law would be violated thereby. 36 A.G. Op. 38 (1975).

2005 Amendment: Chapter 333 in (1) near middle after "76-3-621" deleted "or a similar statute or pursuant to any instrument not specifically conveying land to a governmental unit other than a county" and at end after "lands" inserted "unless conveyance to a governmental unit other than a county is provided by law or agreement". Amendment effective October 1, 2005.

1995 Amendment: Chapter 468 in (1) and (4) substituted "76-3-621" for "76-3-606 and 76-3-607"; and made minor changes in style.

1995 Statement of Intent: The statement of intent attached to Ch. 468, L. 1995, provided: "It is the intent of the legislature that the department of commerce, local government assistance division, update its model subdivision rules to minimize the fiscal impacts to local governments in implementing this legislation."

Applicability: Section 13, Ch. 468, L. 1995, provided: "Funds in a park fund that exceed $10,000 as of [the effective date of this act] [October 1, 1995] must be used for park land acquisition and initial development. Funds in a park fund up to $10,000 as of [the effective date of this act] [October 1, 1995] may be used for park maintenance in accordance with a formally adopted park plan."

1985 Amendment: In (3)(d) inserted "as provided in 7-1-2121".

Case Notes

Writ of Certiorari Not Available — Appropriation of In-Lieu Funds: When the County Commission appropriated in-lieu park funds to a project not specifically authorized in the county outdoor recreation and open space plan, a Writ of Certiorari did not lie because the Commission, in appropriating money, was acting in a legislative, not judicial, capacity. There is no action more clearly legislative than that of appropriation of public funds. Burgess v. Gallatin County Comm'n, 215 M 503, 698 P2d 862, 42 St. Rep. 585 (1985).

Attorney General's Opinions

Park Board Partly Funded by County General Fund: The funding for the county park board's obligations is derived from the county general fund as well as from other specific sources as enumerated by 7-16-2328, 76-3-606 (now repealed), and this section. Since a specific separate tax levy is not authorized for the park fund, additional money must be appropriated from the county general fund authorized by 7-6-2501 if the revenue from sources other than taxation is insufficient to meet the necessary expenditures. 40 A.G. Op. 49 (1984).

Restriction on Use of Revenues Received From Sale of Park Lands and Donations: Revenues raised from sale of park lands and from cash donations in lieu of dedication of land for park purposes pursuant to 76-3-606 (now repealed) and this section are restricted in use to the purposes of purchase of additional lands or the initial development of parks and playgrounds. While these revenues are part of the park fund, they should be separated from unrestricted park fund revenues. 40 A.G. Op. 49 (1984).

Authority of Board of County Commissioners Over Parkland: A County Park Board may not sell county park property. However, a Board of County Commissioners may sell land that has been dedicated to the public for park purposes in accordance with procedures set out in this section, and it may sell county land which has been used or purchased but not dedicated for park purposes subject to the limitations set out in 7-8-2211 through 7-8-2220. 36 A.G. No Formal Action Required to Vacate: No formal action need be taken to vacate a public park. It may be accomplished by unequivocal acts showing a clear intent to abandon the use as a park, such as the erection of permanent structures for nonpark purposes. Smith v. Hot Springs, 125 M 458, 240 P2d 249 (1952).

Case Notes

Development and Use Agreement Not Precluding City From Entering Agreement for Construction Project on Public Property — Franchise Agreement Outside Scope of Citizen Group's Agreement With City: A citizen's group entered a franchise agreement with a professional baseball organization to bring a team to Missoula. After two potential sites were rejected, the city of Missoula accepted a gift of property upon which to construct a baseball facility and granted the citizen group the right to finance and construct the stadium on the property and to convey the completed facility to the city. The citizen group moved to enjoin the city from development of the proposed civic baseball stadium because of the city's failure to comply with statutory requirements for planning, funding, and managing the facility. All claims were dismissed on summary judgment, and the citizen group appealed, but the Supreme Court affirmed. The development and use agreements in this case did not preclude the city from executing an agreement with another entity for the construction of a similar facility on public property or from leasing a city-owned facility for baseball games or any other purpose. Any franchise agreement between the baseball organization and the citizen group was outside the scope of the group's agreement with the city, so the voter-approval provisions of 7-5-4321 did not apply. The citizen group's argument that the city was required to comply with urban renewal laws also failed. The decision whether to proceed with development under the urban renewal statutes was up to the city, and the fact that the city designated the capital improvements associated with the stadium construction as an urban renewal project did not require that the citizen group's building project come under the same purview. Rather, under this section, the city is permitted to obtain an athletic field and civic stadium through purchase, donation, or condemnation and to regulate its use, but nothing in the statute prohibits the city from designating a stadium project as an urban renewal project or mandates that the project be designated as an urban renewal project. The District Court properly found that the city appropriately exercised its administrative authority in accepting the gift property and then leasing the site to the citizen group for purposes of constructing a stadium using private financial resources. The citizen group failed to raise a genuine issue of material fact that would preclude summary judgment. Fair Play Missoula, Inc. v. Missoula, 2002 MT 179, 311 M 22, 52 P3d 926 (2002).

Licensing Classifications: The Legislature imposed a license tax on motion picture theaters. The statute was attacked as containing an arbitrary classification because vaudeville and other classes of entertainment were excluded from its operation. Such theaters were taxable under a different statute. The court held that while the Legislature may impose a license tax on certain occupations and not on others, arbitrary and unreasonable classifications are not permissible. A classification, however, cannot be said to be unreasonable and arbitrary unless it precludes the assumption that it was made in the exercise of legislative judgment and discretion. No unlawful discrimination was involved. State ex rel. Griffin v. Greene, 104 M 460, 67 P2d 995 (1937).

Occupation — Valid Licensing Classification: Occupation is a valid ground for license tax classification, whether as to the amount imposed or as between subjection to and immunity from imposition. Equitable Life Assurance Co. v. Hart, 55 M 76, 173 P 1062 (1918); St. v. Hammond Packing Co., 45 M 343, 123 P 407 (1912).

Constitutionality:

This section is not, because of the exemptions therein contained, an unconstitutional denial of the equal protection of the laws. Quong Wing v. Kirkendall, 223 US 59, 56 L Ed 350, 32 S Ct 192 (1912).

Assuming that this section classifies laundries for license purposes into steam laundries and laundries operated by hand, such classification is not arbitrary or unreasonable. Quong Wing v. Kirkendall, 39 M 64, 101 P 250 (1909), affirmed 223 US 59, 56 L Ed 350, 32 S Ct 192 (1912).

The Legislature is not required to tax all occupations equally or uniformly. It had power to single out proprietors of hand laundries and compel them to pay a license, and so long as the law was uniform as to all persons operating such laundries, there was no denial of the equal protection of the laws. Quong Wing v. Kirkendall, 39 M 64, 101 P 250 (1909), affirmed 223 US 59, 56 L Ed 350, 32 S Ct 192 (1912), affirmed on remittitur, 47 M 16, 130 P 2 (1913).

License tax upon laundries did not violate Art. XII, sec. 11, 1889 Mont. Const. (similar to Art. VIII, sec. 3, 1972 Mont. Const.), requiring uniformity in the assessment and levy of taxes. St. v. Camp Sing, 18 M 128, 44 P 516 (1896); State ex rel. Sam Toi v. French, 17 M 54, 41 P 1078 (1895).

1987 Amendment: In (2) substituted "15-17-911" for "15-17-901 through 15-17-903".

Case Notes

Priority of Lien: Property that is held or used in any trade, occupation, or profession for which a license is required is liable for the license fee. The lien for the amount of license has precedence over any mortgage upon the property. Burfiend v. Hamilton, 20 M 343, 51 P 161 (1897).

Invalidity of Similar Section: Section 816 of the Revised Statutes of 1879 (now repealed), a statute similar to this section, authorized the summary seizure and sale of property belonging to another but in use by a person from whom a license fee was due. The section created a lien thereon and was held unconstitutional under Due Process of Law Clause of the federal constitution. Chauvin v. Valiton, 8 M 451, 20 P 658 (1889).

By Executive Order No. 4-83, the Governor transferred the function contained in this section from the Department of Administration to the Department of Commerce, and the Code Commissioner has corrected the reference accordingly.

Construction of Statute: The words "any person required to take out a license" mean any person engaged in a profession, trade, or occupation for which a license tax is required, and a person engaged in any such business, upon the payment of the required fee, can demand a license as a matter of right. In the enactment of the section, the Legislature intended nothing more than to provide means for the collection of a license fee from one entitled to a license as a matter of right upon payment of the fee. Case Notes

Power to Prohibit Door-to-Door Solicitation: The city of Billings enacted an ordinance declaring uninvited door-to-door solicitation a nuisance punishable as a misdemeanor. It was argued that a state statute regulating itinerant vendors did not empower a city to prohibit their activities, therefore precluding the ordinance. The Supreme Court disagreed. Under the expanded powers of local self-government provided by Montana's Constitution, a city possessing those powers may exercise any power not prohibited by the constitution or state statute. A city possessing self-government powers may prohibit uninvited door-to-door solicitation by itinerant vendors, and a licensing statute does not legalize an activity otherwise prohibited. Any statements to the contrary contained in DeLong v. Downes, 175 M 152, 573 P2d 160 (1977), are expressly overruled. Tipco Corp. v. Billings, 197 M 339, 642 P2d 1074, 39 St. Rep. 600 (1982).

disclaimed liability. The Treasurer paid warrants out of other county funds when there was no money in the fair fund and replaced it with a loan from the bank. The county, having obtained the use and benefit of the loan, was in equity and good conscience required to pay it back, recovery being warranted in an action as for money had and received. First Nat'l Bank of Nashua v. Valley County, 112 M 18, 113 P2d 783 (1941).

Part 41Municipal Licensing Authority*7-21-4101. General licensing power of municipalities.*Case Notes

Tax on Sale of Attorney's Services — Invalid: A city ordinance imposing an annual tax on every lawyer or law firm carrying on the practice of law, calculated on the basis of gross revenue generated from attorney-client relationships, was held to be an unconstitutional sales tax. The tax was beyond the scope of self-government powers and in violation of 7-1-112, since it was not related to any regulatory control measure for the health or welfare of the city but was a tax on the sale of attorneys' services. Brueggemann v. Billings, 221 M 375, 719 P2d 768, 43 St. Rep. 905 (1986).

Regulatory Municipal Business License Applicable to Attorneys — Unconstitutional: A business license ordinance enacted by a self-governing municipality requiring municipal licensure of attorneys and that provided for regulation was an unconstitutional encroachment on the Supreme Court's authority to regulate the bar as provided in Art. III, sec. 2, Mont. Const., because the ordinance conditions attorneys' access to the practice of law. The ordinance included police provisions that could conceivably cover standards of practice, prohibited attorneys from carrying on their occupation without procuring a municipal license, required municipal licensure of nonresident attorneys practicing in the municipality, and provided for fines and incarceration for failing to comply with the ordinance. Harlen v. Helena, 208 M 45, 676 P2d 191, 41 St. Rep. 162 (1984).

Mandamus: Action of Town Council in refusing to issue a mobile home court license until petitioner had removed a house which encroached onto a public alley was not an abuse of discretion, and mandamus will not lie to compel the issuance of the license. State ex rel. Barnes v. Belgrade, 164 M 467, 524 P2d 1112 (1974).

Abuse of Discretion: City Council could not, at its discretion, deny developers a license to operate a trailer park, where developers had complied with the city's health ordinances, Council disregarded the findings of the city's administrative officers, and developers had begun construction of the park before the area had been rezoned. State ex rel. Bennett v. Stow, 144 M 599, 399 P2d 221 (1965).

Ordinance Required: Where the city's licensing ordinance did not include the operation of a call office for drycleaning, the city was without jurisdiction to arrest the operator of such an establishment for conducting business without a license. In the absence of a licensing ordinance, the city is powerless to attempt to exact license fees or to regulate the operation of any business. State ex rel. Willumsen v. Butte, 135 M 350, 340 P2d 535 (1959).

No Power to License Liquor Sales: The Prohibition Act of 1917, repealing all conflicting acts and all municipal ordinances relating to issuance of liquor licenses, divested municipalities of power to license sale of liquor under general statutes. Stephens v. Great Falls, 119 M 368, 175 P2d 408 (1946).

State Liquor Statutes to Control: Special statutes subsequently enacted relating to liquor traffic and licensing of sale of liquor control the more general statutes authorizing cities generally to license businesses and occupations and will be regarded as an exception to or qualification of the prior general statutes. State ex rel. Wiley v. District Court, 118 M 50, 164 P2d 358 (1945).

Interference on Gross Abuse: The power to license has been properly delegated to cities and towns by this section. It grants them the power to fix the amount, terms, and manner of issuing and revoking licenses or to refuse to issue them. Courts will not interfere in this exercise except when there has been a gross abuse of discretion. State ex rel. McIntire v. Libby, 107 M 216, 82 P2d 587 (1938).

Plumber's License Applicant — Court Review: Sections 5183 through 5193, R.C.M. 1921 (now repealed), relating to the municipal regulation of the plumbing business, were attacked by an unsuccessful applicant for a license as an unconstitutional delegation of legislative authority to a municipal board. The statutes were not so lacking in detail as to how examinations for applicants for licenses were to be conducted or as to the nature of the examination to amount to a conferring of arbitrary or capricious power on the Board of Examiners. Though the statutes did not provide for review by the courts of the Board of Examiners' actions, an aggrieved applicant for a license could by an appropriate proceeding have an allegation of arbitrary or capricious action reviewed by the courts. St. v. Stark, 100 M 365, 52 P2d 890 (1935).

Validity of Licensing Ordinance — Discretionary Granting: An ordinance vested in public officials the discretion to grant or refuse a license to carry on an ordinarily lawful business without referring to all of the classes to which the ordinance was intended to apply and without specifically enumerating the conditions to which similarly situated persons had to conform. Such an ordinance is normally invalid but is subject to the qualification that where it is impractical to lay down an all-comprehensive rule or where it relates to the administration of the police power and is necessary to protect the general welfare, morals, and safety of the public, it is not essential that the ordinance prescribe all the conditions upon which the license will be granted or refused. A person arbitrarily denied a license under such an ordinance may apply to the courts for relief. State ex rel. Altop v. Billings, 79 M 25, 255 P 11 (1927).

Amount of License Fee: What is a reasonable license fee must depend largely upon the sound discretion of the City Council, having reference to the circumstances and necessities of the case. Unless, however, the amount is manifestly unreasonable in view of its purpose as a regulation, the court will not adjudge it a revenue measure. Bozeman v. Nelson, 73 M 147, 237 P 528 (1925).

Taxi License:

Taxicabs and autobuses operated for hire are legitimate objects of license fees. Bozeman v. Nelson, 73 M 147, 237 P 528 (1925).

Subdivision 3 of section 5039, R.C.M. 1921 (now 7-21-4101), provided that the license fee which a city might impose upon industries and businesses must not exceed the sum required by statute when the state requires a license therefor. Chapter 154, L. 1923 (since repealed), while authorizing the State Railroad Commission (now Public Service Commission) to require the payment of a license not to exceed $10 per motor vehicle, does not declare that a license shall be exacted. A city imposed a license fee of $25 for the first taxi operated for hire and $12 for each additional one. The Supreme Court held that in the absence of a showing that the Railroad Commission (now Public Service Commission) had exercised the power given it by Ch. 154, the fee exacted by the City Council cannot be said to exceed the fee imposed by the state for the same purpose. State ex rel. Bozeman v. Police Court, 68 M 435, 219 P 810 (1923).

License Authority — Police Power: The Legislature may not constitutionally authorize a city to provide revenue for general municipal purposes by the imposition of license taxes. It may, however, properly authorize it to impose such a tax upon any industry or upon the right to transact any business which falls within the scope of police regulations. Bozeman v. Nelson, 73 M 147, 237 P 528 (1925).

Revenue Incidental: Although revenue may result incidentally from an undisputed exercise of the police power, that fact alone does not divest the regulation of its police character and make it an exercise of the taxing power. Bozeman v. Nelson, 73 M 147, 237 P 528 (1925).

Power to Impose License Tax: A city cannot raise revenue for general municipal purposes by the imposition of license taxes. State ex rel. Bozeman v. Police Court, 68 M 435, 219 P 810 (1923).

Coal Dealer: Section 84-1402, R.C.M. 1947 (15-58-102, now repealed), required every coal dealer in the state to pay annually to the state a license fee of $1 and in addition thereto 5 cents per ton for every ton of coal sold by him during any one year upon which the mines license fee exacted by section 84-1302, R.C.M. 1947 (now repealed), had not been paid by the mine operator. Under subdivision 3 of section 5039, R.C.M. 1921 (now 7-21-4101), the power of cities or towns to license an industry or business was limited to an amount not to exceed the sum required by the state to be paid to it by the same business. A city ordinance exacting a fee of $1 from coal dealers and in addition 5 cents for every ton of coal sold, without incorporating therein the clause limiting the payment of the 5 cents to coal upon which the mines license fee exacted by section 84-1302, R.C.M. 1947 (now repealed), had not been paid to the state, was invalid as in excess of the power of the city to impose. State ex rel. Butte v. Police Court, 65 M 94, 210 P 1059 (1922).

Attorney General's Opinions

City Licensing: A city can license local aspects of interstate commerce if not a direct burden or impediment, but enterprises preempted by state regulation are not subject to city licensing. 37 A.G. Op. 100 (1977).

Regulation of Gambling Hours: A city may restrict by ordinance the hours of licensed gambling since it is the type of subject matter traditionally the object of reasonable regulation for the protection of the public health, safety, and welfare. 37 A.G. Op. 67 (1977).

Implied Amendment: This section was held impliedly amended by section 66-411, R.C.M. 1947 (37-30-307, now repealed), as amended by sec. 4, Ch. 183, L. 1937, to the extent that section 11-903, R.C.M. 1947 (now 7-21-4101), may have authorized cities and towns to license barbers. 17 A.G. Part 42 Municipal Regulation of Business and Commodities

Part Case Notes

Regulatory Municipal Business License Applicable to Attorneys — Unconstitutional: A business license ordinance enacted by a self-governing municipality requiring municipal licensure of attorneys and that provided for regulation was an unconstitutional encroachment on the Supreme Court's authority to regulate the bar as provided in Art. III, sec. 2, Mont. Const., because the ordinance conditions attorneys' access to the practice of law. The ordinance included police provisions that could conceivably cover standards of practice, prohibited attorneys from carrying on their occupation without procuring a municipal license, required municipal licensure of nonresident attorneys practicing in the municipality, and provided for fines and incarceration for failing to comply with the ordinance. Harlen v. Helena, 208 M 45, 676 P2d 191, 41 St. Rep. 162 (1984).

Pawnshop: An ordinance making it unlawful to keep a pawnshop open after 6 p.m. is not a prohibition of the business but a regulation of it authorized by this section. Butte v. Paltrovich, 30 M 18, 75 P 521 (1904).

Police Regulations: The power conferred upon a city by this section is primarily to enact such police regulations, with reference to the occupations therein enumerated, as shall be necessary to the good order and general welfare of its citizens. Butte v. Paltrovich, 30 M 18, 75 P 521 (1904).

Taxicabs: An ordinance requiring taxicab drivers to occupy a position by the side of their vehicles along the curb line of the street fronting a railway station and prohibiting them from soliciting patronage on railway property was a valid exercise of the police power. It withstood the objections that it was in conflict with the Due Process of Law Clause of the federal and state constitutions, indirectly interfered with interstate commerce carried on partially within the state, and impaired the obligations of contracts between the operator of the taxicabs and railway companies. Butte v. Roberts, 94 M 482, 23 P2d 243 (1933).

Ordinance — License Fee — Tax — Determination: An ordinance required the operator of buses and taxis to pay a license fee to aid in the police power and regulation by the city. The operator contended that it was an unlawful tax. Where a fee is imposed for the purpose of regulation and the ordinance imposing it requires compliance with conditions in addition to the payment of the prescribed fee, it is a license imposed under the police power. When the fee is exacted solely for revenue purposes without further conditions, it is a tax. In this case, the fee was a license and the ordinance was not invalid as imposing an unreasonable tax. State ex rel. Bozeman v. Police Court, 68 M 435, 219 P 810 (1923).

Part Compiler's Comments

Severability: Section 33, Ch. 607, L. 1985, was a severability clause.

Part Administrative Rules

Title 4, chapter 5, ARM Noxious weed management.

Part Attorney General's Opinions

Establishment of Rural Improvement District for Weed Control — Preemption: A Board of County Commissioners may not use 7-12-2102 or 7-12-4102 to authorize a rural improvement district to provide weed control because those statutes are subordinate to and preempted by the specific statutory scheme of weed control in Title 7, ch. 22, part 21. 42 A.G. Op. 90 (1988).

County Recoupment of Costs of Weed Control — Landowner Agreements — Former Law: Under 7-22-2146 the County Commissioners and weed control supervisors (now District Weed Board) are not required to have an agreement to assist landowners with weed control. Landowners in counties without such agreements are obliged to carry the entire financial burden of the weed program. If 7-22-2147 (now repealed) were to be interpreted to allow recovery by the county of only two-thirds of the costs incurred in destroying weeds on the property of noncomplying landowners, it would be economically advantageous for the landowners to refuse to cooperate in the program and let the county control all weeds instead. Complying landowners would bear the total cost of weed control while recalcitrant landowners would be liable for only two-thirds of the expenses. Therefore, in counties in which the full financial responsibility for a weed control program lies with the landowners, the county may recover the full amount of the cost incurred in noxious weed control if the weed board must institute weed control measures pursuant to 7-22-2124 without the consent of the owner. 39 A.G. 1991 Amendment: Inserted (2)(c) concerning pesticide management goals and procedures; and made minor change in style. Amendment effective July 1, 1991.

1991 Statement of Intent: The statement of intent attached to Ch. 530, L. 1991, provided: "A statement of intent is required for this bill in order to provide guidance to the department of agriculture concerning the adoption of rules to identify the type and level of training a weed district supervisor should obtain to properly administer a noxious weed management program. It is the policy of the state of Montana to properly control and manage noxious weeds in order to protect the agricultural economy and natural ecosystems of the state. It is also the policy of the state of Montana to properly manage pesticides in order to ensure public and worker safety and to protect the environment. Weed district supervisors need special training and education in order to design and administer weed management programs that appropriately implement these policies. The legislature recognizes that funding is an important consideration that may constrain the level and type of training a weed district supervisor may obtain at any one time or in any particular year. The legislature directs the department to adopt rules that specify the objectives of weed district supervisor training and that identify the topics and level of education necessary for weed district supervisors to implement effective noxious weed management programs and to ensure that pesticides are properly managed. The legislature further directs the department, in cooperation with the Montana state university [now Montana state university-Bozeman] extension service, to assist in the development of a curriculum and a course of training for district weed supervisors that will fulfill the objectives specified in the department's rules. Within the limitations of available funding, county weed boards should ensure, over a period of several years if necessary, that district weed supervisors obtain proper training as defined in the department's rules."

It is the policy of the state of Montana to properly control and manage noxious weeds in order to protect the agricultural economy and natural ecosystems of the state. It is also the policy of the state of Montana to properly manage pesticides in order to ensure public and worker safety and to protect the environment. Weed district supervisors need special training and education in order to design and administer weed management programs that appropriately implement these policies. The legislature recognizes that funding is an important consideration that may constrain the level and type of training a weed district supervisor may obtain at any one time or in any particular year. The legislature directs the department to adopt rules that specify the objectives of weed district supervisor training and that identify the topics and level of education necessary for weed district supervisors to implement effective noxious weed management programs and to ensure that pesticides are properly managed. The legislature further directs the department, in cooperation with the Montana state university [now Montana state university-Bozeman] extension service, to assist in the development of a curriculum and a course of training for district weed supervisors that will fulfill the objectives specified in the department's rules. Within the limitations of available funding, county weed boards should ensure, over a period of several years if necessary, that district weed supervisors obtain proper training as defined in the department's rules."

Attorney General's Opinions

County Recoupment of Costs of Weed Control — Landowner Agreements — Former Law: Under 7-22-2146 the County Commissioners and weed control supervisors (now District Weed Board) are not required to have an agreement to assist landowners with weed control. Landowners in counties without such agreements are obliged to carry the entire financial burden of the weed program. If 7-22-2147 (now repealed) were to be interpreted to allow recovery by the county of only two-thirds of the costs incurred in destroying weeds on the property of noncomplying landowners, it would be economically advantageous for the landowners to refuse to cooperate in the program and let the county control all weeds instead. Complying landowners would bear the total cost of weed control, while recalcitrant landowners would be liable for only two-thirds of the expenses. Therefore, in counties in which the full financial responsibility for a weed control program lies with the landowners, the county may recover the full amount of the cost incurred in noxious weed control if the weed board must institute weed control measures pursuant to 7-22-2124 without the consent of the owner. 39 A.G. Op. 13 (1981).

Destruction of Dogs — Emergency Measure: At the time of the adoption of an emergency measure authorizing the shooting of dogs roaming at large, several people had been bitten by rabid dogs in the city. The measure was adopted because months might elapse before rabies contracted by a dog might appear. The dog owner was aware of the emergency measure and was letting his dog roam at large. The dog had chased a small child shortly before it was destroyed. Police officers sought to catch and control the dog before they shot it. The police chief and officers were not liable to the dog owner on the theory that he was deprived of his property without due process. Ruona v. Billings, 136 M 554, 323 P2d 29 (1958).

The determination as to the means used to meet a threatening situation is vested in the Board and not the courts. Ruona v. Billings, 136 M 554, 323 P2d 29 (1958).

Attorney General's Opinions

Interlocal Cooperation Agreements: Since 7-31-4101 allows any city to provide for a Board of Health and 50-2-104 creates a County Board of Health in each county and even though 50-2-107 holds that cities other than first- and second-class cities cannot participate in a District Board of Health, 7-11-104 allows a public agency to contract with another public agency to perform an administrative service when both agencies are authorized by law to perform such services. Therefore, it appears as though all cities and counties can enter a contract for the provision of such common services. 35 A.G. Op. 48 (1973).

Nepotism Statute Applicable to Reserve Officers: A reserve officer holds a position of public trust within the meaning of 2-2-302; therefore, the appointment of a reserve Deputy Sheriff is subject to the nepotism law prohibiting appointment of a relative within the fourth degree of consanguinity or second degree of affinity. 42 A.G. Op. 91 (1988).

Compensation of Reserve Deputies From Public Funds: In accordance with federal rules outlined in 29 C.F.R. 553.100 through 553.106 regarding compensation of volunteers, county public funds may be used to reimburse a reserve deputy sheriff's expenses, provide reasonable benefits, and pay nominal compensation; however, the total amount of these provisions may not be given as a form of compensation tied to productivity. 42 A.G. 1985 Amendment: Inserted (1) authorizing search and rescue units; and inserted (3) authorizing a voted property tax levy.

Attorney General's Opinions

Control of County Search and Rescue Units by Unit Officers — Control of Finances: While search and rescue units recognized and operated by a county function under the County Sheriff's operational control whenever called into service, all other aspects of the units remain private, volunteer organizations under the control of unit officers. Therefore, a unit that receives tax money for its support may maintain private bank accounts to distribute funds accumulated from nontax sources. A County Sheriff does not control the finances of the unit. 44 A.G. Op. 10 (1991).

Search and Rescue Members Auxiliary Officers — Workers' Compensation Required: Members of a recognized search and rescue unit are auxiliary officers and must be provided full workers' compensation coverage when engaged in a search, training, or testing operation called and supervised by the Sheriff. 42 A.G. Op. 97 (1988).

Case Notes

Undercover Investigators — No Need to Meet Requirement to Be Deputy: Carrier worked as an undercover drug investigator in Billings for Yellowstone County. Carrier was a Deputy Sheriff even though he may not have met all the technical statutory qualifications. To require all law enforcement officials to be fully clothed with all statutory requirements in all instances would seriously jeopardize the success of law enforcement in circumstances such as those presented in this case. St. v. Bassett, 189 M 28, 614 P2d 1054, 37 St. Rep. 1300 (1980).

City Policemen: A city of the third class was not bound by any of the provisions of this section (which refers only to special police) in the appointment of a regular policeman and was not prohibited from appointing a policeman who had not been a resident of the city for 6 months. McBroom v. Polson, 137 M 33, 349 P2d 1023 (1960).

Acquitted Deputy Subject to Dismissal for Gross Inefficiency: A deputy was dismissed and indicted for beating a prisoner. He was acquitted of the felony charge and sought reinstatement. At the reinstatement trial, the deputy moved for a summary judgment, arguing that the only reason he had been fired was the criminal charge. The Supreme Court affirmed the lower court's denial of the motion, ruling that the deputy's actions could also be construed by the jury to constitute gross inefficiency, which is also grounds for dismissal. Smith v. Roosevelt County, 242 M 27, 788 P2d 895, 47 St. Rep. 506 (1990), distinguished in McKay v. Bd. of Labor Appeals, 1999 MT 329, 297 M 357, 990 P2d 1251, 56 St. Rep. 1313 (1999).

Case Notes

Service of Process as Exercise of Discretion in Charge of Threat in Official Matters: Deputies attempted to serve civil process on Keating at his home. Keating threatened the officers and was convicted of threats in official matters under 45-7-102. On appeal, Keating contended that service of process was not a discretionary function that could serve as the basis of a charge of threats in official matters. The Supreme Court noted that the statutory definition of threats in official matters speaks to a threat made for the purpose of influencing an exercise of discretion by a public servant but does not speak to a discretionary function. The fact that service of process is a statutory duty under this section, rather than a discretionary function, does not relate to the issue of whether service of process involves an exercise of discretion under 45-7-102. Under Rule 4D, M.R.Civ.P. (Title 25, ch. 20), personal service of process can be accomplished wherever and whenever the person to be served can be found. The Sheriff's Department uses a variety of discretionary methods of serving process. Thus, service of process clearly involves the power of choice among several courses of action, constituting a sufficient exercise of discretion to form a basis for charges of threats in official matters. St. v. Keating, 285 M 463, 949 P2d 251, 54 St. Rep. 1250 (1997).

Liability of Sheriff: This section is merely declaratory of the common law, and the Sheriff is not liable in damages for damage caused by mob violence. Annala v. McLeod, 122 M 498, 206 P2d 811 (1949).

Authority Limited to State: A Sheriff is without authority, as such, beyond the confines of the state. The ordinary discharge of his duties does not authorize him to leave the state except where he is designated the agent of the state in cases of extradition. Brannin v. Sweet Grass County, 88 M 412, 293 P 970 (1930).

Nonfeasance — Warrants Removal: The failure of a Sheriff to arrest a person who commits a crime in his presence constitutes nonfeasance in office and warrants his removal as Sheriff. State ex rel. Beazley v. District Court, 75 M 116, 241 P 1075 (1925).

Breaches of the Peace: The necessity of the Sheriff in assembling his deputies, police, and employees of the defendant as a posse comitatus is not in question. Presumably the Sheriff was acting within his authority, and he was the one to judge whether he needed help to preserve the peace. It was his duty to prevent and suppress breaches of the peace, riots, and insurrections and to command the aid of as many male inhabitants of his county as he thought necessary to execute that duty. Upon such an occasion the Sheriff is the commander of all he summons to his aid, and all under his command are in duty bound to obey his lawful orders. McCarthy v. Anaconda Copper Min. Co., 70 M 309, 225 P 391 (1924).

Failure to Suppress Riot: On June 13, 1914, large numbers of people, many bearing arms, unlawfully and riotously assembled on the streets of Butte. The Miners' Union Hall was wrecked, the safe was dynamited, one man was killed, and two were wounded. The Sheriff was charged with failure to act and removed from office. The court held that when a riot exists to the knowledge of the Sheriff, it becomes his duty to suppress it. He must command the rioters to disperse and arrest them if they do not disperse. For this purpose he may command the aid of all persons present or within the county. The duty imposed is absolute, and evidence that the riot occurred with the knowledge of the Sheriff and that it continued for 8 hours without action on his part was sufficient to warrant his removal from office. St. v. Driscoll, 49 M 558, 144 P 153 (1914).

Guarding Railroad Strikers: A Sheriff employed a number of men, sworn in as Deputy Sheriffs, to guard railroad strikers, after having assured the company that he was able to enforce the peace without such aid. The company had agreed to pay for such services, and the company was liable for such payment, the statutory provision empowering the Sheriff to call to his aid such persons as may be necessary to suppress unlawful assemblies and the provision prohibiting a Sheriff from demanding for official services any greater fees than are allowed by law notwithstanding. Sullivan v. Utah & N. Ry., 11 M 236, 28 P 307 (1891).

Attorney General's Opinions

Sheriff Authorized to Accept Compensation From Federal Agency for Performance of Services Outside Official Duties: A Sheriff may receive compensation from a federal agency under the terms of a cooperative law enforcement agreement without violating any Montana statutory or constitutional provision, so long as the services rendered by the Sheriff fall outside the scope of the Sheriff's official duties. 49 A.G. Op. 12 (2001).

Duty of County Sheriff to Enforce Law Throughout County: Although it is often customary for a County Sheriff to leave local policing to local law enforcement officers, the Sheriff is a county officer whose authority extends over the entire county, including all municipalities and townships within the county. If local law enforcement is lacking, the Sheriff must undertake that enforcement. 45 A.G. Op. 9 (1993).

County Power to Contract With Humane Society: Counties which have enacted dog licensing requirements may contract with local humane societies for the impoundment and disposition of unlicensed dogs. In addition, counties may contract with local humane societies for kenneling and disposition of animals incidental to the Sheriff's performance of his duties as humane officer. 37 A.G. The type of insurance to be furnished must be full comprehensive, collision, and public liability insurance in the limits specified, and the Board of County Commissioners is obligated to pay that portion of the premium for such insurance that approximates the time the vehicle will be used on official business during the policy period. 34 A.G. Application of Section: This section, providing that if a Sheriff refuses to pay over money which came into his hands by virtue of his office, the person entitled thereto may recover it with 25% damages, has application only to cases of intentional delinquency. It merely prescribes punishment for willful or corrupt neglect of duty and is therefore inapplicable to a case where failure to pay was due to the closing of a bank in which the money was deposited. Wells-Dickey Co. v. Benjamin, 74 M 170, 239 P 771 (1925).

Loss Due to Bank Failure: An officer who comes into possession of funds by virtue of his office and deposits the same, exercising good faith and due care in the selection of the depository, is not liable on his official bond for their loss resulting from the failure of the bank. Wells-Dickey Co. v. Benjamin, 74 M 170, 239 P 771 (1925).

Mandamus — When Unnecessary: Under this section a means is provided for compelling a Sheriff to pay money which may have come into his hands by virtue of his office to the person entitled thereto. Mandamus does not lie to compel him to do so. State ex rel. Grantier v. Woods, 67 M 337, 215 P 671 (1923).

2007 Amendment: Chapter 61 made minor changes in style. Amendment effective October 1, 2007.

Case Notes

Irregularity Not to Invalidate Sale: The Sheriff of Stillwater County held property under a valid Writ of Attachment. The Writ of Execution was directed to the Sheriff of Yellowstone County. The Writ was sufficient to advise the Stillwater Sheriff that the claim had been reduced to judgment and could be treated as surplusage in other respects. Failure of the Sheriff to sell the property to satisfy judgment after receipt of the Writ of Execution would have rendered him personally liable to the creditor. Stokke v. Graham, 129 M 96, 281 P2d 1025 (1955).

Writ of Supreme Court — Process: The decision of the Supreme Court, on an application for a writ under its original jurisdiction, constitutes the judgment of the court, and the writ itself that is thereafter issued is merely the court process issued for the enforcement thereof. State ex rel. Clark v. District Court, 103 M 145, 61 P2d 836 (1936).

Attachment — Duty of Sheriff: The Sheriff in levying a Writ of Attachment has a special interest in the property, not only for the satisfaction of any judgment that the attaching creditor may recover but for the protection of the real owner of the property. If the defendant in the action in which the levy was made recovers judgment, it is the duty of the Sheriff to return the attached property or the proceeds to the defendant or his agent. This duty would also be imposed upon the Sheriff if judgment was recovered by the plaintiff but was satisfied otherwise than by the application of the property or the value thereof. It is the duty of the Sheriff, in any event, to safely keep and account for property he has seized by virtue of a Writ of Attachment. Fergus Motor Co. v. Schott, 95 M 249, 26 P2d 365 (1933).

Sufficiency of Complaint: The complaint in an action against a Sheriff and his official bondsman for damages flowing from the refusal of the officer to levy a Writ of Attachment alleged that the judgment in the attachment suit and all of the rights of the judgment creditor against the defendants had been assigned to plaintiff and that plaintiff was the assignee of all of the rights of the said judgment creditor against them. This pleading was sufficient to show an assignment of the cause of action in the absence of a special demurrer or motion to make more definite and certain. Gotzian & Co. v. Norris, 89 M 307, 297 P 489 (1931).

Mandamus — When Required: Where a judgment creditor is entitled to the possession of specific property and the Sheriff refuses to proceed under execution, the remedy of an action for damages on the officer's bond is not adequate and mandamus lies to compel action. State ex rel. Duggan v. District Court, 65 M 197, 210 P 1062 (1922).

Mandamus — When Unnecessary: Where a Sheriff wrongfully refuses to levy upon and sell property on execution issued on a money judgment, he is liable in damages to the judgment creditor on his official bond. The creditor has a plain, speedy, and adequate remedy and is not entitled to a Writ of Mandate to compel the officer to proceed under the execution. State ex rel. Duggan v. District Court, 65 M 197, 210 P 1062 (1922).

Form of Action: A Sheriff who wrongfully seizes personal property under a Writ of Attachment may be sued in any appropriate form of action the person whose rights have been invaded may choose to pursue. Bank of Commerce v. USF&G Co., 58 M 236, 194 P 158 (1920).

Mistaken Execution — Liability: A Sheriff acting under an execution sold property in the possession of the debtor but belonging to a third person. The Sheriff on learning of the true owner of the property returned the money to the purchaser and the property to its owner and made his return upon the execution in accordance with the facts. The Sheriff was not liable to the creditor for the amount realized at the sale. McCarthy v. O'Marr, 19 M 215, 47 P 953 (1897).

1995 Amendment: Chapter 390 in (2), near middle after "be", substituted "deposited" for "credited" and after "treasurer" substituted "in the general fund of the county unless the county has instituted a public safety levy, in which case the fees must be deposited in the account established pursuant to 7-6-2513" for "to the sheriff's budget"; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective April 12, 1995.

1989 Amendment: In (1), in first sentence, inserted introductory clause, at end of first sentence substituted "the fees, if any, set by the county governing body" for "the following fees", and inserted introductory clause in second sentence. Amendment effective March 29, 1989.

1981 Amendment: Increased the fee in (1)(a), (1)(c), (1)(d), (1)(e), (1)(i), (1)(j), and (1)(l) from $2 to $5; increased the fee in (1)(f) from $1 to $2.50; increased the fee in (1)(g) from $4 to $5; increased the fee in (1)(h) from $5 to $7; inserted (1)(b), (1)(m), (1)(n), and (2) relating to return of summons for person not found, holding Sheriff's sale, cancellation or postponement of sale, and deposit and credit of fees collected, respectively; and made minor changes in phraseology.

Case Notes

Agreement for Extra Fees: There is no rule in Montana that bars an attaching creditor from entering into a private agreement with the Sheriff to pay such Sheriff out of the attaching creditor's own pocket additional compensation over and above that contemplated by the statute. *Bucher v. Attachment by Sheriff — Reimbursement of Expenses: Under a Writ of Attachment, a Sheriff takes and retains possession of the property at his peril. When he appoints a custodian to keep and care for the attached property, he is liable to the custodian under his express contract or for reasonable compensation. The Sheriff is entitled to reimbursement of his actual, necessary, and reasonable expenses. Where the Sheriff has paid the expense of keeping and caring for the attached property and judgment in the action goes against the defendant, the Sheriff is entitled to deduct his expenses from the proceeds of the property before turning them over to the attaching creditor. Letz v. Letz, 123 M 494, 215 P2d 534 (1950).

Keeper of Attached Property: Under this section the necessity for the appointment of a keeper of attached property is a question to be determined by the trial court, taking into consideration all facts and circumstances. On appeal, defendant debtor may not complain for the first time that the appointment was unnecessary and improper and that the expense had been unnecessarily incurred. Chowning v. Madison Land & Irrigation Co., 84 M 494, 276 P 946 (1929).

When Fee Payable: A Sheriff is not entitled to be paid for his trouble and expense in taking and keeping property under attachment or execution until the allowance for so doing is fixed by the court. If the Sheriff takes possession and employs a keeper without an order from the court, he is personally liable for the keeper's compensation. Noel v. Cowan, 80 M 258, 260 P 116 (1927).

Keeper — No Obligation to Determine Appointment: The Sheriff took into his possession a large amount of personal property under a Writ of Attachment and appointed a caretaker. A receiver was later appointed by the court who refused to pay the caretaker for his services. A Sheriff who fails to secure an order authorizing the appointment of a keeper before appointing him may be held personally liable for his compensation. The keeper has no obligation to determine whether such an order was secured. Daly v. Kelley, 57 M 306, 187 P 1022 (1920).

Attorney General's Opinions

Mileage Reimbursement for Constables: Parties involved in civil litigation in Justice's Court who desire to have legal process served by a constable should prepay the cost of service based upon the estimated round-trip mileage involved and the mileage reimbursement rate established in 2-18-503. A constable should be reimbursed for travel only upon the amount of miles actually traveled at the legally established rate. Any difference between the amount paid by the parties to litigation for service of process by a constable and the amount that the constable is reimbursed accrues to the benefit of the local governing body providing the service. 42 A.G. Op. 15 (1987).

Amendment effective October 1, 2001.

1983 Amendment: In (1), substituted "Montana state hospital" for "Warm Springs state hospital".

Case Notes

Amendment of Claim to Include Mileage Up to Ten Cents — Where Limitation Statute Not Applicable: A Sheriff's claims for mileage during two terms in office had been approved by the Commissioners at the rate of 7 cents and 8½ cents per mile. After retiring from office he presented additional claims for the difference between those rates and 10 cents per mile under section 4885, R.C.M. 1921 (now this section). He was not required to present the latter claims within a year after the last claim accrued, under 7-6-2421, because they amounted to amendments of the original Board approved claims. Weir v. Silver Bow County, 113 M 237, 124 P2d 1003 (1942).

Construction:

The provision in section 4885, R.C.M. 1921 (now this section), that the Sheriff "while in the discharge of his duties, both civil and criminal", shall receive 10 cents per mile actually and necessarily traveled, did not mean that he might collect that amount per mile in the performance of every duty imposed upon him. It meant, in the performance of other duties for which he is authorized to charge mileage, it shall be fixed at 10 cents per mile. Brannin v. Sweet Grass County, 88 M 412, 293 P 970 (1930).

The term "fees", as used in section 3137, Rev. C. 1907 (now this section), connotes mileage payable to the Sheriff by the county in certain cases. St. v. Story, 53 M 573, 165 P 748 (1917).

Misconduct in Office: A Sheriff, Constable, or other peace officer traveling in the discharge of his duties is entitled to charge only for each mile "actually and necessarily" traveled. A Chief of Police is guilty of misconduct in office for claiming and collecting mileage fees for services performed by another officer, he paying to the latter his actual traveling expenses and retaining for himself the balance of the total amount received. State ex rel. Wynne v. Examining & Trial Bd., 43 M 389, 117 P 77 (1911).

Constitutionality: Chapter 86, sec. 1, L. 1905, allowing Sheriffs only actual traveling expenses for transporting prisoners and insane persons was constitutional when applied to officers elected prior to its passage. Scharrenbroich v. Lewis & Clark County, 33 M 250, 83 P 482 (1905).

Attorney General's Opinions

State Financial Responsibility for Sentenced Inmate Upon Oral Pronouncement of Sentence: A sentencing hearing represents the only common date by which the criminal justice system can definitely measure when legal and financial responsibility for an inmate shifts from a county to the state. Oral pronouncement of sentence from the bench in the presence of a defendant constitutes final judgment (see St. v. Lane, 1998 MT 76, 288 M 286, 957 P2d 9 (1998)). Once sentenced, an inmate is considered to be in the legal custody of the Department of Corrections, even though a local or regional detention center may serve as a place of temporary detention until the inmate can be placed by the Department. Therefore, upon oral pronouncement of sentence that transfers legal custody of an inmate to the Department, the financial responsibility for the inmate transfers to the Department as well. 49 A.G. Op. 13 (2001).

Returning Patients to Montana State Hospital — Financial Responsibility: A Sheriff who returns a patient to Warm Springs State Hospital (now Montana State Hospital) pursuant to 7-32-2144 when the patient has been subjected to an involuntary civil or a criminal commitment is entitled to reimbursement for his costs from the applicable county for a person committed pursuant to 46-14-221 and 46-14-222 or the institution to which the person is committed when committed pursuant to 46-14-301, 53-21-121, 53-21-124, and 53-21-127. 37 A.G. Op. 129 (1978).

Transport of Prisoners by Aircraft: A Sheriff may be reimbursed under this section for expenses incurred in transporting prisoners to or from the state prison by aircraft or airline if flying is the least expensive means of transport. 36 A.G. Op. 70 (1976).

Act Allowing Private Parties to Contract for Jails Not in Conflict With Local Government Regulatory Statutes: The act allowing counties to contract with private parties for the building, maintenance, and operation of jails, enacted as Chapter 447, L. 1985, does not directly conflict with other Montana statutes regulating the indebtedness, contracts, jail facilities, or interlocal agreements of local governments. However, Chapter 447 is subject to the various applicable limitations contained in those statutes. 42 A.G. Op. 81 (1988).

In the case of more than one county utilizing a common jail as provided in subsection (1), such jail shall be kept by the sheriffs of the counties utilizing the common jail on a basis as the sheriffs shall agree, by a jail administrator hired by the county in which the jail is situated, or by a private party agreeing to act as the jailer"; at end of (4), after "maintained", inserted "and operated. incurred by a person ultimately charged with a violation of state law but who is unable to pay, the Supreme Court adopted the "nature of the crime" approach. This approach determines financial responsibility not on the basis of which agency first takes a person into custody, but rather on the basis of the crime charged. Because the county is vested with the primary responsibility for enforcing state law and maintaining facilities to accomplish that responsibility, performance of the task necessarily includes assumption of the associated financial burden. Mont. Deaconess Medical Center v. Great Falls, 232 M 474, 758 P2d 756, 45 St. Rep. 1207 (1988).

Attorney General's Opinions

County Primarily Responsible for Postarrest Medical Care: A county is primarily responsible to third-party providers for postarrest medical care given to a person who is ultimately charged with a violation of state law. Following conviction, an inmate who has the means to pay is responsible for the ultimate payment of medical costs pursuant to 7-32-2245, and a county at that point may seek recovery from another party pursuant to state law. 47 A.G. Op. 2 (1997).

Failure to Admit Person to Jail When Committed by Competent Authority — Negligence Per Se Argument Not Considered for First Time on Appeal: Russell violated the terms of his suspended sentence and was ordered to report to the county jail no later than 8 a.m. on December 28, 1998. When Russell appeared at the jail, a written order of commitment could not be found, so Russell was turned away. When Prindel was subsequently injured by Russell, Prindel argued that failure to admit Russell to jail constituted negligence per se on the part of the county. However, Prindel did not allege any elements of negligence per se in the action, so the Supreme Court declined to address the issue on appeal. Prindel v. Ravalli County, 2006 MT 62, 331 M 338, 133 P3d 165 (2006).

Failure to Admit Person to Jail When Committed by Competent Authority Negligent Violation of Duty of Care: Russell violated the terms of his suspended sentence and was ordered to report to the county jail no later than 8 a.m. on December 28, 1998. When Russell appeared at the jail, a written order of commitment could not be found, so Russell was turned away. On December 30, Russell stabbed Prindel at a party, and Russell was sentenced to life in prison for attempted deliberate homicide. Prindel subsequently sued the county, alleging that the failure to incarcerate Russell on the 28th, despite a court order that Russell begin serving a sentence on that day, amounted to negligence that proximately caused Prindel's injury. The District Court granted summary judgment to the county, concluding that the county had no duty to prevent Russell from injuring Prindel and that the issue of causation need not be addressed. On appeal, the Supreme Court reversed. The county's argument that it had no duty of care without a written order was without merit because the oral pronouncement of sentence constituted the competent authority to incarcerate Russell, and the jail's ignorance of the commitment order did not diminish the court order's status as a competent authority. The county had a special relationship of custody under this section to take Russell into custody for the protection of the public, and failure to do so was negligence as a matter of law. Russell posed a foreseeable risk, Prindel was a foreseeable plaintiff, and the county owed a duty to Prindel to exercise reasonable care to protect him against Russell. Reasonable minds could differ as to whether Russell's act of stabbing Prindel was so unforeseeable as to sever the chain of causation, so summary judgment for the county was error. Prindel v. Ravalli County, 2006 MT 62, 331 M 338, 133 P3d 165 (2006), following Lopez v. Great Falls Pre-Release Serv., Inc., 1999 MT 199, 295 M 416, 986 P2d 1081 (1999), and LaTray v. Havre, 2000 MT 119, 299 M 449, 999 P2d 1010 (2000).

Accounting to Commissioners: Prior to the 1971 amendment of this section, a Sheriff had no clear legal duty to provide the Board of County Commissioners with a detailed itemized accounting of county funds received for furnishing board to prisoners of county jail. State ex rel. Lucier v. Murphy, 156 M 186, 478 P2d 273 (1970).

Expense of Providing Food: The Sheriff is compelled by law to supply prisoners with food. The law does not prescribe where the food shall be prepared, whether inside the jail or out, at the option of the Sheriff. It is intended that the Sheriff not make any profit or gain out of providing food, but neither is it intended that the Sheriff suffer a loss in furnishing food. A part of the necessary expense in providing food is the cost of the fuel with which the food is cooked. Pac. Coal Co. v. Silver Bow County, 79 M 323, 256 P 386 (1927).

Contract With Federal Government: The provision of section 5547, United States Revised Statutes, making it the duty of the Attorney General of the United States to contract with "the managers or proper authorities having control" of federal prisoners in county jails for their subsistence, contemplates that the contract shall be made with the Sheriffs and not with the Boards of County Commissioners. The former, under this section, are the custodians of the jails and answerable for the safekeeping of the persons confined. Majors v. County of Lewis & Clark, 60 M 608, 201 P 268 (1921).

County Primarily Responsible for Postarrest Medical Care: A county is primarily responsible to third-party providers for postarrest medical care given to a person who is ultimately charged with a violation of state law. Following conviction, an inmate who has the means to pay is responsible for the ultimate payment of medical costs pursuant to 7-32-2245, and a county at that point may seek recovery from another party pursuant to state law. 47 A.G. Op. 2 (1997).

Case Notes

Conditions of Jail Held Not to Violate Statute — Defendant's Release Not Required: Collier was arrested and charged with solicitation of deliberate homicide, which was reduced to criminal endangerment by a plea bargain. At the District Court level and on appeal, Collier challenged her continued incarceration in a county jail allegedly failing to comply with this section. The Supreme Court noted that the District Court had taken testimony on the issue and that the testimony showed that although the jail was not in 100% compliance with this section, conditions were not so bad as to constitute a health hazard. The Supreme Court pointed out that testimony also showed that Collier brought some of the unsanitary conditions upon herself. St. v. Collier, 277 M 46, 919 P2d 376, 53 St. Rep. 534 (1996).

County Responsibility for Medical Costs of Detained Person Unable to Pay — “Nature of the Crime” Approach: In determining whether a city or a county is responsible for medical costs incurred by a person ultimately charged with a violation of state law but who is unable to pay, the Supreme Court adopted the “nature of the crime” approach. This approach determines financial responsibility not on the basis of which agency first takes a person into custody, but rather on the basis of the crime charged. Because the county is vested with the primary responsibility for enforcing state law and maintaining facilities to accomplish that responsibility, performance of the task necessarily includes assumption of the associated financial burden. Mont. Deaconess Medical Center v. Great Falls, 232 M 474, 758 P2d 756, 45 St. Rep. 1207 (1988).

Due Process Right of Official Detainees to Medical Care: The Supreme Court cited Revere v. Mass. Gen. Hosp., 463 US 239, 77 L Ed 2d 605, 103 S Ct 2979 (1983), in holding that due process demands that persons detained by government agencies receive adequate medical care regardless of their ability to pay; responsibility for costs is a matter of state law. *Mont. Attorney General's Opinions

State Financial Responsibility for Sentenced Inmate Upon Oral Pronouncement of Sentence: A sentencing hearing represents the only common date by which the criminal justice system can definitely measure when legal and financial responsibility for an inmate shifts from a county to the state. Oral pronouncement of sentence from the bench in the presence of a defendant constitutes final judgment (see St. v. Lane, 1998 MT 76, 288 M 286, 957 P2d 9 (1998)). Once sentenced, an inmate is considered to be in the legal custody of the Department of Corrections, even though a local or regional detention center may serve as a place of temporary detention until the inmate can be placed by the Department. Therefore, upon oral pronouncement of sentence that transfers legal custody of an inmate to the Department, the financial responsibility for the inmate transfers to the Department as well. 49 A.G. Op. 13 (2001).

Case Notes

Conditions Imposed in Written Judgment and Sentence Different From Those Imposed in Oral Sentence — Lane, Waters, and Simpson Reviewed — Test to Determine Which New Conditions Lawful or Unlawful — Payment of Restitution and Costs: Johnson was sentenced orally for writing bad checks and later contended that four of the conditions imposed in the written judgment and sentence by the District Court were unlawful under St. v. Lane, 1998 MT 76, 288 M 286, 957 P2d 9 (1998), because they were not announced orally when she was sentenced in open court. The Supreme Court reviewed its decisions in St. v. Waters, 1999 MT 229, 296 M 101, 987 P2d 1142 (1999), and St. v. Simpson, 1999 MT 259, 296 M 335, 989 P2d 361 (1999), and reasoned that a written sentence would be held unlawful only if it substantively increased the defendant's loss of liberty or the defendant's sacrifice of property. Under this test, the Supreme Court held that two of the four penalties not mentioned by the District Court in its oral pronouncement of Johnson's sentence were unlawful, those being the restitution ordered to the Missoula County jail of money expended for Johnson's medical care and the requirement that Johnson pay for the costs of her prosecution in District Court. The Supreme Court held that the other two parts of the written sentence, the requirement that Johnson make restitution from money earned in prison and the imposition of certain "civil" restrictions as conditions of Johnson's suspended sentence, such as the requirement that Johnson stay out of gambling casinos, were lawfully imposed because they did not increase the amount of money that Johnson was ordered to pay or increase Johnson's deprivation of liberty in addition to those penalties imposed orally. The requirement for payment from prison earnings only specified where the money was to come from, and the "civil" restrictions were largely mentioned by the District Court at Johnson's sentencing hearing. St. v. Johnson, 2000 MT 290, 302 M 265, 14 P3d 480, 57 St. Rep. 1225 (2000).

7-32-4101. Police department authorized and required.Case NotesMandatory as to First- and Second-Class Cities:

Since provisions of the Metropolitan Police Law prior to amendment were mandatory on cities of the first and second class, where newly passed city ordinance required police officers to serve continuously on the active list for not less than 30 years before being eligible for retirement, the ordinance was in direct conflict with sections 11-1818 and 11-1821, R.C.M. 1947 (now repealed), and invalid. Bartels v. Miles City, 145 M 116, 399 P2d 768 (1965).

The Metropolitan Police Law, placing the police department under civil service rules, was mandatory as to cities of the first class, prior to 1939 amendment, but was left optional with the authorities of the smaller cities and towns whether they would bring themselves within its provisions. Grush v. Bishop, 46 M 97, 126 P 619 (1912), explained in McBroom v. Polson, 137 M 33, 349 P2d 1023 (1960); State ex rel. Buchner v. Mayor, 41 M 377, 109 P 710 (1910).

Appointment of Policemen in Third-Class City: Where a city had not elected to come under the provisions of the Metropolitan Police Law, it was not bound by any of the provisions thereof and was not prohibited from appointing a policeman who had not been a resident for 6 months. McBroom v. Polson, 137 M 33, 349 P2d 1023 (1960).

Duty to Maintain Adequate Force: A municipality has the duty to maintain an adequate police force and, it follows, the duty to preserve order. In performing that duty the municipality is performing a governmental function. Kingfisher v. Forsyth, 132 M 39, 314 P2d 876 (1957).

Liability of City for Tortious Act of City Policeman: A city is not liable for tortious acts of a city policeman committed while acting within the course and scope of his employment in enforcing the laws and ordinances of a city. Kingfisher v. Forsyth, 132 M 39, 314 P2d 876 (1957).

Broad Power: The purpose of the laws relative to police departments and Police Commissioners was to remove the police from the influence of politics and to make the tenure of the force secure irrespective of the political effect of their actions. In considering the broad powers given Police Commissions, it is apparent that they are not bodies for only advisory purposes but that the intention of the Legislature was to make them bodies of considerable importance whose findings should have weight. State ex rel. Goings v. Great Falls, 112 M 51, 112 P2d 1071 (1941).

Other Offices: The Metropolitan Police Law contemplates that in addition to the office of Chief of Police, which the law itself creates, there shall be different grades and other offices established by the City Council, as indicated in 7-32-4104, or by the Mayor in the event the Council fails to act, as shown by 7-32-4103. State ex rel. Dwyer v. Duncan, 49 M 54, 140 P 95 (1914).

Purpose of Statute: The purpose of the Legislature in enacting the Metropolitan Police Law was to remove the police force as far as possible from the control of partisan political influences by putting it under civil service rules and thus raise the standard of efficiency. State ex rel. Bennetts v. Duncan, 47 M 447, 133 P 109 (1913); State ex rel. Quintin v. Edwards, 40 M 287, 106 P 695 (1910).

Construction of Statute: The Legislature, in enacting the "police commission bill", employing, as it did, many expressions which are exclusive in their meaning, intended to supplant all existing legislation as to the mode of constituting the police departments of cities and to put all members thereof under civil service rules. State ex rel. Wynne v. Quinn, 40 M 472, 107 P 506 (1910).

Department Not to Be Abolished: The police force cannot be abolished as a whole, for under this section the city is required to maintain it, nor can it be abolished in part. The power of the city extends only to a reduction in its numbers for economical reasons, and it must be exercised in good faith. State ex rel. Quintin v. Edwards, 40 M 287, 106 P 695 (1910).

Case Notes

Commission Form of Government: The Metropolitan Police Law is quite similar in its provisions relating to the appointment, suspension, and discharge of the Chief of Police and of members of the police force to the provisions of the law relating to municipal fire departments, as respects the chief and members of the city fire department. As to policemen, this court has held that the mode of their suspension or removal prescribed by the Metropolitan Police Law obtains under the commission form of government as forcibly as under the aldermanic form. State ex rel. Daly v. Dryburgh, 62 M 36, 203 P 508 (1921); State ex rel. Lease v. Wilkinson, 59 M 327, 196 P 878 (1921); State ex rel. Lease v. Wilkinson, 55 M 340, 177 P 401 (1918); State ex rel. McDonald v. Getchell, 51 M 323, 152 P 480 (1915).

Examination of Officers — Authority of Council: The city of Butte, by resolution of the City Council, created a commission to examine all members of the police force and to report to the Mayor any officers unable to discharge the duties of office. The supervision of the force is confided to the Mayor. It is his duty to know that the members of the force are physically able to perform the services required of them and to discharge members who cannot. Before making such a charge, he must have reasonable grounds to do so. If in the judgment of the City Council the Mayor needs assistance in that determination, section 3314, R.C.M. 1921 (now repealed), furnished authority for the provision of such help. Larkin v. Butte, 52 M 410, 158 P 316 (1916).

Organization by Ordinance: A city ordinance providing for the organization of the police department of the city in conformity with the statute governing that matter has, when duly passed, the force and effect of a statute. State ex rel. Dwyer v. Duncan, 49 M 54, 140 P 95 (1914).

Power of Council: The power to reduce the police force, as constituted under the Metropolitan Police Law, if unnecessarily large or for economic reasons, resides in the City Council and not in the Mayor. State ex rel. Rowling v. Mayor, 43 M 331, 117 P 604 (1911).

Review of Action by Mayor: If the Mayor of a city puts members of the police department out of active service but afterwards complies with an order of court to reinstate them and, after they have served a short time, again retires them, he is not in contempt. State ex rel. Rowling v. District Court, 41 M 532, 110 P 86 (1910).

How Construed as to Appointment and Removal: A Chief of Police whose duties are the same as those of the ordinary policeman, except that the additional one of supervision and control of the entire force is imposed upon him, is a "policeman", and as such, after appointment under the act placing the police departments of cities under civil service rules, he is secure from removal from office in any other manner than that provided in the act. State ex rel. Wynne v. Quinn, 40 M 472, 107 P 506 (1910).

Law to Be Followed: This section is wholly inconsistent with the notion that the Mayor or the Council, or both together, may appoint or remove any member of the department in any other manner than that prescribed in the later law of which the section forms a part. State ex rel. Wynne v. Quinn, 40 M 472, 107 P 506 (1910).

Mayor, Not Chief of Police, as Chief Law Enforcement Administrator in Commission-Executive Form of Government: In a commission-executive form of local government, the Mayor, not the Chief of Police, is the chief law enforcement administrator. To bestow the title of chief law enforcement administrator upon the Chief of Police would require the Chief of Police to perform administrative functions that the officer is not otherwise authorized to do. 48 A.G. Mayor Allowed to Designate Assistant Police Chief Without Approval of Municipal Council: In a council-mayor form of government, in the absence of a statutory requirement that a particular mayoral decision is subject to approval of the Municipal Council, the mayor may, in the exercise of the statutory authority to manage and supervise the municipal police force, designate an officer to serve as Assistant Police Chief without the prior approval of the Municipal Council. 46 A.G. Duties as Police Officer: The Chief of Police is a policeman or police officer in the same sense as is an ordinary policeman. When the circumstances demand it, he is required to perform all the duties of the ordinary policeman, for though he has the additional duty of supervision and control of the entire force, this does not lessen or abridge the duties which are enjoined upon all police officers under the general laws of the state. Applications for Appointment: Under this section, action by the Mayor must precede that of the Police Commission, and the City Clerk's action in transmitting an application to the Police Commission could not bind the Mayor. The Mayor need not submit applications when no vacancy exists, nor need he submit every application where a vacancy does exist, the matter resting in his sound discretion. The purpose of the Commission's certificate is to assure minimum qualifications. Horvath v. Mayor, 112 M 266, 116 P2d 874 (1941).

Applications for Appointment — War Veterans: A proceeding in mandamus was brought to compel the Mayor of a city to appoint an honorably discharged war veteran to the position of patrolman under Ch. 66, L. 1937 (10-2-201 through 10-2-206). A war veteran's application must be transmitted to the Police Commission by the Mayor when a vacancy exists, unless on reasonable investigation the Mayor is convinced he is not qualified. He may not be coerced by Writ of Mandate to take favorable action if after investigation he learns that the veteran is not qualified physically due to a back injury. The duty to appoint carries with it the duty to determine the requisite qualifications. State ex rel. Montgomery v. Mayor, 112 M 275, 114 P2d 1046 (1941); *Horvath v. The District Court did not err in holding that this section was not impliedly repealed by the enactment of the Montana Human Rights Act or the governmental code of fair practices. *Ross v. Discretion of Mayor to Discharge Law Enforcement Officer Within Probationary Period — Officer's Right to Wrongful Discharge Claim Following Probationary Period: When the Legislature enacted the Wrongful Discharge From Employment Act, it did not remove a mayor's discretion under this section to review an officer's probationary period and determine whether a probationary law enforcement officer be recommended for permanent employment. Therefore, 39-2-904(1) and (3) (now (1)(a) and (1)(c)) do not apply as a matter of law to give a probationary officer grounds for wrongful discharge. However, once the officer has completed the probationary period in this section and is appointed, the protections in the Act apply and the officer may bring a wrongful discharge from employment claim. Ritchie v. Ennis, 2004 MT 43, 320 M 94, 86 P3d 11 (2004).

Confirmation of Police Officer After Completion of Probationary Period — No Denial Without Good Cause: Hobbs argued that the lower court erred in dismissing his suit against the city of Thompson Falls for terminating him without cause because the parties agreed that he had completed his probationary period and 39-2-904 states that an employee completing a probationary period may be terminated only for good cause. The city argued that this section extends the probationary period for 30 days because it states that upon completion of a probationary period, an officer's appointment must be confirmed by the city's governing body within 30 days. The Supreme Court held that Hobbs could be discharged only for good cause because the only way to reconcile the two statutes was to interpret them to mean that an officer's employment upon completion of the probationary period was subject to confirmation by the city's governing body. However, because the officer was beyond the probationary period during that 30-day time, the officer's confirmation could be denied only upon a showing of good cause. Hobbs v. Thompson Falls, 2000 MT 336, 303 M 140, 15 P3d 418, 57 St. Rep. 1432 (2000), distinguishing Schend v. Thorson, 170 M 5, 549 P2d 809 (1976).

Mayor's Discharge of Police Officer — Not a Denial of Due Process: Police officer's claim that his discharge by Mayor during his period of probation without opportunity to dispute reasons for discharge violated due process of law is without merit because constitutional right of due process only comes into play when one's vested "property" or "liberty" interests are at stake. Schend v. Thorson, 170 M 5, 549 P2d 809, 33 St. Rep. 449 (1976).

Probationary Officer — Reinstatement — Mandamus: A probationary police officer was discharged from the force prior to completion of 6 months' service. No one was appointed to the force to fill his position. He sought to compel the Mayor to submit his name to the City Council for confirmation of his appointment as a member of the police department. Because of his probationary status, he had no clear legal right to the position and mandamus did not lie to require the Mayor to submit his name for membership with the department. State ex rel. O'Neill v. Mayor, 96 M 403, 30 P2d 819 (1934).

Probationary Term:

A probationer, being a member of the police force, can be removed only upon charges made and trial had in conformity with this section and 7-32-4155. State ex rel. Bennetts v. Duncan, 47 M 447, 133 P 109 (1913).

State ex rel. Raw v. Helena, 139 M 343, 363 P2d 720 (1961).

Added Wages — Computation: Under this section as amended by Ch. 28, L. 1957, added wages must be added to the actual current salary and not to the minimum of $350 a month. Hill v. Billings, 134 M 282, 328 P2d 1112 (1958).

Annual Increase: Although the wages provided for by the 1957 amendment were payable only after July 1, 1957, this did not mean that the Legislature did not intend to consider service prior to that date in computing what the wages should be. Hill v. Billings, 134 M 282, 328 P2d 1112 (1958).

Length of Service: In enacting Ch. 28, L. 1957, amending this section, the Legislature intended to recognize the status of police officers according to the length of service in the past and to reward the more experienced by paying them a higher wage scale. The Legislature drew no distinction between years of service performed before July 1, 1957, and those performed after that date. Hill v. Billings, 134 M 282, 328 P2d 1112 (1958).

Constitutionality: This section did not offend against Art. XII, sec. 4, 1889 Mont. Const., prohibiting the Legislature from levying taxes upon the inhabitants of or property in cities. In maintaining a police force, city is performing a governmental function and not acting in its proprietary capacity and is subject to state control. It may not refuse to enforce the provisions of this section. State ex rel. Gebhardt v. Helena, 102 M 27, 55 P2d 671 (1936).

Construction of Statute: If this section contains any provisions in direct conflict with Title 7, ch. 6, part 42, known as the Municipal Budget Law, this section controls as to such conflicts. State ex rel. Gebhardt v. Helena, 102 M 27, 55 P2d 671 (1936).

1981 Amendment: Substituted the requirement that cities are to pay no less than the premium rate in effect as of July 1, 1980, for insurance coverage for policemen and their dependents for the requirement that cities pay 100% of the premium for insurance coverage for each policeman and his dependents in (1)(b); and inserted (1)(c) relating to provisions in collective bargaining agreements.

All-Purpose Mill Levy — Forfeiture of Powers: Municipalities that adopt the all-purpose mill levy authorized in 7-6-4452 (now repealed) forfeit the power to impose levies for any particular purpose not clearly excepted by statute. Thus, the all-purpose mill levy supplants the taxing authority granted in 7-33-4111, 19-10-301 (renumbered 19-19-301), and 19-11-503 (renumbered 19-18-503) but does not supplant the taxing authority granted in 7-32-4117, 7-33-4130, 19-3-204, 19-9-704 (renumbered 19-9-209), sec. 2, Ch. 324, L. 1975 (not codified), sec. 2, Ch. 359, L. 1975 (not codified), and sec. 3, Ch. 438, L. 1975 (not codified). 38 A.G. Policemen — Overtime Compensation — Application of Newly Enacted Statute: A declaratory judgment denied overtime compensation to policemen. A statute was then enacted granting overtime compensation to certain policemen. Applying traditional rules of statutory construction, overtime pay for policemen not mentioned in the statute was denied while overtime pay for those classes of policemen mentioned was upheld. Supplemental Wage Loss Benefits for Injured Police Officer Limited to Cumulative Total of One Year: When a police officer is injured in the line of duty, the employing city's obligation to supplement the officer's workers' compensation wage loss benefits pursuant to this section by paying the difference between benefits received and the officer's net salary ends after the city has paid benefits for a total of 1 year. The 1-year period may consist of aggregated periods of disability of less than 1 year resulting from the same injury and may extend beyond 1 calendar year from the date that the disability begins. 50 A.G. Op. 2 (2003).

Compensation of Police Officer Injured on Duty — No Accrual of Leave: Under this section, a police officer of a first- or second-class municipality (see 1999 amendment) who is injured in the performance of duty is entitled to the difference between any workers' compensation benefits received and the officer's regular salary. (See 1993 amendment.) However, this section does not provide for accrual of either vacation or sick leave benefits during the period of disability. 42 A.G. Op. 114 (1988).

Full Salary Payable From Date of Injury: This section requires a first- or second-class municipality (see 1999 amendment) to pay the full salary (see 1993 amendment) of a police officer injured while at work from the initial date of the injury. 42 A.G. Op. 69 (1988).

Salary Payments to Municipal Policemen After Disabling Injury: Section 7-32-4132 requires a municipality to pay an injured policeman's full salary (see 1993 amendment) during the period of disability or 1 year, whichever ends first. The Workers' Compensation Fund is not liable for any wage loss benefits during that period because the municipality pays the policeman in full and he has suffered no wage loss. 37 A.G. Statute of Limitations Not Applicable: Police Commission was not equitably estopped from preferring charges in reference to false statements on employment application 3 years after such application was submitted and 2 years 3 months after probationary period was completed as no mention is made in this section of any Statute of Limitations as to actions stemming from false information in employment application. Steer v. Missoula, 169 M 389, 547 P2d 843, 33 St. Rep. 332 (1976).

De Facto Officers: Where the Mayor of a city of the first class had appointed three residents to constitute the Examining and Trial Board (now Police Commission) of the police department created by this section, such persons, having qualified, were de facto officers whose official acts were legal, notwithstanding the City Council repeatedly refused to confirm them. State ex rel. Buckner v. Mayor, 41 M 377, 109 P 710 (1910).

Examining and Trial Board: The law, in effect, commands that there shall be an Examining and Trial Board (now Police Commission) of the police department, the members of which the Mayor is required to nominate; and as to cities of the first class, the law prior to amendment was mandatory, and as to other cities and towns, it was permissive only. State ex rel. Buckner v. Mayor, 41 M 377, 109 P 710 (1910).

Police Commission — Constitutionality: The statute establishing a Police Commission in cities and towns did not violate Art. V, sec. 36, 1889 Mont. Const., declaring that the Legislature could not delegate to any special commission the power to perform any municipal function. The Police Commission was held not to be a "special" commission within the meaning of the 1889 Montana Constitution, since the Mayor controlled the Commission. *State ex rel. Quintin v. Validity of Acts of De Facto Public Officer: Dismissed police officer contended the Law Enforcement Commission that decided to discharge him was not properly empaneled at the time of his hearing because of technical defects in the manner of appointment of two of its members. With regard to one member, there was no merit to this objection. As to the second, he, at the least, was acting as a de facto officer at the time of the hearing. A de facto officer's acts are valid to the extent they involve the interest of the public and a third person. Wood v. Butorovich, 220 M 484, 716 P2d 608, 43 St. Rep. 546 (1986). Administrator Statutorily Authorized to Modify Police Officer's Punishment: A police officer failed to report damage to an assigned patrol car at the beginning of the officer's shift. After an investigation established that the accident occurred during the officer's work shift, the Police Commission, following a hearing, suspended the officer for 3 weeks. Pursuant to the 1991 version of 7-32-4160, the city administrator modified the officer's punishment from suspension to termination. The District Court subsequently affirmed both the Commission's decision to suspend and the administrator's decision to modify the punishment to termination. On appeal, the Supreme Court affirmed, ruling that state law authorized a city administrator to modify a decision by the Police Commission. In re Termination of Abbey v. Billings Police Comm'n, 268 M 354, 886 P2d 922, 51 St. Rep. 1374 (1994).

City Manager Chief Executive Under Commissioner-Manager Form of Government: The city manager filed an order confirming the recommendation of the police commission directing the permanent discharge of a police officer. A few days later, the Mayor signed an order to retain the police officer subject to certain conditions and limitations. The city filed a declaratory judgment action appealing the decision of the Mayor. The District Court held that under 7-32-4153 the city manager, rather than the Mayor, was the proper party to review the decision of the police commission. The Supreme Court affirmed the District Court decision and held that under the commissioner-manager form of government, the city manager, not the Mayor, is the chief executive with power to affirm, modify, or veto decisions of the police commission. (a) is incompetent or has become incapacitated, by age, disease, or otherwise, to discharge the duties of his office;

(b) has been guilty of neglect of duty, of misconduct in his office, or of conduct unbecoming a police officer;

(c) has been found guilty of any crime; or

(d) whose conduct has been such as to bring reproach upon the police force"; in (2) substituted "an appeal of a police officer, to hear and determine the appeal" for "a charge against a police officer, to forthwith proceed to hear, try, and determine the charge"; and made minor changes in style.

Case Notes

Statutory Due Process Safeguards for Police Officers Met — Continuance Properly Denied: Ex-wife served a citizen's complaint with the police department against her former husband Wong, a police officer, alleging an ongoing pattern of harassment against herself, her babysitters, certain friends, and others that took place while Wong was on duty. A formal complaint alleging 39 charges was served on Wong 22 days before the police commission hearing was scheduled to begin. Following problems in retaining counsel, Wong moved for a continuance before the hearing, but the motion was denied. Wong subsequently appeared at the hearing pro se. The District Court held that the notice for hearing was statutorily sufficient but that the commission's denial of a continuance was arbitrary, capricious, and an abuse of discretion that denied Wong of procedural due process. The District Court reversed and remanded for another hearing based on the commission's failure to grant a continuance. The Supreme Court reversed the lower court after finding that the statutory safeguards for police officers were met, including provision of proper notice and a hearing at which Wong appeared and presented witnesses in his defense. Wong's appearance without counsel was due to his own actions. Denial of the continuance was not error. In re Termination of Wong v. Billings, 252 M 111, 827 P2d 90, 49 St. Rep. 158 (1992).

No Wrongful Discharge Action — Police Officers Never Fired: Two police officers brought an action for wrongful discharge against the city. The Supreme Court affirmed the lower court's granting of a summary judgment dismissing their suit. The court held that the officers had never been taken before the police commission as required by law and therefore they had never been legally discharged and accordingly could not bring an action for wrongful discharge. McCracken v. Chinook, 242 M 21, 788 P2d 892, 47 St. Rep. 501 (1990).

Admissibility in Police Disciplinary Hearing of Fact Witness Took Polygraph Test: Although the results of a witness's polygraph exam were not admitted in evidence, she was asked if she took a test and answered that she had. There was no objection, and the chairman of the Police Commission sitting at a police officers' disciplinary hearing admonished the Commission that evidence of taking the exam was to be ignored. On appeal, the District Court found no prejudice. The Supreme Court agreed. Gentry v. Helena, 237 M 353, 773 P2d 309, 46 St. Rep. 862 (1989).

Unchallenged Three-Month Suspension: Section 7-32-4163 (now repealed) provided that a police officer could be suspended with or without pay for up to 10 days in a given month and provided for an appeal by the officer. Three officers were suspended with pay from September 4 through November 30. They did not appeal. The record showed no prejudice, and the Supreme Court found no reversible error. Gentry v. Helena, 237 M 353, 773 P2d 309, 46 St. Rep. 862 (1989).

No Prejudice to Defense From Twenty and One-Half-Hour Hearing: Police Commission's disciplinary hearing for three police officers began at about 9:45 a.m. At about 9:15 p.m., the city finished its case. The Commission chairman told defense counsel to present their case. At 12:30 a.m., the chairman told the defense that the hearing could be adjourned to a later date, but the defense elected to continue. The hearing was completed after about 20 ½ hours. The hearing was inordinately long and wearying, but no prejudice to defendants was shown, and there was no reversible error. Gentry v. Helena, 237 M 353, 773 P2d 309, 46 St. Rep. 862 (1989).

Review Standard on Appeal to District and Supreme Courts: A Police Commission's findings in a disciplinary proceeding against a police officer are final and conclusive if supported by substantial evidence. The District Court, sitting as an appellate court, is not authorized to determine penalties, sanctions, or disciplinary measures that may be taken. On appeal from the District Court, the Supreme Court will use the standard of review in 2-4-704(2) of the Montana Administrative Procedure Act, and the findings, inferences and conclusions, and decision will not be reversed or modified unless they are clearly erroneous in view of the reliable, probative, and substantial evidence of the whole record. Gentry v. Helena, 237 M 353, 773 P2d 309, 46 St. Rep. 862 (1989).

Testimony at Administrative Hearing by Person Who Decides Appeal: Police officers at a disciplinary hearing before the Police Commission argued that because the city manager could veto or modify the Commission's decision, it was an inherent conflict of interest for him to testify against them at the hearing. On appeal, the District Court found no prejudice in the city manager's testimony, and the officers showed none on appeal to the Supreme Court. No rule prevented the testimony. The Supreme Court found no reversible error. Gentry v. Helena, 237 M 353, 773 P2d 309, 46 St. Rep. 862 (1989).

Validity of Acts of De Facto Public Officer: Dismissed police officer contended the Law Enforcement Commission that decided to discharge him was not properly empaneled at the time of his hearing because of technical defects in the manner of appointment of two of its members. With regard to one member, there was no merit to this objection. As to the second, he, at the least, was acting as a de facto officer at the time of the hearing. A de facto officer's acts are valid to the extent they involve the interest of the public and a third person. Wood v. Butorovich, 220 M 484, 716 P2d 608, 43 St. Rep. 546 (1986). See also City/County of Butte-Silver Bow v. Bd. of Personnel Appeals, 225 M 286, 732 P2d 835, 44 St. Rep. 237 (1987).

Police Officer's Right to Privacy Not Absolute: The constitutional right of privacy does not completely protect a police officer from discharge based solely upon his off-duty activities. The state has an overriding and compelling interest in protecting the public and preserving the integrity of the police department, and this interest overrode respondent's right to privacy. In re Raynes, 215 M 484, 698 P2d 856, 42 St. Rep. 569 (1985).

Records of Other Disciplinary Proceedings Not Relevant — Protective Order Proper: In a police commission proceeding for dismissal of a police officer, defendant police officer was denied, under Rule 26(c), M.R.Civ.P. (Title 25, ch. 20), access to records of other police disciplinary proceedings that he planned to introduce in support of his defense of "discriminatory law enforcement". The evidence was not relevant to the proceeding, and the protective order was properly granted. In re Raynes, 215 M 484, 698 P2d 856, 42 St. Rep. 569 (1985).

Removal Not Excessive Punishment: Removal of an 18-year veteran of the Great Falls police force for conduct unbecoming an officer was not excessive punishment when the evidence indicated that in the course of operating a private hypnosis business defendant had engaged in sexual relations with his hypnotized clients and used his status as a police officer to gain his clients' confidence and trust. In re Raynes, 215 M 484, 698 P2d 856, 42 St. Rep. 569 (1985).

Scope of District Court Review: The District Court's review of a police commission determination under 7-32-4164 is a review of the questions of law and fact implicit within the police commission's decision. The review of the law is to determine whether the rulings are correct. The review of the facts is made under the substantial evidence test. In re Raynes, 215 M 484, 698 P2d 856, 42 St. Rep. 569 (1985).

Summary Proceeding: Policeman charged with several acts of misconduct and subject to proceedings under this section could not also be suspended under 7-32-4163 (now repealed) on the basis of the same charges. The procedures outlined in 7-32-4155 through 7-32-4163 (7-32-4162 and 7-32-4163 now repealed) and the summary proceeding under 7-32-4163 (now repealed) were mutually exclusive, the former being intended to deal with serious charges which, if proven, could lead to the officer's dismissal and the latter being intended to deal with minor disciplinary problems capable of being handled within the department. Miskovich v. Helena, 170 M 138, 551 P2d 995 (1976).

Dismissal During Probationary Period: Where city ordinance provided that newly hired police officers must serve a probationary period of up to 6 months, during which time they might be summarily dismissed by the Mayor, dismissal of plaintiff after 5 months on the basis of his "performance of duty, attitude toward and lack of desire to co-operate with those in charge" and Police Commission's refusal to give him a hearing on the charges against him did not violate the 14th amendment Due Process Clause, since dismissal from one's job during the probationary period is not a deprivation of liberty or property within the meaning of the clause. Schend v. Thorson, 170 M 5, 549 P2d 809 (1976).

Factors in Identifying Witness: Whether the witness who told a police investigator that petitioner was "rumored" to have stolen two bicycles from the police storage garage ought to be ordered identified in a proceeding before the Police Commissioner was dependent upon the circumstances of the case and called for a balancing of various factors, including the nature of the crime charged, possible defenses, the significance of the informer's testimony, the necessity to protect the flow of information, and the impact of nondisclosure on the accused's right to present a defense. In re Dewar, 169 M 437, 548 P2d 149 (1976).

Testimony — Power to Compel: Police Commission has the power under this section to compel the testimony of reluctant witnesses, subject to the same restrictions as those imposed upon a District Court in the trial of like cases. In re Dewar, 169 M 437, 548 P2d 149 (1976).

Trial: Where policeman had been improperly dismissed but reinstated, then charged with misconduct, dishonesty, and failure to obey a superior's lawful order, found guilty at a hearing as provided for by 7-32-4162 (now repealed) and then dismissed again, the first dismissal did not so taint the subsequent proceedings as to render them mere ex post facto attempts to provide due process and justify the discharge; the error of the improper dismissal was completely cured by the reinstatement. Steer v. Missoula, 169 M 389, 547 P2d 843 (1976).

Chairman — Prohibition Wrongfully Issued: The chairman of a Police Commission, though restrained from officially participating in the trial of a policeman for misconduct in office by Writ of Prohibition, improperly issued, nevertheless was present at the trial throughout, though not acting as chairman. His right to join his colleagues in the final disposition of the case, after dismissal of the prohibition proceeding, was not affected by the issuance of the Writ. State ex rel. Mueller v. District Court, 87 M 108, 285 P 928 (1930).

Prohibition — Jurisdiction Question: The Writ of Prohibition lies only to arrest proceedings without or in excess of jurisdiction—the power to hear and determine the case. Where the affidavit for the Writ does not present a jurisdictional question, as where a policeman under charges for misconduct seeks to disqualify a member of the police board from participating in the hearing for bias and prejudice but the statute does not provide for such disqualification, leaving the question of jurisdiction unaffected, the Writ does not lie. State ex rel. Mueller v. District Court, 87 M 108, 285 P 928 (1930), distinguished in State ex rel. Stewart v. District Court, 103 M 487, 63 P2d 141 (1936).

Quasi-Judicial Power: Under the Metropolitan Police Law there is no inherent right of indefinite tenure in the office of policeman. When remiss in their duty, the members of the police force are subject to discipline or removal from office after trial before the Police Commission which has quasi-judicial powers not limited by the provisions of the Montana Constitution applicable to courts. State ex rel. Mueller v. District Court, 87 M 108, 285 P 928 (1930).

No Disqualification: In the absence of statutory provision for the disqualification of members of the Police Commission on the ground of bias or prejudice, vested as it is with exclusive jurisdiction to hear and determine charges against members of the police force, the right of a member of the Commission to participate in a hearing of charges against a policeman is not vulnerable to such attack, the rule of disqualification not applying to officers not judicial. State ex rel. Mueller v. District Court, 87 M 108, 285 P 928 (1930).

Charges — No Statute of Limitations: The sufficiency of charges against a police officer cannot be defeated by the fact that the specifications considered as a basis for criminal prosecution may be barred by the Statute of Limitations. State ex rel. O'Brien v. Mayor, 54 M 533, 172 P 134 (1918).

Fitness: In every proceeding for the removal of an officer, the charges against him are not to be tested by the rigid rules of criminal procedure, but the ultimate inquiry is the fitness of the accused to hold his position. Such inquiry is raised by the specific questions whether he is incompetent or has been guilty of neglect of duty or misconduct in office or conduct unbecoming an officer. State ex rel. O'Brien v. Mayor, 54 M 533, 172 P 134 (1918).

Trial: It is contemplated that charges against any officer in the department shall be heard by the Examining and Trial Board (now Police Commission). State ex rel. Dwyer v. Duncan, 49 M 54, 140 P 95 (1914).

What Is Sufficient Misconduct: A police officer, after having been notified of an obstruction on a sidewalk by a pedestrian who was injured by falling over it, paid no attention to the complaint further than to say that nothing could be done unless the complainant should swear out a warrant against the owner of the premises. He was guilty of misconduct in office, in view of police regulations governing such matters, as well as of neglect of duty. A charge substantially embodying these facts was sufficient to state either or both of these offenses made triable by the trial board of the police department. Bailey v. Examining & Trial Bd., 45 M 197, 122 P 572 (1912).

Illegal Mileage: Evidence was sufficient to support a finding of misconduct against the Chief of Police for claiming and collecting mileage fees for services performed by a subordinate. The Chief paid his subordinate his actual traveling expenses and retained for himself the balance of the total amount received. State ex rel. Wynne v. Examining & Trial Bd., 43 M 389, 117 P 77 (1911).

Police Chief as Officer — Removal: A Chief of Police whose duties are the same as those of an ordinary officer, except the additional duty of supervision and control of the force, is a "policeman". After appointment under the municipal police statutes, he is secure from removal in any manner other than provided in the statutes. State ex rel. Wynne v. Quinn, 40 M 472, 107 P 506 (1910).

police officer for inappropriate use of force, making inconsistent statements, and failing to orally answer followup questions. The Supreme Court noted that Wolny was entitled to fundamental due process rights, including notice, an explanation of the evidence against him, and an opportunity to respond. However the court found that the officer's due process rights were not violated. The Police Commission properly considered the testimony of witnesses, correctly held that Wolny was insubordinate for failing to orally answer questions that were reasonably related to Wolny's fitness to perform duties or to his job performance, properly excluded the disciplinary history of other police officers, and adequately complied with its progressive discipline policy despite the fact that Wolny's personnel file was not offered as evidence. *Wolny v. Administrator Statutorily Authorized to Modify Police Officer's Punishment: A police officer failed to report damage to an assigned patrol car at the beginning of the officer's shift. After an investigation established that the accident occurred during the officer's work shift, the Police Commission, following a hearing, suspended the officer for 3 weeks. Pursuant to the 1991 version of this section, the city administrator modified the officer's punishment from suspension to termination. The District Court subsequently affirmed both the Commission's decision to suspend and the administrator's decision to modify the punishment to termination. On appeal, the Supreme Court affirmed, ruling that state law authorized a city administrator to modify a decision by the Police Commission. *In re Termination of Abbey v. Discharge for Lying to Commission Under Oath: It was not reversible error for the city manager, on review of the Police Commission's hearing, to discharge three police officers who lied to the Commission under oath. Evidence in Support of Discharge for Harassing Citizen and Lying to Commission: Police Commission found three police officers guilty of lying to the Commission and two of them guilty under citizen's complaints and recommended suspensions without pay for two, a demotion for one, and a reprimand personnel file letter for one. The city manager, on review, terminated employment of all three. Substantial evidence supported the recommendation and termination. Two officers had been drinking for over 8 hours and had harassed a citizen while intoxicated. They made the rounds of a number of bars. The third had given the two a ride in a police car from a bar to their vehicle, and all three attempted to cover up the events before the Commission. Among the evidence was the testimony of several witnesses and an audiotaped record of a call one officer made for a ride in a police car. (See 1993 amendment.) Gentry v. Helena, 237 M 353, 773 P2d 309, 46 St. Rep. 862 (1989).

City Manager Chief Executive Under Commissioner-Manager Form of Government: The city manager filed an order confirming the recommendation of the police commission directing the permanent discharge of a police officer. A few days later, the Mayor signed an order to retain the police officer subject to certain conditions and limitations. The city filed a declaratory judgment action appealing the decision of the Mayor. The District Court held that under 7-32-4153 the city manager, rather than the Mayor, was the proper party to review the decision of the police commission. The Supreme Court affirmed the District Court decision and held that under the commissioner-manager form of government, the city manager, not the Mayor, is the chief executive with power to affirm, modify, or veto decisions of the police commission. It recommended the Council and Board of Trustees of the police pension fund that he become a member of the police reserves. Such finding was binding on the Council to proceed under this section and by ordinance place him on the reserve list and ordered him paid as provided by statute. *State ex rel. Goings v. Statutory Due Process Safeguards for Police Officers Met — Continuance Properly Denied: Ex-wife served a citizen's complaint with the police department against her former husband Wong, a police officer, alleging an ongoing pattern of harassment against herself, her babysitters, certain friends, and others that took place while Wong was on duty. A formal complaint alleging 39 charges was served on Wong 22 days before the police commission hearing was scheduled to begin. Following problems in retaining counsel, Wong moved for a continuance before the hearing, but the motion was denied. Wong subsequently appeared at the hearing pro se. The District Court held that the notice for hearing was statutorily sufficient but that the commission's denial of a continuance was arbitrary, capricious, and an abuse of discretion that denied Wong of procedural due process. The District Court reversed and remanded for another hearing based on the commission's failure to grant a continuance. The Supreme Court reversed the lower court after finding that the statutory safeguards for police officers were met, including provision of proper notice and a hearing at which Wong appeared and presented witnesses in his defense. Wong's appearance without counsel was due to his own actions. Denial of the continuance was not error. In re Termination of Wong v. Billings, 252 M 111, 827 P2d 90, 49 St. Rep. 158 (1992).

Review Standard on Appeal to District and Supreme Courts: A Police Commission's findings in a disciplinary proceeding against a police officer are final and conclusive if supported by substantial evidence. The District Court, sitting as an appellate court, is not authorized to determine penalties, sanctions, or disciplinary measures that may be taken. On appeal from the District Court, the Supreme Court will use the standard of review in 2-4-704(2) of the Montana Administrative Procedure Act, and the findings, inferences and conclusions, and decision will not be reversed or modified unless they are clearly erroneous in view of the reliable, probative, and substantial evidence of the whole record. Gentry v. Helena, 237 M 353, 773 P2d 309, 46 St. Rep. 862 (1989).

Metropolitan Police Law Exclusive Remedy — Collective Bargaining Agreement Grievance Procedure Inapplicable: A police officer terminated pursuant to the metropolitan police law, Title 7, ch. 32, part 41, pursued remedies under the grievance procedure of his union's collective bargaining agreement. The Supreme Court noted that under the agreement a grievance arose only on a misapplication of a provision of the agreement. Neither party claimed a misapplication of the method of discharge. By the agreement's own terms, the metropolitan police law was applicable and provided adequate administrative and judicial determination and review. Butte-Silver Bow did not commit an unfair labor practice by refusing to grieve the matter as being outside the grievance procedure provided by this section. (See 1993 amendment.) City/County of Butte-Silver Bow v. Bd. of Personnel Appeals, 225 M 286, 732 P2d 835, 44 St. Rep. 237 (1987).

Scope of District Court Review: The District Court's review of a police commission determination under this section is a review of the questions of law and fact implicit within the police commission's decision. The review of the law is to determine whether the rulings are correct. The review of the facts is made under the substantial evidence test. In re Raynes, 215 M 484, 698 P2d 856, 42 St. Rep. 569 (1985).

Review of Decision: Decision of Police Commission is subject to judicial review, but there is no right to jury trial or hearing de novo. Helena v. District Court, 166 M 74, 530 P2d 464 (1975).

Time Limitation: Where a statute creates a right which did not exist at the common law and prescribes the time within which the right must be exercised, the limitation does not affect the remedy merely but is the essence of the right itself—a condition attached to the right to sue. Under this rule of law, it was proper to dismiss a complaint of a police officer alleging that he was illegally removed from the force where the complaint was not filed until 5 months after the accrual of his cause of action. The 60-day limitation for such actions contained in the statute was an effective bar to his right to sue. King v. Mayor, 71 M 309, 230 P 62 (1924).

Removal of Officer — Certiorari: The Examining and Trial Board (now Police Commission) of the Butte police department discharged an officer under the Metropolitan Police Law. The officer contended that the complaint on which he was tried did not state facts sufficient to constitute the offense with which he was charged, or if the complaint was sufficient, that there was no substantial evidence tending to prove the charges. Certiorari was proper to review the action of the Board to determine if it had exceeded its jurisdiction or authority, but since no transcripts of the proceedings are required, the only remedy concerning sufficiency of the evidence is an independent suit in equity. State ex rel. Examining & Trial Bd. v. Jackson, 58 M 90, 190 P 295 (1920).

City Police Officer Making Arrest Outside Territorial Jurisdiction — Probable Cause Required: A city police officer, investigating a phone call reporting a suspected drunk driver, pursued Williamson outside city limits and arrested him, although the officer observed no erratic driving or other indicators of alcohol impairment prior to stopping Williamson's truck. Williamson moved to suppress all the evidence on the basis that the officer did not have probable cause to make the stop, contending that probable cause was necessary because the officer was acting outside his territorial jurisdiction as a city police officer and that the information within the officer's knowledge at the time of the stop did not rise to the level of probable cause. Williamson's motion was denied. Clarifying the difference between the probable cause necessary to effectuate a valid arrest and the particularized suspicion necessary to justify an investigative stop, the Supreme Court noted that although an officer ordinarily needs only a particularized suspicion for a traffic stop, under these circumstances, the officer was outside his jurisdiction when the stop was made and was thus not acting within the scope of his authority as a peace officer. The criminal procedures in 46-5-401 and 46-6-311 were not available to the officer. Rather, as a peace officer acting outside his territorial jurisdiction, his authority was limited to that provided to private citizens under 46-6-502, so probable cause was required. The citizen informant's telephone report was not sufficient to establish probable cause because the relayed report was devoid of information as to why the informant believed that Williamson was intoxicated and the officer did not inquire into the basis of the report before stopping Williamson's truck. The report created, at most, a suspicion that an offense was being committed, but that suspicion alone was insufficient to establish probable cause. Even if the informant had sufficient information to establish probable cause for a citizen's arrest of Williamson, that information was not relayed to the officer, who thus did not possess sufficient information to make the stop. The judgment was reversed because the District Court erred in refusing to suppress the evidence. St. v. Williamson, 1998 MT 199, 290 M 321, 965 P2d 231, 55 St. Rep. 843 (1998), distinguishing St. v. Schoffner, 248 M 260, 811 P2d 548 (1991). Williamson was followed in *St. v. Territorial Jurisdiction Not Controlling on Officer's Right to Make Arrest: Williams argued that Krausz, a Miles City police officer, did not have the authority to arrest him for driving under the influence because he was not stopped in Miles City or within 5 miles of the city limits. The Supreme Court held that Krausz was acting at the request of a highway patrol officer who did have jurisdiction over the incident and that therefore Krausz did have the authority to arrest Williams. St. v. Williams, 273 M 459, 904 P2d 1019, 52 St. Rep. 1085 (1995).

Arrest Outside City Limits by City Police Absent Local Ordinance — Arrest Lawful in Capacity as Private Citizen: The city of Eureka never enacted an ordinance giving city police jurisdiction outside the city limits pursuant to this section, and defendant contended that his arrest for DUI and hit-and-run made 0.8 mile outside Eureka was therefore illegal and that all evidence resulting from the arrest was inadmissible. The Supreme Court found that by enacting this section (authorizing city police arrests within 5 miles of town), 46-6-502 (authorizing arrests by private citizens), and 46-6-411 (authorizing out-of-state officers in close pursuit to make arrests in Montana), it is clear that Montana no longer adheres to the common-law rule strictly prohibiting arrests outside an officer's jurisdiction. A police officer outside his jurisdiction has not lost his characteristics of being a private citizen; therefore, if an arrest by a private citizen would be lawful under the circumstances, the arrest by an officer outside his jurisdiction would be lawful. St. v. McDole, 226 M 169, 734 P2d 683, 44 St. Rep. 561 (1987), followed in St. v. Williamson, 1998 MT 199, 290 M 321, 965 P2d 231, 55 St. Rep. 843 (1998).

Narrow Construction of Disturbing the Peace Ordinance — No Vagueness or Overbreadth: Appellant was convicted of breach of the peace under Whitefish Municipal Ordinance, 9.64.010, which read: "No person within the municipality, or within three miles of the municipal limits, shall willfully and maliciously disturb the peace and quiet of any street, neighborhood, family, or person by loud, tumultuous noise, or by tumultuous or offensive conduct, or by using offensive, loud radio or television sets, or by threatening, quarreling, scolding, hallooing, hollering, challenging to fight, or fighting, or by cursing, swearing, uttering obscene, profane, vulgar, or indecent language in the presence of any person or persons, or by committing any obscene, vulgar, indecent, or lewd act in any public place, or in view of any person or persons". Appellant had been talking louder than normal on a city street at about 2 a.m., and when a police officer told appellant to "hold it down", appellant said "Well, [m.f.], I will holler and yell when and wherever I want if I want to". The Supreme Court construed the ordinance narrowly as applying only to words spoken willfully and maliciously, and that constitute "fighting words" with a direct tendency to violence, and stated that as so construed the ordinance is not unconstitutional for vagueness or overbreadth. Whitefish v. O'Shaughnessy, 216 M 433, 704 P2d 1021, 42 St. Rep. 928 (1985).

Obscene "Fighting Words" Spoken to Police Officer — Disturbing the Peace Conviction Upheld: While on a city street at about 2 a.m. after closing his restaurant and bar, appellant and his friends were engaged in a louder-than-normal conversation. A police officer approached and told appellant to "hold it down". Appellant said, "Well, [m.f.], I will holler and yell when and wherever I want if I want to". The language constituted "fighting words", and by definition a threat of violence or violent response occurred. Appellant was properly convicted of disturbing the peace. Whitefish v. O'Shaughnessy, 216 M 433, 704 P2d 1021, 42 St. Rep. 928 (1985).

Protection of Public Morals: Notwithstanding repeal of the state prohibition laws, a city has the power to prohibit, by ordinance, traffic in intoxicating liquors under its general powers granted it by 7-5-4101 and this section under which it may pass ordinances to prevent acts or conduct calculated to disturb the public peace or which is offensive to public morals. *State ex rel. Authority to Enact Ordinances Regulating Breach of Peace: This section authorizes but does not require that a city or town council adopt ordinances to prevent acts or conduct calculated to disturb the public peace. No Local Authority to Prohibit Minors in Licensed Premises: An incorporated town with general powers does not have the authority to enact an ordinance prohibiting persons under the age of 19 from being on licensed premises where alcoholic beverages are sold and consumed. The local government may not enact an ordinance providing for greater penalties than those found in 45-5-624 for a person under the age of 19 convicted of possession of alcoholic beverages. 41 A.G. Part 21 Rural Fire Districts

Extension of Immunity to All Rural Fire Districts Regardless of Method of Formation: Plaintiffs contended that under 7-33-2208, immunity for rural firefighters extended only to rural fire crews and fire companies established on the initiative of a county government under part 22 of this chapter, but not to crews and companies established in response to a petition by landowners pursuant to this part. The Supreme Court found, after examining the legislative history of 7-33-2208, no logic or reason for granting or withholding immunity to a rural firefighting unit based on the method of its origin and extended immunity to districts established under both part 22 and this part. Allegations of negligent acts and omissions in fire suppression techniques outside the scope of 7-33-2208 did not constitute a genuine issue of material fact sufficient to preclude summary judgment based on immunity. Noting the 1989 amendment to 7-33-2208, the court further impliedly extended immunity to fire companies organized under part 23 and fire service areas organized under part 24. Hyde v. Evergreen Volunteer Rural Fire Dept., 252 M 299, 828 P2d 1377, 49 St. Rep. 259 (1992).

Part Attorney General's Opinions

Rural Fire District Not to Incorporate Under Nonprofit Corporation Act: Although the formation and operation of nonprofit corporations are generally controlled by the Montana 2008 Annotations to the MCA

Nonprofit Corporation Act (Title 35, ch. 2), the particular process relating to the creation and operation of fire districts is specifically mandated by Title 7, ch. 33, part 21. Therefore, a rural fire district may not be established or reestablished and operated under Title 35, ch. 2, in order to avoid personal liability. 43 A.G. Op. 2 (1989).

Rural Firefighters — Not Within Workers' Compensation Coverage: A firefighter in a rural fire district is not an "employee" as defined in 39-71-118 and hence is not within the Workers' Compensation Act. Question of Rural Fire District as Taxing Unit: A rural fire district operated by a board of trustees is a taxing unit within the meaning of 15-10-412 (now repealed); however, a rural fire district operated by the county and not by a board of trustees is not a taxing unit. 42 A.G. Op. 80 (1988).

Three-Year Contract — Call-for-Bid Requirements: Fire districts are not subject to the statutory 3-year contract and call-for-bid requirements. 36 A.G. Op. 73 (1976).

Status of County Fire District Salaried Employees: The county has authority to establish and equip a fire district, to levy taxes to fund the district, to contract for fire protection, or to appoint trustees to manage the district. Full-time salaried employees of the fire district are employees of the county in the absence of an intervening employer, such as a city, town, or private fire service, and not volunteers. As such they are entitled to vacation, sick leave, and group insurance benefits. They are subject to hours of employment as provided by statute for county employees and have tenure rights consistent with tenure rights of other paid fire companies. 35 A.G. Op. 71 (1974).

Response by Fire Service Organizations to Hazardous Materials Incidents: Unless otherwise provided by law, the decision to order a firefighter to respond to or investigate a hazardous materials incident is within the discretion of the supervising entity of each fire service organization. The State Fire Marshal (now the state fire prevention and investigation program of the Department of Justice) does not have specific rulemaking authority to prescribe which fire service organization should respond to such incidents. 42 A.G. Op. 104 (1988).

Trustee-Operated Fire District Liable for Indemnification: Employees of a fire district operated by trustees must be indemnified under the comprehensive state insurance plan and the Tort Claims Act by the fire district rather than by the county in which the fire district is located. 42 A.G. Rural Fire District Created After 1986 Not Subject to Property Tax Limitations: A rural fire district created after 1986 and established as a taxing unit is not subject to the property tax limitations of Title 15, ch. 10, part 4. There is no provision for new taxing units to limit their levies to their first year of existence or to 1986 amounts levied by another taxing unit. 42 A.G. Op. 80 (1988), followed in 42 A.G. Attorney General's Opinions

City Annexation of Rural Fire District — Loan Obligation Not Payable by Tax Incurred Prior to Annexation: A rural fire district has no authority to levy taxes against property that is not within the district boundaries, and recent legislative enactments did not extend the power of a rural fire district to allow taxation to retire nonbonded debts. A reduction in the amount of property subject to tax to retire a loan would not in any way diminish or change the responsibilities of the parties under the loan contract. Therefore, when a city annexes territory that has been part of a rural fire district, the district may not tax the annexed property to finance repayment of a nonbonded loan incurred by the fire district prior to annexation. 46 A.G. Op. 8 (1995).

Proportion of Vehicle-Related Taxes Applicable to Rural Fire Districts: Vehicle-related taxes referred to in subsection (1) of 61-3-509 must be distributed proportionately to rural fire districts on the basis of all mill levies applicable to personal property located within the geographical boundaries of the districts. For distribution entitlement purposes, the residence or assignment address appearing on the certificate of registration determines if a particular vehicle is within a district's boundaries. 43 A.G. Op. 4 (1989).

Application of Property Tax Limitation: If the board of trustees of a rural fire district determines that it must acquire real property and construct a fire hall in order to "adequately operate" the fire district and if it requires funding in addition to that otherwise allowed under 15-10-412 (now repealed), it may proceed to increase revenue under subsection (9) of that section. 42 A.G. Op. 126 (1988).

"Property" to Include Real and Personal Property: The term "property" as used in this section applies to all forms of real and personal property ordinarily subject to ad valorem taxation by counties. 42 A.G. Op. 109 (1988).

Financing Acquisition of Fire Equipment and Facilities: Fire district trustees have authority to enter into loan agreements to finance the acquisition of equipment and facilities needed by the district for fire protection. WHEREAS, the legislature wishes to clarify this situation with the clear understanding that the substance of the law is not changed; and

WHEREAS, Title 7, chapter 33, part 41, requires municipalities to provide fire services under that part; and

Attorney General's Opinions

City Annexation of Rural Fire District — Loan Obligation Not Payable by Tax Incurred Prior to Annexation: A rural fire district has no authority to levy taxes against property that is not within the district boundaries, and recent legislative enactments did not extend the power of a rural fire district to allow taxation to retire nonbonded debts. A reduction in the amount of property subject to tax to retire a loan would not in any way diminish or change the responsibilities of the parties under the loan contract. Therefore, when a city annexes territory that has been part of a rural fire district, the district may not tax the annexed property to finance repayment of a nonbonded loan incurred by the fire district prior to annexation. 46 A.G. Op. 8 (1995).

Provisions Regarding Division of Rural Fire District Inapplicable to Annexation: The annexation of rural fire district territory does not fit within the statutory context of the term "division". Because the statutory procedure for division of a rural fire district is not usually followed in cases of municipal annexation, this section has no application to property that leaves a rural fire district through annexation. 46 A.G. Op. 8 (1995).

Part 22 Rural Fire Protection

Part Case Notes

Extension of Immunity to All Rural Fire Districts Regardless of Method of Formation: Plaintiffs contended that under 7-33-2208, immunity for rural firefighters extended only to rural fire crews and fire companies established on the initiative of a county government under this part, but not to crews and companies established in response to a petition by landowners pursuant to part 21 of this chapter. The Supreme Court found, after examining the legislative history of 7-33-2208, no logic or reason for granting or withholding immunity to a rural firefighting unit based on the method of its origin and extended immunity to districts established under both part 21 and this part. Allegations of negligent acts and omissions in fire suppression techniques outside the scope of 7-33-2208 did not constitute a genuine issue of material fact sufficient to preclude summary judgment based on immunity. Noting the 1989 amendment to 7-33-2208, the court further impliedly extended immunity to fire companies organized under part 23 and fire service areas organized under part 24. Hyde v. Evergreen Volunteer Rural Fire Dept., 252 M 299, 828 P2d 1377, 49 St. Rep. 259 (1992).

Case Notes

Extension of Immunity to All Rural Fire Districts Regardless of Method of Formation: Plaintiffs contended that under this section, immunity for rural firefighters extended only to rural fire crews and fire companies established on the initiative of a county government under part 22 of this chapter, but not to crews and companies established in response to a petition by landowners pursuant to part 21 of this chapter. The Supreme Court found, after examining the legislative history of this section, no logic or reason for granting or withholding immunity to a rural firefighting unit based on the method of its origin and extended immunity to districts established under both part 21 and part 22. Allegations of negligent acts and omissions in fire suppression techniques outside the scope of this section did not constitute a genuine issue of material fact sufficient to preclude summary judgment based on immunity. Noting the 1989 amendment to this section, the court further impliedly extended immunity to fire companies organized under part 23 and fire service areas organized under part 24. (See 1997 amendment.) Hyde v. Evergreen Volunteer Rural Fire Dept., 252 M 299, 828 P2d 1377, 49 St. Rep. 259 (1992).

No Waiver of Immunity by Purchase of Liability Insurance: Following the rationale in Crowell v. School District No. 7, 247 M 38, 805 P2d 522 (1991), plaintiffs contended that a rural fire district waived its grant of immunity to suit to the extent of the coverage of any liability insurance purchased by the district. Noting no pattern of joint legislative consideration of insurance and immunity in the legislative history of this section, the Supreme Court distinguished Crowell in holding that the purchase of liability insurance did not constitute waiver of immunity for a rural fire district. (See 1997 amendment.) Hyde v. Evergreen Volunteer Rural Fire Dept., 252 M 299, 828 P2d 1377, 49 St. Rep. 259 (1992).

WHEREAS, the legislature wishes to clarify this situation with the clear understanding that the substance of the law is not changed; and

WHEREAS, the legislature finds that a local government charter that maintains rural fire services organizations as they were prior to consolidation is a reasonable interpretation of those laws; and

WHEREAS, to provide the desirable ratification of any existing charter interpretation to this effect and to clarify the application of such charters in the future,

THEREFORE, it is the purpose of this act to clarify the law on this point without establishing a presumption that the law is in any way substantively altered.”

Part 24 Fire Service Areas

Part Case Notes

Extension of Immunity to All Rural Fire Districts Regardless of Method of Formation: Plaintiffs contended that under 7-33-2208, immunity for rural firefighters extended only to rural fire crews and fire companies established on the initiative of a county government under part 22 of this chapter, but not to crews and companies established in response to a petition by landowners pursuant to part 21 of this chapter. The Supreme Court found, after examining the legislative history of 7-33-2208, no logic or reason for granting or withholding immunity to a rural firefighting unit based on the method of its origin and extended immunity to districts established under both part 21 and part 22. Allegations of negligent acts and omissions in fire suppression techniques outside the scope of 7-33-2208 did not constitute a genuine issue of material fact sufficient to preclude summary judgment based on immunity. Noting the 1989 amendment to 7-33-2208, the court further impliedly extended immunity to fire companies organized under part 23 and fire service areas organized under this part. Hyde v. Evergreen Volunteer Rural Fire Dept., 252 M 299, 828 P2d 1377, 49 St. Rep. 259 (1992).

Attorney General's Opinions

Dual Trusteeship in Volunteer Fire District and Fire Service Area — Not Conflict of Interest: Trusteeship in a volunteer fire department is not incompatible with simultaneous trusteeship in a fire service area. Volunteer fire departments and fire service areas are separate governmental entities. Neither owes its creation or continued existence to the other, and each lacks any form of supervisory authority with respect to the personnel of the other. There is no indication that dual trusteeship imposes an insurmountable obstacle to the proper discharge of the duties attendant in trusteeship; therefore, concurrent trusteeship of both a volunteer fire department and a fire service area does not constitute a conflict of interest. 43 A.G. Op. 47 (1989).

Attorney General's Opinions

Trustee-Operated Fire Service Area Liable for Indemnification: Employees of a fire service area operated by trustees must be indemnified under the comprehensive state insurance plan and the Tort Claims Act by the fire service area rather than by the county in which the fire service area is located. 42 A.G. Op. 84 (1988), overruling a contrary holding in 35 A.G. Op. 71 (1974).

7-33-2404. Financing of fire service area — fee on structures — fee on undeveloped land.Compiler's Comments

2007 Amendment: Chapter 467 in (1) inserted "and owners of undeveloped land"; in (2)(a) in first sentence near beginning inserted "for structures" and inserted second sentence regarding use of fee for fire prevention and suppression; inserted (2)(b) regarding fees to be charged to owners of undeveloped land; in (3) in first sentence near middle inserted "and undeveloped land"; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective October 1, 2007.

2003 Amendment: Chapter 508 inserted (5) requiring county commissioners or trustees of fire service area to notify annexing municipality to prevent owners from assuming financial responsibility to municipality and fire service area if fire service area reduced or eliminated by annexation of area into city; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective October 1, 2003.

Saving Clause: Section 3, Ch. 508, L. 2003, was a saving clause.

2001 Amendment: Chapter 29 in (4) after "exceed" substituted "1.1% of the total assessed value of taxable property, determined as provided in 15-8-111, within the area, as ascertained by the last assessment for state and county taxes prior to the incurring of the indebtedness" for "18% of the taxable valuation of the area". 1991 Amendment: In (1), near end before "services offered", deleted "fire"; in (4), near end of first sentence in two places before "equipment", deleted "fire"; and made minor changes in style.

1989 Amendment: In (4), after "if the", substituted "fire service area is governed by" for "commissioners have appointed".

Fire Service Area Rates — Powers of County Commission: The County Commission has the sole power to set rate schedules in fire service areas to finance the budget prepared by the fire service area trustees. Further, this power precludes the trustees from requiring that rates be modified by a popular vote of the fire service area residents. 42 A.G. Op. 102 (1988).

Part 41

Municipal Fire Departments

Part Case Notes

Limitation on Self-Governing Powers — Ordinance to Supersede Part: The city of Billings, a self-governing city, adopted an ordinance purporting to supersede all but two sections in Title 7, ch. 33, part 41, relating to municipal fire departments. The firefighters challenged the ordinance. The District Court held that the ordinance was a permissible exercise of a self-government power. On appeal, the Supreme Court held that under the shared sovereignty concept contained in the Montana Constitution, local governments with self-governing powers are limited only by express prohibitions in the constitution, state statute, or the local government charter itself. By statute, a local government may not establish standards or requirements lower or less stringent than those imposed by state law. The court held that because the ordinance did not contain standards governing several areas it purported to supersede, the ordinance provisions were lower or less stringent than the statutory provisions and therefore invalid. A local government must provide any service required by state law. State law requires every city to have a fire department. Pursuant to Art. XI, sec. 5(3), Mont. Const., the only statutory provisions a self-governing charter may control over are those establishing executive, legislative, and administrative structure and organization. The ordinance was invalid. Billings Firefighters Local 521 v. Billings, 214 M 481, 694 P2d 1335, 42 St. Rep. 112 (1985), followed in Billings Firefighters Local 521 v. Billings, 1999 MT 6, 293 M 41, 973 P2d 222, 56 St. Rep. 23 (1999). Billings Firefighters Local 521 II was followed, as to the power of a consolidated local government CEO to fire government employees not being considered a part of the structure and organization of a self-governing local government, in Johnston v. Babb, Cause No. CV-05-03-BU-CSO (D. Mont. 2005), granting partial summary judgment.

State Fire Marshal (now State Fire Prevention and Investigation Program of Department of Justice) — No Conflict With Municipalities: The creation of a State Fire Marshal (now the state fire prevention and investigation program of the Department of Justice) is not unconstitutional as delegating municipal functions to the Marshal. The area of fire protection is one of concurrent jurisdiction between the state and municipalities. There is no objection to a city and the state legislating on the same subject so long as the municipal ordinances do not conflict with the state law. Fire protection is properly exercised under the police power of the state and may be exercised by the state or delegated for local administration to municipalities. State ex rel. Brooks v. Cook, 84 M 478, 276 P 958 (1929).

Fire Department Operated in Proprietary Capacity by City: Before amendment of this section in 1937, it was held that under this section and 7-33-4201, 7-33-4202, and 7-33-4204, a city was empowered but not compelled to maintain a fire department. The city operated its fire department as a proprietary function, except when engaged in extinguishing or going to or from the scene of a fire or testing equipment for such occasions, when it was exercising governmental functions. State ex rel. Kern v. Arnold, 100 M 346, 49 P2d 976, 100 ALR 1071 (1935).

Civil Service: Mandamus lies to reinstate a fireman who has been discharged in violation of the act placing paid fire departments under civil service rules. State ex rel. Driffill v. Anaconda, 41 M 577, 111 P 345 (1910).

Attorney General's Opinions

Merger of Fire Services Between City and County With General Government Powers Not Allowed: A proposed city initiative would have merged a city fire department and a rural county fire district into a new fire protection district with an urban and a rural division. However, both the city and county were local government units with general government powers and had not been consolidated as allowed by law. Under the provisions of the initiative, neither fire department would maintain its own identity; therefore, the proposed merger would abrogate the city fire department as a separate entity and would be an invalid exercise of general government powers. This opinion does not preclude the provision of fire protection services in a cooperative fashion through an interlocal agreement that city voters may, by initiative, require the city governing body to pursue. 43 A.G. Appointment of Thirty-Nine-Year-Old Part-Paid Firefighter to Full-Time Position Not Statutory Violation: Before Link was 34 years old, he was a part-paid firefighter and member of the Firefighters' Unified Retirement System (FURS). At age 39, he applied for a position as full-time firefighter. Despite the recommendation of the fire chief, who was granted authority pursuant to city ordinances and personnel rules to make appointments of part-paid firefighters, Link's appointment was denied by City Council members who feared a violation of 7-33-4107, which states that firefighters may not be more than 34 years of age at the time of original appointment. Link complained in District Court that the city discriminated against him on the basis of age. Relying on the language of this section, the District Court granted summary judgment to the city, reasoning that because the Mayor and City Council did not have input into Link's appointment as a part-paid firefighter, his appointment to that position was not an original appointment under 7-33-4107. The Supreme Court reversed, holding that having delegated its authority to appoint part-paid firefighters, the city was now estopped from denying the validity of that delegation of authority. Noting a Montana Human Rights Commission decision in Elliott v. Helena, Cause No. 8701003108 (1989), that original appointment includes appointment as a part-time volunteer firefighter and that participation in FURS indicates a legislative intent that the maximum age provision apply to part-paid as well as full-time firefighters, the Supreme Court found that the narrow interpretation given to 7-33-4107 by the District Court resulted in the likelihood that the statute would violate age discrimination laws. *Link v. Fire Chief or Assistant Chief as Member of Relief Association: Under 7-33-4106 and 7-33-4122, a chief or assistant chief of a municipal fire department is a confirmed member of the fire department. Section 19-11-102 (renumbered 19-18-102) authorizes the formation of a fire department relief association by the confirmed members of a fire department. Because a chief or an assistant chief is a confirmed member of his fire department, he could be a member of the fire department relief association. 39 A.G. Op. 22 (1981).

Right to Membership in Relief Association: Relator brought a proceeding in mandamus to compel the defendant fire department relief association to accept relator's application for membership in such association. It was shown that relator was carried on the city payroll for a number of years as a mechanic, occasionally performing some of the duties of a fireman, but had never been confirmed as such. Everything showed that the Council had no intent to confirm him. He was over 45 years of age at his original appointment. He failed to show a clear legal right to membership or a legal duty of the association in the premises, hence the writ was properly denied. State ex rel. Russ v. Fire Dept. Relief Ass'n, 114 M 430, 136 P2d 989 (1943).

Affidavit as to Qualifications: Where a discharged fireman seeks reinstatement by mandamus, a statement in his affidavit that he had been duly appointed and confirmed as a member of the fire department and that at all times he had the physical ability to perform his duties as such was a sufficient allegation that he possessed the qualifications of a fireman as defined by this section. Otherwise he would not have been appointed in the first instance. State ex rel. Driffill v. Anaconda, 41 M 577, 111 P 345 (1910).

Attorney General's Opinions

Eligibility of Firefighter Over Thirty-Four Years of Age for Membership in Firefighters' Unified Retirement System: An individual older than 34 years of age when first hired as a firefighter by a firefighters' unified retirement system employer is in compliance with this section if the first appointment as a firefighter, irrespective of place of employment, occurred when the individual was not over 34 years of age. A firefighter over the age of 34 years at the time of original appointment is not eligible for membership in the firefighters' unified retirement system. 44 A.G. Op. 8 (1991).

All-Purpose Mill Levy — Forfeiture of Powers: Municipalities that adopt the all-purpose mill levy authorized in 7-6-4452 (now repealed) forfeit the power to impose levies for any particular purpose not clearly excepted by statute. Case Notes

Extension of Firefighter's Probationary Employment — No Wrongful Discharge Within Probationary Period: Hunter was a probationary firefighter with the city of Great Falls. Hunter's probationary status was extended beyond the initial 6-month period and subjected to monthly review. Based on the review, Hunter was terminated from employment. Hunter filed a grievance for wrongful discharge and sought relief under 42 U.S.C. 1983. The District Court summarily dismissed both claims, and Hunter appealed, contending that the District Court erred in finding that Hunter was not entitled to relief under the Wrongful Discharge From Employment Act or federal law because of the ongoing status as a probationary employee. The Supreme Court affirmed. The Legislature did not set a maximum probationary period for firefighters. Thus, the city was entitled to extend Hunter's status as a probationary employee, and the city met its burden of showing that a probationary period was in effect at the time of Hunter's discharge. As a probationary employee, Hunter was not entitled to relief under state or federal law, and the District Court properly dismissed Hunter's claims. Hunter v. Great Falls, 2002 MT 331, 313 M 231, 61 P3d 764 (2002), distinguishing Whidden v. John S. Nerison, Inc., 1999 MT 110, 294 M 346, 981 P2d 271 (1999), and Hobbs v. Property Interest in Position as Firefighter — Constitutional Right to Hearing Before Termination for Physical Disability: Plaintiff, who was undisputably physically unable to continue working as a firefighter, sued for wrongful discharge when his employment was terminated without a hearing. In reversing the District Court's judgment denying all relief, the Supreme Court held that this section creates a property interest in a position such as that of firefighter once the probationary period is satisfied and, although statutory hearing requirements do not apply to cases of termination for physical disability, plaintiff was entitled to a pretermination hearing under the Due Process Clause of the Montana Constitution. Termination without a hearing was improper and void, and plaintiff was entitled to full pay and benefits from the time of his termination until the final disposition of the case. Welsh v. Great Falls, 212 M 403, 690 P2d 406, 41 St. Rep. 1826 (1984).

Fire Chief or Assistant Chief as Member of Relief Association: Under 7-33-4106 and 7-33-4122, a chief or assistant chief of a municipal fire department is a confirmed member of the fire department. Section 19-11-102 (renumbered 19-18-102) authorizes the formation of a fire department relief association by the confirmed members of a fire department. Because a chief or an assistant chief is a confirmed member of his fire department, he could be a member of the fire department relief association. 39 A.G. Op. 22 (1981).

Case Notes

Conduct Unbecoming a Fire Chief: Evidence that fire chief did not have a driver's license for almost a year, that he was the licensee of a bar, and that he had been convicted twice of selling liquor to minors warranted his discharge for personal conduct unbecoming a fire chief. State ex rel. Burns v. Livingston, 144 M 248, 395 P2d 971 (1964).

Discharge Without Suspension: Where fire chief was on sick leave, it was not necessary for the Mayor to suspend him as a condition precedent to filing formal charges against him or holding a hearing thereon. State ex rel. Burns v. Livingston, 144 M 248, 395 P2d 971 (1964).

Hearing of Charges:

Charges of personal conduct unbecoming a fire chief were not so broad as to preclude the preparation of an effective defense where chief actively participated, took over the examination, was fully aware of the proceedings, and was in no way prejudiced. The removed officer was given an opportunity for explanation, and in attempting to explain, spelled out the behavior or lack of good behavior set forth in this section. State ex rel. Burns v. Livingston, 144 M 248, 395 P2d 971 (1964).

The three charging members of fire and police committee were not disqualified from sitting with City Council to hear charges against fire chief since the Council, under this section, had exclusive jurisdiction to hear the charges. State ex rel. Burns v. Livingston, 144 M 248, 395 P2d 971 (1964).

Amendment effective October 1, 2007.

Style changes were slightly different in the chapters. In each case, the codifier chose appropriate text.

Case Notes

Collective Bargaining Agreement Requirement for Presuspension Hearing Not Inconsistent With Requirements of Statute — Other Terms of Agreement — Grievance Procedure Consistent With Statute: Elsenpeter, a Billings firefighter, was suspended from duty by the Billings fire chief, and the firefighters' union filed an action in District Court, contending that the city had failed to follow the requirements of this section. The city responded that the requirements of the firefighters' union disciplinary procedure contained in its collective bargaining agreement (CBA) with the city were inconsistent with the requirements of this section and that by entering into the CBA, the union effectively waived the requirements of this section. The District Court held that the requirements of the CBA were not inconsistent with this section. The Supreme Court agreed with the District Court, concluding that even though the application of both the CBA and the statute might result in some duplication of procedure, the two were not inconsistent and that under both procedures, the final result would be binding arbitration (see 2007 amendment). Billings Firefighters Local 521 v. Billings, 1999 MT 6, 293 M 41, 973 P2d 222, 56 St. Rep. 23 (1999).

Suspension of Firefighters — All Cities Required to Present Charges to City Council for Hearing — Suspension Procedure Not Part of "Structure" of City Government Under Applicable Definitions — Statute Not Superseded by Charter: Elsenpeter, a Billings firefighter, was suspended from duty by the Billings fire chief. The firefighters' union filed a lawsuit in which the union contended that the suspension procedure used by the city was unlawful because the charges against Elsenpeter were not presented to the Billings City Council for hearing pursuant to this section. The city contended that the suspension procedure that it used is part of the structure and organization of the city under its charter and that, pursuant to Art. XI, sec. 5, Mont. Const., and 7-3-701(2), which allow the structure of a chartered city government to supersede statutory requirements, the city may override the statutory requirements for hearing contained in this section because the definition of "structure" contained in 7-1-4121(24) is the definition that should apply. The Supreme Court held that in as much as the definitions in 7-1-4121 are, by the terms of that section, limited in their application to 7-1-4121 through 7-1-4149, the dictionary definition of "structure" is the definition that applies. Because the dictionary definition of structure was narrower, the Supreme Court held that the disciplinary suspension procedure used by the city was not part of the "structure" of city government. Therefore, the Supreme Court held that the statutory procedure contained in this section, requiring presentment of the charges to the City Council, was not superseded by the city charter and had to be followed for the purposes of the suspension of Elsenpeter. Billings Firefighters Local 521 v. Billings, 1999 MT 6, 293 M 41, 973 P2d 222, 56 St. Rep. 23 (1999). Billings Firefighters Local 521 II was followed, as to the power of a consolidated local government CEO to fire government employees not being considered a part of the structure and organization of a self-governing local government, in Johnston v. Babb, Cause No. CV-05-03-BU-CSO (D. Mont. 2005), granting partial summary judgment.

Mandamus Appropriate Remedy to Require City Commission to Hold Employee Discharge Hearing — Employee Entitled to Reinstatement: Phillips was terminated from his employment as a full-time firefighter for the city of Livingston. Before his termination, the city manager held a termination hearing. Phillips argued that the hearing was held in violation of this section, requiring the hearing to be held before the City Commission. The Supreme Court found that the hearing should have been held by the City Commission. The court also held that mandamus was the proper remedy to require the City Commission to hold the discharge hearing and that because there was a clear statutory duty for the City Commission to hold the hearing, there was no obligation on Phillips' part to exhaust grievance remedies contained in the firefighters' collective bargaining agreement. Finally, the Supreme Court held that because Phillips did not have a plain, adequate, and speedy remedy at law, under subsection (2) of this section, he was entitled to reinstatement and backpay (see 2007 amendment). Phillips v. Livingston, 268 M 156, 885 P2d 528, 51 St. Rep. 1227 (1994).

Statutory Duty of City Council to Hold Termination Hearing Not Superseded by City Policy or Collective Bargaining Agreement: Phillips was terminated from his employment as a full-time firefighter for the city of Livingston. Before his termination, the city manager held a termination hearing. Phillips argued that the hearing was held in violation of this section, requiring the hearing to be held before the City Council. The city responded that the termination procedures followed were provided in the city policy and procedures manual that was included in the firefighters' collective bargaining agreement and that the provisions of that agreement controlled pursuant to 39-31-306(3). The Supreme Court noted that the agreement adopted the city's procedures manual that allowed the manager to hold the hearing but that the agreement also referenced termination action "by the appropriate authority". Because the appropriate authority under this section was the City Council, the Supreme Court held that the agreement and the city's policies did not supersede state statute. Phillips v. Livingston, 268 M 156, 885 P2d 528, 51 St. Rep. 1227 (1994), followed, as to the inability of a city charter to supersede the statutory duty of a City Council to hold a disciplinary hearing, in Billings Firefighters Local 521 v. Billings, 1999 MT 6, 293 M 41, 973 P2d 222, 56 St. Rep. 23 (1999).

Property Interest in Position as Firefighter — Constitutional Right to Hearing Before Termination for Physical Disability: Plaintiff, who was undisputably physically unable to continue working as a firefighter, sued for wrongful discharge when his employment was terminated without a hearing. In reversing the District Court's judgment denying all relief, the Supreme Court held that 7-33-4122 creates a property interest in a position such as that of firefighter once the probationary period is satisfied and, although statutory hearing requirements do not apply to cases of termination for physical disability, plaintiff was entitled to a pretermination hearing under the Due Process Clause of the Montana Constitution. Termination without a hearing was improper and void, and plaintiff was entitled to full pay and benefits from the time of his termination until the final disposition of the case. Welsh v. Great Falls, 212 M 403, 690 P2d 406, 41 St. Rep. 1826 (1984).

The removed officer was given an opportunity for explanation, and in attempting to explain, spelled out the behavior or lack of good behavior set forth in this section. State ex rel. Burns v. Burns v. Livingston, 144 M 248, 395 P2d 971 (1964).

Role of Court in Review: A fireman was suspended for allegedly receiving stolen property. The role of the District Court reviewing the action of the Mayor and City Council under a Writ of Certiorari is to determine whether the charges were supported by the evidence presented, not to determine its preponderance. State ex rel. Wentworth v. Baker, 101 M 226, 53 P2d 440 (1935).

Failure to Follow Procedure: The fire chief of Helena, which had a commission form of government, was removed by the City Council. His name was restored to the roll of members of the department, entitling him to the safeguards afforded to members under the civil service rules of the firemen's statutes. He was later suspended without hearing his appeal. The failure to hear his appeal rendered the suspension ineffective, entitling him to automatic reinstatement and compensation for the period of his suspension (see 2007 amendment). State ex rel. Daly v. Dryburgh, 62 M 36, 203 P 508 (1921).

Removal of Chief — Violation of Duty: The evidence was sufficient to support the removal of a fire chief where it was shown that the department did not respond promptly to fire alarms and that the chief did not know the location of hydrants, was incompetent to direct the fighting of fires, and failed to tear down certain buildings as required by the State Fire Marshal (now the state fire prevention and investigation program of the Department of Justice). State ex rel. Griffiths v. Mayor, 57 M 368, 188 P 367 (1920).

Removal Without Written Charges: If a fireman has been removed without written charges, his action in asking for reinstatement after his discharge did not constitute a waiver of his right to be confronted with written charges, as there can be no waiver of a right that has been lost. State ex rel. Driffill v. Anaconda, 41 M 577, 111 P 345 (1910).

Attorney General's Opinions

Determination of Longevity: Longevity for purposes of determining the minimum wage for a firefighter in a city of the second class under this section begins at the date of confirmation as a member of the fire department. 38 A.G. Op. 4 (1979).

Computation of Salaries: An active firefighter in a first- or second-class city shall be paid for his total years of service with the fire department at a wage not less than the statutory minimum for each year of service with the department. The determination of this salary is based on total years of service. However, the payment for any service over 20 years begins July 1, 1975. 37 A.G. Op. 8 (1977).

Basis for Determining Pensions: The basis used by fire department relief associations in first- and second-class cities in determining pensions of firefighters retiring prior to July 1, 1973, is the regular monthly salary paid confirmed active firefighters as set by the budget of the city each year. 37 A.G. Op. 3 (1977).

Insurance for Volunteer Firefighters — Third-Class Cities: Pursuant to 7-33-4130, only cities of the first and second class are required to provide group insurance to their firefighters if they provide such insurance for other employees. Cities of the third class are not mentioned in the statute and therefore are not required to provide group health and life insurance for volunteer firefighters. 41 A.G. Op. 18 (1985).

All-Purpose Mill Levy — Forfeiture of Powers: Municipalities that adopt the all-purpose mill levy authorized in 7-6-4452 (now repealed) forfeit the power to impose levies for any particular purpose not clearly excepted by statute. Thus, the all-purpose mill levy supplants the taxing authority granted in 7-33-4111, 19-10-301 (renumbered 19-19-301), and 19-11-503 (renumbered 19-18-503) but does not supplant the taxing authority granted in 7-32-4117, 7-33-4130, 19-3-204, 19-9-704 (renumbered 19-9-209), sec. 2, Ch. 324, L. 1975 (not codified), sec. 2, Ch. 359, L. 1975 (not codified), and sec. 3, Ch. 438, L. 1975 (not codified). 38 A.G. CHAPTER 34 MEDICAL SERVICES AND BOARDING HOMES FOR THE AGED

Part 1 Ambulance Services

Part Case Notes

Unpaid Emergency Medical Technician Trainees, Volunteers, and Students Not Considered Employees: The definition of emergency medical services personnel in 50-6-202 does not include an unpaid emergency medical technician (EMT) trainee. Therefore, an unpaid EMT trainee who has not been certified to provide medical services is not considered an employee as defined in 39-71-118 for workers' compensation purposes. Further, because volunteers are generally not considered employees unless designated by law, a volunteer involved in ambulance services is also not considered an employee as defined in 39-71-118 for workers' compensation purposes. Similarly, an unpaid student, such as an unpaid EMT trainee, who is learning skills in a work environment is considered a volunteer and is not considered an employee as defined in 39-71-118 for workers' compensation purposes. The general statement of public policy in Great W. Sugar Co. v. District Court, 188 M 1, 610 P2d 717 (1980), that all forms of employment are subject to the Workers' Compensation Act, does not apply to unpaid EMT trainees and volunteers because those persons are not considered employees. *Dyess v. Lease of Hospital Facility to Nonprofit Corporation — Indebtedness Incurred by Corporation for Running Facility: A hospital district possesses the power to lease a hospital facility to a nonprofit corporation, and that arrangement creates a valid lessor-lessee relationship. Absent a controlling provision to the contrary in the lease, the corporation would have a right, as an entity independent from the district, to incur indebtedness by borrowing from a commercial lender institution for the purpose of running the hospital. 43 A.G. Op. 71 (1990).

No Authority for Hospital District to Borrow Money by Use of Promissory Note: Section 7-34-2131 is the only provision in the law governing hospital districts that prescribes a method by which districts are authorized to borrow money, namely through the issuance of bonds. Therefore, 7-34-2131 and this section may not be construed as a grant of authority to a hospital district to borrow money by use of a promissory note. (See Ch. 349, L. 1991, amendment.) 43 A.G. 2001 Amendments — Composite Section: Chapter 29 in (1)(b) after "exceed" substituted "1.4% of the total assessed value of taxable property, determined as provided in 15-8-111, within the district" for "22.5% of the taxable value of the property therein"; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective July 1, 2001.

Chapter 574 in (2)(b) and (2)(d) deleted reference to 7-34-2134; at beginning of (3) substituted "This section may not be construed to amend or repeal" for "Nothing herein shall be construed to preclude"; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective July 1, 2001.

Style changes were slightly different in the chapters. In each case, the codifier chose appropriate text.

Saving Clause: Section 33, Ch. 29, L. 2001, was a saving clause.

Applicability: Section 35, Ch. 29, L. 2001, provided: "(1) [This act] applies to the authorization and issuance of bonds occurring on or after July 1, 2001.

(2) Debt limits established under [this act] do not apply to bonds authorized before July 1, 2001, regardless of when the bonds are issued."

1991 Amendment: Inserted (2) concerning borrowing of money by hospital districts through the issuance of notes; and made minor changes in style.

1987 Amendment: Near end of (3), after "bonds of", deleted "second- or third-class".

1981 Amendment: Substituted "may not exceed 22.5% of the taxable value of the property" for "shall not exceed 5% of taxable property" in (2).

Validation: Section 64, Ch. 614, L. 1981, provided: "Notwithstanding any provisions of this act, any outstanding indebtedness or bond issue on January 1, 1982, of any governmental subdivision is not invalidated because of any changes in the taxable valuation of the subdivision due to removal of automobiles and trucks having a rated capacity of three-quarters of a ton or less from the tax base."

Effect of 1981 Amendment: The primary purpose of Ch. 614, L. 1981, was to replace the system of taxation of automobiles and light trucks with a fee system. With the adoption of the fee system, automobiles and light trucks are no longer taxable property. The resulting loss of taxable valuation has a direct effect on the amount of indebtedness a political subdivision can incur. Thus it was necessary in Ch. 614 to increase the percentage of taxable valuation used as a limitation on indebtedness to offset the loss of taxable valuation attributable to automobiles and light trucks.

No County Authority to Provide Housing to Low-Income Elderly: A county with general government powers does not have the authority under Art. XI, sec. 4, Mont. Const., or 7-8-2102 to construct or maintain an apartment complex for elderly low-income citizens that does not otherwise constitute a boarding or nursing home under this section and that does not constitute a public building under 7-8-2102. Instead, a county or municipal housing authority should be created under Title 7, ch. 15, parts 21 or 44, to provide such housing. 42 A.G. Op. 20 (1987).

Lease of Hospital Facilities and Contract for Services for Indigent Aged: A county that has leased hospital facilities to a lessee may lease space in the facilities from the lessee and contract with the lessee to provide services for the indigent aged who cannot be accommodated in the county nursing home. 37 A.G. County's Inherent Power to Prevent Destruction of Its Property: If a county-operated nursing home and a district hospital will close as a result of the failure of the county to construct a doctors' facility, the county has the inherent power to construct the facility using federal revenue sharing funds and payments in lieu of taxes to preserve its property. 37 A.G. Attorney General's Opinions

Source of Depletion Allowance Reserve Fund — Not Subject to Budgeting: This section permits poor fund money to be used to fund a depletion allowance reserve fund only to the extent that the money represents actual money received in excess of expenses incurred from or for the care of indigent patients in the county facility. Because depletion allowance reserve fund money is not derived from tax revenues and the sources and uses of the fund are limited statutorily, the transfer of money to a depletion allowance reserve fund is not subject to the requirements of 7-6-2326 (now repealed). 40 A.G. Case Notes

Bonds for Health Care Facility Not Subject to Voter Approval: When Toole County proposed to borrow $1.7 million to construct a county hospital and nursing home, plaintiff sued, alleging that the county could not borrow money without first submitting the bond proposal to the voters for approval. Affirming the District Court decision, the Supreme Court ruled that the indebtedness for the repayment of bonds for the proposed health care facility is not indebtedness of the county for which an election is required under 7-7-2402. County Debt Limitations Determined by Legislature: The Montana Legislature may constitutionally authorize County Commissioners to issue, by resolution, revenue bonds in excess of $40,000 without an election. The Commissioners of a county having a population of less than 10,000 have authority to levy, without an election, 3 mills in addition to its present funding in the event the bonds issued under 7-34-2411 become delinquent or cannot be paid from ordinary revenues of the facility. Case Notes

Exhaustion of Administrative Remedies Doctrine Not Applicable if Constitutional Violation Alleged: Since declaratory judgment petitioner argued that the state requirement that firefighters working for it at an airport and protecting civilian and military aircraft be members of the Montana Air National Guard was unconstitutional, the doctrine requiring exhaustion of administrative remedies before seeking a declaratory judgment did not apply. McKamey v. St., 268 M 137, 885 P2d 515, 51 St. Rep. 1218 (1994).

Possibility of Being Fired as Controversy With Employer: The state required firefighters working for it at an airport and protecting civilian and military aircraft to be members of the Montana Air National Guard. Since another firefighter was terminated because of noncompliance with this requirement, after retiring from the National Guard, petitioner firefighter's employment would be threatened if he resigned or retired from the National Guard. In addition, the existence of a case or controversy was amply demonstrated by multiple lawsuits concerning the pay and employment status of the firefighters. Therefore, the declaratory judgment requirement of a threatened injury and a case or controversy was met. It was proper to refuse to dismiss the petition for a judgment declaring the National Guard membership requirement unconstitutional. It was not necessary for petitioner to have already suffered an injury. McKamey v. St., 268 M 137, 885 P2d 515, 51 St. Rep. 1218 (1994).

Requiring National Guard Membership of State Firefighters Protecting National Guard Aircraft: The state's requirement that its firefighters protecting civilian and National Guard aircraft belong to the National Guard did not meet the rational basis test and was an unconstitutional violation of equal protection. Other states do not have the requirement, the federal National Guard Bureau does not recommend it, the state fire chief said that there is no rational basis for it, and the state offered no persuasive argument for it. The state's argument that firefighters need security clearances and thus have to be in the National Guard was without merit because a security clearance can be given to nonmilitary personnel. McKamey v. St., 268 M 137, 885 P2d 515, 51 St. Rep. 1218 (1994). See also Peters v. St., 285 M 345, 948 P2d 250 (1997).

Retaliatory Employment Requirement — Not Relevant to Requirement's Constitutionality: The date on which the state began to require that its firefighters protecting civilian and National Guard aircraft be members of the National Guard was not a material issue of fact precluding a summary judgment that the requirement was unconstitutional. The date was relevant to the petitioner firefighter's claim that the requirement was in retaliation for a firefighters' wage and hours suit against the state, but whether the requirement was in retaliation for the suit was not relevant to the issue of whether the requirement was constitutional. McKamey v. St., 268 M 137, 885 P2d 515, 51 St. Rep. 1218 (1994).

Right to Declaratory Judgment on Discretionary Military Policy Threatening Public Sector Harm: The general rule of no subject matter court jurisdiction over a discretionary military policy (in this case, a state government military policy) did not apply to a state requirement that its firefighters protecting civilian and National Guard aircraft belong to the Montana Air National Guard. Loss of the job for failure to belong was a threatened injury resulting from military intrusion into the civilian sector by the state. The state did not show that the requirement was related to military employment. Therefore, the rule could not be used to dismiss a firefighter's petition for declaratory judgment. McKamey v. St., 268 M 137, 885 P2d 515, 51 St. Rep. 1218 (1994).

State Job Requirement — Many Years' Worth of Witnesses' Records With State and Others Not Relevant: In an action for judgment declaring that the state requirement that firefighters working for it at an airport and protecting civilian and military aircraft be members of the Montana Air National Guard was unconstitutional, the state asked three firefighter witnesses for the petitioner to produce 20 years' worth of any correspondence with the state, 25 years' worth of any correspondence with the National Guard, numerous types of records of the firefighters' union, and the last 4 years' worth of records of the union's payments to its law firm. The request was overbroad, none of the material may have been relevant to the proceeding, and it was proper to grant the petitioner's motion to quash and for a protective order. McKamey v. St., 268 M 137, 885 P2d 515, 51 St. Rep. 1218 (1994).

Unsuccessful Defense to State's Requirement That Firefighters at Airport Belong to National Guard — Costs and Attorney Fees Denied: Because the state's defense to a firefighter's petition for judgment declaring it unconstitutional for the state to require Air National Guard membership of its firefighters protecting National Guard aircraft was not frivolous or in bad faith, it was not an abuse of discretion to refuse costs and attorney fees to the prevailing firefighter. McKamey v. St., 268 M 137, 885 P2d 515, 51 St. Rep. 1218 (1994).

Case Notes

Liability of State to Suit — Active Duty U.S. Army Worker Injured While Assigned to National Guard — Tort Claim Not Barred: While in full-time service to the U.S. Army, Trankel was assigned to a Montana Army National Guard unit rebuilding armored vehicles and was injured

by toxic chemicals during the rebuilding project. Trankel sued the state, asserting violations of the Occupational Health Act of Montana, the Montana Safety Act, and the Employee and Community Hazardous Chemical Information Act. The state contended that Feres v. U.S., 340 US 135, 95 L Ed 152, 71 S Ct 153 (1950), and Evans v. Mont. Nat'l Guard, 223 M 482, 726 P2d 1160 (1986), barred a claim that was incident to military service regardless of the substantive law upon which the claim was based, the status of the plaintiff at the time of injury, or the status of the party against whom the claim was made and that the alleged violations of the state Acts did not provide a private cause of action and could be enforced only through the administrative remedies provided for in the Acts. The District Court agreed with the state and dismissed Trankel's complaint with prejudice. On appeal, the Supreme Court distinguished Feres and related federal cases because they were based on federal rather than state tort claims, with little bearing on rights under state law and the Montana Constitution. The Supreme Court overruled the holding in Evans that the National Guard was not a political subdivision subject to suit, finding instead that the National Guard and the Department of Military Affairs were clearly governmental entities within the meaning of 2-9-101 and that the constitutional premise on which Evans was based did not apply. Consistent with other applications of Art. II, sec. 16, Mont. Const., any statute or court decision that deprives an employee of the right to full legal redress, as defined by general Montana tort law against third parties, is absolutely prohibited. Because Trankel was not employed by the Montana Army National Guard or the Department of Military Affairs at the time of injury, Trankel's claim against the state pursuant to the tort claims statutes was not barred. Further, applying the rationale in Pollard v. Todd, 148 M 171, 418 P2d 869 (1966), the Supreme Court held that the statutory state Acts did not give rise to causes of action independent from a claim of negligence subject only to the administrative remedies contained in the Acts, but rather established duties, the violation of which is negligence per se. Trankel v. St., 282 M 348, 938 P2d 614, 54 St. Rep. 380 (1997), distinguishing Feres v. U.S., 340 US 135, 95 L Ed 152, 71 S Ct 153 (1950), U.S. v. Johnson, 481 US 681, 95 L Ed 2d 648, 107 S Ct 2063 (1987), and Stauber v. Cline, 837 F2d 395 (9th Cir. 1988); following Webb v. Mont. Masonry Constr. Co., 233 M 198, 761 P2d 343 (1988), Meech v. Hillhaven W., Inc., 238 M 21, 776 P2d 488 (1989), and Francetich v. St. Comp. Mut. Ins. Fund, 252 M 215, 827 P2d 1279 (1992); and overruling Evans v. Mont. Nat'l Guard, 223 M 482, 726 P2d 1160 (1986). Trankel was followed in Lake v. St., 282 M 484, 938 P2d 698, 54 St. Rep. 442 (1997), and Oberson v. Federated Mut. Ins. Co., 2005 MT 329, 330 M 1, 126 P3d 459 (2005).

Liability of State to Suit — Active Duty U.S. Army Worker Injured While Assigned to National Guard — Tort Claim Not Barred: While in full-time service to the U.S. Army, Trankel was assigned to a Montana Army National Guard unit rebuilding armored vehicles and was injured by toxic chemicals during the rebuilding project. Trankel sued the state, asserting violations of the Occupational Health Act of Montana, the Montana Safety Act, and the Employee and Community Hazardous Chemical Information Act. The state contended that Feres v. U.S., 340 US 135, 95 L Ed 152, 71 S Ct 153 (1950), and Evans v. Mont. Nat'l Guard, 223 M 482, 726 P2d 1160 (1986), barred a claim that was incident to military service regardless of the substantive law upon which the claim was based, the status of the plaintiff at the time of injury, or the status of the party against whom the claim was made and that the alleged violations of the state Acts did not provide a private cause of action and could be enforced only through the administrative remedies provided for in the Acts. The District Court agreed with the state and dismissed Trankel's complaint with prejudice. On appeal, the Supreme Court distinguished Feres and related federal cases because they were based on federal rather than state tort claims, with little bearing on rights under state law and the Montana Constitution. The Supreme Court overruled the holding in Evans that the National Guard was not a political subdivision subject to suit, finding instead that the National Guard and the Department of Military Affairs were clearly governmental entities within the meaning of 2-9-101 and that the constitutional premise on which Evans was based did not apply. Consistent with other applications of Art. II, sec. 16, Mont. Const., any statute or court decision that deprives an employee of the right to full legal redress, as defined by general Montana tort law against third parties, is absolutely prohibited. Because Trankel was not employed by the Montana Army National Guard or the Department of Military Affairs at the time of injury, Trankel's claim against the state pursuant to the tort claims statutes was not barred. Further, applying the rationale in Pollard v. Todd, 148 M 171, 418 P2d 869 (1966), the Supreme Court held that the statutory state Acts did not give rise to causes of action independent from a claim of negligence subject only to the administrative remedies contained in the Acts, but rather established duties, the violation of which is negligence per se. Trankel v. St., 282 M 348, 938 P2d 614, 54 St. Rep. 380 (1997), distinguishing Feres v. U.S., 340 US 135, 95 L Ed 152, 71 S Ct 153 (1950), U.S. v. Johnson, 481 US 681, 95 L Ed 2d 648, 107 S Ct 2063 (1987), and Stauber v. Cline, 837 F2d 395 (9th Cir. 1988); following Webb v. Mont. Masonry Constr. Co., 233 M 198, 761 P2d 343 (1988), Meech v. Hillhaven W., Inc., 238 M 21, 776 P2d 488

(1989), and Francetich v. St. Comp. Mut. Ins. Fund, 252 M 215, 827 P2d 1279 (1992); and overruling Evans v. Mont. Nat'l Guard, 223 M 482, 726 P2d 1160 (1986). Trankel was followed in Lake v. St., 282 M 484, 938 P2d 698, 54 St. Rep. 442 (1997), and Oberson v. Federated Mut. Ins. Co., 2005 MT 329, 330 M 1, 126 P3d 459 (2005).

Nature of National Guard Service — State Court Jurisdiction: Members of the National Guard serve a dual responsibility, both to the State of Montana and to the United States of America. While Guard units consist of members enlisted in the United States Army, they are also a Montana military unit consisting of Montana citizens. The District Court improperly dismissed a suit brought by members of the Montana Army National Guard on grounds that the court did not have jurisdiction, absent proof that the members were on federal active duty as opposed to state active duty. The case was remanded for further findings. Grove v. Mont. Army Nat'l Guard, 264 M 498, 872 P2d 791, 51 St. Rep. 366 (1994), distinguishing Evans v. Mont. Nat'l Guard, 223 M 482, 726 P2d 1160 (1986).

National Guardsman Injured on Weekend Drill, Not During State of Emergency — No Remedy: A National Guardsman alleged that 10-1-504 (repealed 1983) provided a remedy for an injury he received while on routine weekend drill since the section allowed the same benefits to a member of the organized militia "who is wounded, disabled, or dies while on duty in the service of this state" that would have been received if the member had been in federal service. The Supreme Court held that within the context of Title 10, ch. 1, part 5, the words "in the service of this state" clearly referred to active duty during times of state emergency declared by the Governor pursuant to Art. VI, sec. 13, Mont. Const. Since the Guard was not called to emergency service in this case, summary judgment against the guardsman was proper. Evans v. Mont. Nat'l Guard, 223 M 483, 726 P2d 1160, 43 St. Rep. 1930 (1986), distinguished in Grove v. Mont. Army Nat'l Guard, 264 M 498, 872 P2d 791, 51 St. Rep. 366 (1994). Evans was overruled in Trankel v. St., 282 M 348, 938 P2d 614, 54 St. Rep. 380 (1997).

Military Pension Vested Property Subject to Distribution in Property Division: The military pension of a party to a divorce resembles an ordinary private pension, and just as a private pension, it should be treated as a vested property right that can be distributed as a part of a court's property division. A military pension is distinguishable from a pension under the Railroad Retirement Act, which is subject to limitations on its distribution. Further, the heirs of the former spouse of the divorced party receiving the pension could inherit the spouse's share freely. In re Marriage of Miller, 187 M 286, 609 P2d 1185, 37 St. Rep. 556 (1980), vacated 453 US 918 (1981).

The person designated by the director of the department of military affairs shall adopt rules that determine the amount of the bonus that will be paid upon completion of a year of service. The amount shall be based on the appropriation. The rules shall provide a method of meshing the need to have an incentive in advance of the reenlistment or extension and the fact that such incentive is dependent on an amount of money which is dependent on a future appropriation. DECISIONS UNDER FORMER PREFERENCE LAW

Repeal of Veterans' Preference: Retroactive repeal of the absolute veterans' preference, 10-2-201 through 10-2-206, revoked a government gratuity. The repealer did not provide for sovereign immunity from accrued causes of action without a two-thirds vote of the members of each house as required by Art. II, sec. 18, Mont. Const. As previously decided in Nick v. Dept. of Highways, 219 M 168, 711 P2d 795, 42 St. Rep. 1926 (1985), the Legislature could repeal the veterans' preference by a majority vote at any time. Femling v. Mont. St. Univ., 220 M 133, 713 P2d 996, 43 St. Rep. 235 (1986).

Repeal of Veterans' Preference — Due Process: Plaintiff applied for a position with the Montana University System, claiming entitlement to the then statutory veterans' preference in employment. He was not interviewed for the job; a nonveteran was hired. Plaintiff petitioned the District Court for an order to show cause why he should not have been employed. Before a hearing was held, the veterans' preference was repealed. Plaintiff's cause of action did not become a vested property right upon the filing of his complaint. The filing of a claim to what was a government gratuity does not change that gratuity into a vested right. Repeal of the preference gratuity did not violate the Due Process Clause of the state or federal constitution. Femling v. Mont. St. Univ., 220 M 133, 713 P2d 996, 43 St. Rep. 235 (1986).

Veterans' Preference Claim Based on Gratuity — No Express Reservation Through Stipulation: Plaintiff Jensen filed an amended petition to enforce employment preference that contained three counts. Thereafter, the parties filed a stipulated set of facts and agreement that the court would hear only Count I. The stipulation reserved all claims and defenses arising from Counts II and III. The District Court ruled on Count I, finding Jensen had been denied his veterans' preference, and the ruling was then appealed to the Supreme Court. While the appeal was pending, the Legislature met in special session and enacted a new Veterans' and Handicapped Persons' Employment Preference Act that retroactively repealed the old Veterans' Preference Act under which Jensen had filed his amended petition. The state then filed a motion to dismiss Counts II and III, and the motion was granted by the District Court. On appeal, Jensen questioned whether Count II, which has been expressly reserved by the stipulation, survived the Legislature's retroactive repealer. He argued that the stipulation created an obligation on behalf of the state to reserve the claim for an indefinite period and regardless of legislative action. The Supreme Court held that the stipulation must be viewed as an agreement to reserve a claim based not on a vested right but on a gratuity that the Legislature was empowered to repeal at any time, and that the stipulation reserved only what existed at the time it was entered into. Jensen v. St. 221 M 42, 718 P2d 1335, 43 St. Rep. 621 (1986).

Appointment of Manager From Internal Applicants — Preference Applied: The former veterans' preference law (10-2-201 through 10-2-206, repealed in 1983) gave veterans a preference in "appointment and employment". The Department of Labor issued a vacancy announcement for the position of manager of the Great Falls Job Service Office, viewed the filling of the position as an internal promotion, took only internal applications, and did not consider the former veterans' preference law then in effect, because the Department viewed that law as applying only to initial hirings. To give the former law any effect, the hiring of the Job Service Manager must be construed as employment, and the law covered the hiring. Therefore, a Department employee who was a veteran and who had applied for and did not receive the position was wrongly denied the position in favor of a nonveteran. Jensen v. St., 213 M 84, 689 P2d 1231, 41 St. Rep. 1971 (1984).

Court Order to Hire Bypassed Veteran — Improper Remedy: Although under the former veterans' preference law (10-2-201 through 10-2-206, repealed in 1983) the lower court had authority to order an appointing authority to comply with the law, the court did not have authority to order an appointing authority to grant to a veteran a job it had improperly denied him and granted to a nonveteran. The judiciary does not have and cannot be granted the executive power of appointment. The lower court was directed to order the employer to reopen the position to the original applicants, grant preference to the petitioner-veteran in this case and the other preferred applicants, and otherwise fill the position in accordance with Crabtree. Jensen v. St., 213 M 84, 689 P2d 1231, 41 St. Rep. 1971 (1984).

Crabtree Retroactively Applied: On June 16, 1982, the Department of Labor hired Waltermire to fill a position. Another Department employee filed a petition on June 21, 1983, claiming he was a veteran while Waltermire was not, and therefore he should have been hired instead. On June 16, 1983, the Supreme Court issued its Crabtree decision holding that the then current veterans' preference law (10-2-201 through 10-2-206, repealed in 1983) granted an absolute preference that existed from its enactment in 1921 through its 1983 repeal. That decision applies retroactively to Jensen's claim, and the potential impact upon one person, Waltermire, who may lose his job, was insufficient to rule that Crabtree did not apply retroactively. Jensen v. St., 213 M 84, 689 P2d 1231, 41 St. Rep. 1971 (1984).

Absolute Preference Required for Minimally Qualified Veterans — No Conflict With Other Laws: Where the plaintiff, who had been blind from birth, brought an action against the defendant state library for failing to hire her under 10-2-203 (repealed in 1983) over other more qualified applicants, the District Court did not err in holding that 10-2-203 (repealed in 1983) required an absolute preference for minimally qualified veterans and disabled civilians over other more qualified persons. Neither the language of the statute nor its history contains any qualifications limiting it to a relative preference over only those equally qualified. Nor does the statute conflict with the duties of governmental agencies to offer employment in a nondiscriminatory manner on the basis of merit. The statute is in the nature of an affirmative action program that agencies must implement and maintain in any event and simply requires the preference of veterans and disabled persons of any sex or race. Crabtree v. Mont. St. Library, 204 M 398, 665 P2d 231, 40 St. Rep. 963 (1983).

Remedy for Failure to Recognize Preference — Order to Redefine and Readvertise Position Upheld: Where the plaintiff had been denied employment for a library staff position and sued to enforce the preference required by 10-2-203 (repealed in 1983), the District Court did not err in ordering the library to redefine and readvertise the position. The court found that the minimum requirements set out in the library's Notice of Position Open bore little correlation to the rating scale used in the selection process. Because the minimal qualifications were never clearly determined or clearly stated, they could not have been used in evaluating the plaintiff's application. It was therefore only fair that all applicants be given an opportunity to reapply. Crabtree v. Mont. St. Library, 204 M 398, 665 P2d 231, 40 St. Rep. 963 (1983).

Constitutionality: The 1943 amendment insofar as it attempted to confer authority upon the Court to make an appointment and insofar as it undertook to confer judicial power without notice and hearing was declared unconstitutional and void. State ex rel. O'Sullivan v. District Court, 119 M 189, 172 P2d 816 (1946); Application of O'Sullivan, 117 M 295, 158 P2d 306, 161 ALR 487 (1945).

City Attorney: Veterans' preference law applies to office of City Attorney. Application of O'Sullivan, 117 M 295, 158 P2d 306 (1945).

Veteran Appointee to Possess Requisite Qualifications: This act merely provides that veterans be preferred, and though a veteran's application must be transmitted to the Police Commission by the Mayor when a vacancy exists unless he is convinced the veteran is not qualified, he may not be coerced by Writ of Mandate after his investigation reveals that the veteran is not qualified physically due to a back injury. The duty to appoint carries with it the duty to determine the requisite qualifications. Horvath v. Mayor, 112 M 266, 116 P2d 874 (1941), explained in State ex rel. O'Sullivan v. District Court, 119 M 189, 172 P2d 816 (1946).

Veteran to Qualify Physically: Although veteran's application must be transmitted to Police Commission by Mayor when a vacancy exists, he may not be coerced by Writ of Mandate to forward application after his investigation reveals veteran is not qualified physically due to a back injury. Court will not substitute its discretion for that of Mayor unless it is shown Mayor abused his discretion by making his decision unfairly or in bad faith. Horvath v. Mayor, 112 M 266, 116 P2d 874 (1941).

No Duty Where No Vacancy Exists: Mandamus was improper to compel the Mayor of a city to transmit the application of an honorably discharged World War veteran for the position of patrolman on the police force to the city Police Commission, since neither under 10-2-211 (repealed in 2005; formerly section 77-601, R.C.M. 1947), nor under 7-32-4108 (formerly section 11-1803, R.C.M. 1947 (part)), relating generally to appointments to the force, was the Mayor required to transmit such applications when no vacancy on the police force existed. State ex rel. Montgomery v. Mayor, 112 M 275, 114 P2d 1046 (1941).

DECISIONS UNDER FORMER LAW

Appointee Entitled to Continue in Office During Term of Incumbent: Relator's claim that 124 write-in votes cast for him at general election held on November 3, 1942, entitled him to office of Attorney General was without merit because appointee was entitled to continue in office during term of incumbent where incumbent was elected to serve from January 1, 1940, until December 31, 1944. Entry by incumbent into military service did not create a vacancy in office requiring an election for office of Attorney General as purpose of this title is to make provision for full functioning of office without an election during absence of regular incumbent while in military service, and so that his right to office will be preserved and that he may resume it upon his return. State ex rel. Niewoehner v. Bottomly, 116 M 96, 148 P2d 545 (1944), following Gullickson v. Mitchell, 113 M 359, 126 P2d 1106 (1942).

Purpose: Legislative intent was not to establish a new class of officers for the state from top to bottom under the title of "acting officers" appointed under 10-2-227 (now repealed) but merely to provide for the naming of officers to replace elected officers for a period not to exceed unexpired term of those replaced. Gullickson v. Mitchell, 113 M 359, 126 P2d 1106 (1942).

Induction to Result in Leave of Absence: When regularly elected incumbent Attorney General was ordered to report for active military service before expiration of his term, his temporary relinquishment of office did not result in a permanent vacancy but in a leave of absence or suspension from duty. Gullickson v. Mitchell, 113 M 359, 126 P2d 1106 (1942).

Constitutionality: Although 10-2-221, 10-2-225, and 10-2-227 (all now repealed) may not lawfully apply to certain officers such as judicial officers absenting themselves from the State of Montana more than 60 consecutive days owing to the provisions of Art. VIII, sec. 37, 1889 Mont.

Attorney General's Opinions

Town Employee Not Entitled to Military Leave With Pay: An employee of a town is not entitled to a leave of absence with pay while attending regular encampments, training cruises, or similar training programs of the organized militia or of the military forces of the United States. (See 1991 amendment.) 42 A.G. Op. 26 (1987).

No Differentiation Between Persons Serving Out Mandatory Military Requirements or Continuing Service Under a Contract of Service: This section requires that state, city, or county employees be allowed leave of absence with pay for annual military training sessions, regardless of whether the employee has fulfilled all mandatory military service and reserve obligations and has extended his service by a contract of reenlistment or continuation of service. The leave taken may not be charged against annual vacation time. 36 A.G. Op. 22 (1975).

Public School Teacher Entitled to Regular Pay When Called on Active National Guard Duty: This section entitles a public school teacher to regular pay for a period not exceeding 15 working days during the school term when he is called on active duty for training with the Montana National Guard. 36 A.G. Op. 35 (1975).

DECISIONS UNDER FORMER LAW

Purpose: Legislative intent was not to establish a new class of officers for the state from top to bottom under the title of "acting officers" appointed under 10-2-227 (now repealed) but merely to provide for the naming of officers to replace elected officers for a period not to exceed unexpired term of those replaced. Gullickson v. Mitchell, 113 M 359, 126 P2d 1106 (1942).

Sections Not to Apply to Elected Members of Legislature: Sections 10-2-221 and 10-2-227 (both now repealed) were inapplicable to legislative officers and therefore did not warrant appointment of an "acting" Senator to serve during absence of elected one while serving in country's armed forces. State ex rel. Grant v. Eaton, 114 M 199, 133 P2d 588 (1942).

Induction to Result in Leave of Absence: When regularly elected incumbent Attorney General was ordered to report for active military service before expiration of his term, his temporary relinquishment of office under 10-2-201 and 10-2-227 (now repealed) did not result in a permanent vacancy but in a leave of absence or suspension from duty. Gullickson v. Mitchell, 113 M 359, 126 P2d 1106 (1942).

Attorney General's Opinions

OPINIONS UNDER FORMER LAW

Absence of Public Service Commissioner From State on Military Duty — Vacancy in Office Not Created — No Additional Compensation:

When asked to clarify his opinion in 43 A.G. Op. 32 (1989), the Attorney General looked to the nature of service and the source of payment as affecting the right of a state officer to receive additional compensation, noting that a National Guard member engaged in federal service and thus compensated by the federal government is subject to the duties and may receive the benefits of federal law, while a member engaged in purely state-oriented service and thus compensated by the state is subject to state regulation. Therefore, Art. VI, sec. 5, Mont. Const., prohibits an elected member of the Executive Branch from accepting compensation from the state for service in the Montana Army National Guard, beginning with the first instance of dual compensation. Further, a public officer has a duty to repay unauthorized compensation and the state, through the State Auditor, has a corresponding right to compel repayment of the unauthorized compensation. 43 A.G. Op. 43 (1989).

Absence from the state attributable to active military duty does not result in a vacancy in the office of Public Service Commissioner. However, an elected member of the Public Service Commission may not receive additional compensation for simultaneous service in the Montana Army National Guard. 43 A.G. Op. 32 (1989).

Amendment effective January 1, 2004.

Preamble: The preamble attached to Ch. 491, L. 2003, provided: "WHEREAS, the 57th Legislature requested a study of veterans' issues, and the State Administration and Veterans'

Affairs Interim Committee conducted numerous hearings, received expert testimony, and examined research during a 14-month period; and

WHEREAS, the Interim Committee found that, using 2000 data, Montana's population of nearly 107,000 veterans and an estimated 170,000 family members of veterans not only ranks Montana second in the nation in the number of veterans per capita (11.9%) but also means that veterans and their family members constitute more than 25% of Montana's total population; and

WHEREAS, the Interim Committee found that more than 80,000 Montana veterans are combat-era veterans (more than 36,000 are Vietnam-era, more than 16,000 are Persian Gulf-era, more than 16,000 are World War II-era, and about 14,000 are Korean-era veterans) and that the largest group of veterans is now between 50 and 65 years of age; and

WHEREAS, the U.S. Department of Veterans Affairs estimates that more than 50% of combat theater veterans suffer from clinically serious and disabling posttraumatic stress disorder, that twice as many veterans as nonveterans experience homelessness, that many veterans have overlapping and complex needs encompassing medical and nursing home care, mental health and chemical dependency counseling, housing, transportation, education and training, job services, and family support services, and that the children and families of veterans who do not get the help that they need are themselves at risk; and

WHEREAS, these complex needs and a maze of federal, state, local, public, and private services demand a high level of interagency coordination and cooperation for effective service delivery to ensure that veterans and their families do not fall through the cracks and to avoid unnecessary cost-shifting from federal to state and local public assistance programs; and

WHEREAS, the Interim Committee found that current statutory language establishing the Board of Veterans' Affairs as the lead agency for veterans' affairs dates back to 1919 and that although the Board's duties and responsibilities have consistently evolved, statutory language has not kept pace; and

WHEREAS, the Board hires and supervises its own classified employees, who make up the Montana Veterans' Affairs Division, but the Board does not have rulemaking authority to implement programs; and

WHEREAS, the Board is administratively attached to the Department of Military Affairs, which has greatly assisted veterans and supported the Board but has no statutory authority over veterans' affairs; and

WHEREAS, a legislative performance audit requested by the Interim Committee revealed that although the Montana Veterans' Affairs Division is to be commended for doing a great job with limited resources and limited statutory guidance, it also revealed that new management tools and updated information management systems are needed to provide more consistency and to track and manage staff workload; and

WHEREAS, the U.S. Department of Veterans Affairs spent about $175 million in Montana during fiscal year 2000, which ranked Montana 37th nationwide in per capita expenditures by the U.S. Department of Veterans Affairs on veterans; and

WHEREAS, the Interim Committee found that a statutory restructuring of powers, duties, and responsibilities for state veterans' affairs programs is essential, not only to address inadvertent statutory shortfalls and elevate the profile of state veterans' affairs, but also to better integrate benefit claims with human services programs so that eligible veterans and family members receive the federal compensation, benefits, and care that they have earned in self-sacrificing service in the armed forces of the United States of America."

WHEREAS, the Interim Committee found that a statutory restructuring of powers, duties, and responsibilities for state veterans' affairs programs is essential, not only to address inadvertent statutory shortfalls and elevate the profile of state veterans' affairs, but also to better integrate benefit claims with human services programs so that eligible veterans and family members receive the federal compensation, benefits, and care that they have earned in self-sacrificing service in the armed forces of the United States of America."

Preamble: The preamble attached to Ch. 491, L. 2003, provided: "WHEREAS, the 57th Legislature requested a study of veterans' issues, and the State Administration and Veterans' Affairs Interim Committee conducted numerous hearings, received expert testimony, and examined research during a 14-month period; and

WHEREAS, the Interim Committee found that, using 2000 data, Montana's population of nearly 107,000 veterans and an estimated 170,000 family members of veterans not only ranks

Montana second in the nation in the number of veterans per capita (11.9%) but also means that veterans and their family members constitute more than 25% of Montana's total population; and

WHEREAS, the Interim Committee found that more than 80,000 Montana veterans are combat-era veterans (more than 36,000 are Vietnam-era, more than 16,000 are Persian Gulf-era, more than 16,000 are World War II-era, and about 14,000 are Korean-era veterans) and that the largest group of veterans is now between 50 and 65 years of age; and

WHEREAS, the U.S. Department of Veterans Affairs estimates that more than 50% of combat theater veterans suffer from clinically serious and disabling posttraumatic stress disorder, that twice as many veterans as nonveterans experience homelessness, that many veterans have overlapping and complex needs encompassing medical and nursing home care, mental health and chemical dependency counseling, housing, transportation, education and training, job services, and family support services, and that the children and families of veterans who do not get the help that they need are themselves at risk; and

WHEREAS, these complex needs and a maze of federal, state, local, public, and private services demand a high level of interagency coordination and cooperation for effective service delivery to ensure that veterans and their families do not fall through the cracks and to avoid unnecessary cost-shifting from federal to state and local public assistance programs; and

WHEREAS, the Interim Committee found that current statutory language establishing the Board of Veterans' Affairs as the lead agency for veterans' affairs dates back to 1919 and that although the Board's duties and responsibilities have consistently evolved, statutory language has not kept pace; and

WHEREAS, the Board hires and supervises its own classified employees, who make up the Montana Veterans' Affairs Division, but the Board does not have rulemaking authority to implement programs; and

WHEREAS, the Board is administratively attached to the Department of Military Affairs, which has greatly assisted veterans and supported the Board but has no statutory authority over veterans' affairs; and

WHEREAS, a legislative performance audit requested by the Interim Committee revealed that although the Montana Veterans' Affairs Division is to be commended for doing a great job with limited resources and limited statutory guidance, it also revealed that new management tools and updated information management systems are needed to provide more consistency and to track and manage staff workload; and

WHEREAS, the U.S. Department of Veterans Affairs spent about $175 million in Montana during fiscal year 2000, which ranked Montana 37th nationwide in per capita expenditures by the U.S. Department of Veterans Affairs on veterans; and

Section 5. Site visitations and hearings required. The board of veterans' affairs shall determine the three proposals with the highest numeric scores. The board shall eliminate the other proposals from further consideration. As soon as possible after elimination of the other sites, the board shall conduct onsite reviews of the remaining candidate sites by both conducting an onsite tour of each of the candidate sites and holding a public hearing on the subject of the cemetery in the community where each proposed site is located. The purpose of the tour and hearing is to receive information concerning the extent to which each candidate site satisfies the criteria provided in [section 2]. The hearings must be conducted under procedures determined by the board, and the board shall give notice of each hearing by advertisement in a newspaper of general circulation in the county of each candidate site.

Section 6. Site selection. (1) After completing the onsite reviews required by [section 5], the board shall again score each of the candidate sites by applying the criteria and scoring method provided in [section 4].

(2) If two or more proposals receive the same total score, the board shall determine the leading proposal by scoring those proposals on the following criteria for the community in which the cemetery would be located:

(a) the extent to which land is donated to the state for an eastern Montana veterans' cemetery; and

(b) the proximity to the veterans' affairs division field offices and department of military affairs support facilities.

(3) The cemetery must be located at the proposed site that receives the highest numeric score using the procedure provided in this section. Upon selection of the winning proposal by the board, the board shall inform the governor of its selection. The board shall submit its selection to the governor no later than 250 days after [the effective date of this section]. The governor shall review the selection process to ensure that the board has not made an error in process or in fact. If the governor determines that an error has been made, the governor shall remand the recommendation to the board for further evaluation. The governor shall make a public announcement of the board's selection upon determining that no errors have been made." Sections 2 through 6 effective March 20, 1997, and terminate June 30, 1999.

Grasshopper Spraying Program — MEPA Exception: While an emergency situation is a legitimate exception to the requirements of the Montana Environmental Policy Act (MEPA), the Montana Department of Agriculture should in the future, comply with MEPA before participating in a grasshopper spraying program if the need for such a program is reasonably foreseeable. 42 A.G. Agency Not Required to Provide Free Dispatch Services: Title 10, ch. 4, part 1, provides the requirements of an emergency telephone system when set up by a public or private safety agency and includes provisions enabling agencies with common boundaries to make agreements that would provide emergency service. However, nothing in the law requires an agency to provide free dispatch service to another entity that shares a common boundary. Cut Bank v. Glacier County, 270 M 355, 891 P2d 1174, 52 St. Rep. 228 (1995).

Emergency Telephone System Account — Usage

10-4-301. Establishment of emergency telecommunications accounts.

2007 Amendment: Chapter 304 inserted (1)(c) concerning account for fees collected for wireless enhanced 9-1-1 services and allocation of account; in (5) inserted reference to 10-4-313; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective July 1, 2007.

2001 Amendment: Chapter 41 inserted (3) providing for retention of interest earnings in emergency telephone service accounts; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective March 14, 2001.

Preamble: The preamble attached to Ch. 41, L. 2001, provided: "WHEREAS, the Legislature finds public safety to be of paramount importance; and

WHEREAS, emergency telephone systems are a critical component of facilities and services use by private and public agencies in providing public safety services to Montana citizens; and

WHEREAS, the 49th Legislature enacted legislation providing for emergency telephone systems, and this legislation was amended in subsequent sessions to address changing technology; and

WHEREAS, the Legislature intends that all money collected under section 10-4-201, MCA, be used only for providing emergency telephone system services; and

WHEREAS, sound business practices suggest that 9-1-1 funds be invested until a city or county has sufficient revenue to purchase equipment and other necessary items; and

WHEREAS, sections 10-4-303 and 10-4-312, MCA, require that a city or county use income from investments of 9-1-1 funds only for providing emergency telephone services; and

WHEREAS, sections 10-4-302 and 10-4-311, MCA, require that the state withhold the transfer of 9-1-1 funds to a city or county until a plan is approved; and

WHEREAS, city and county governments have built their emergency public safety answering point budgets on the good faith expectation that interest on investments held in trust by the state until a plan was approved would continue to be distributed to city and county governments; and

WHEREAS, the 55th Legislature, in passing House Bill No. 2, House Bill No. 166, and House Bill No. 210, intended to fund 9-1-1 administrative costs from both the basic and enhanced 9-1-1 accounts using a general fund appropriation pursuant to House Bill No. 2, which was intended to correspond to amounts transferred to the general fund pursuant to House Bill No. 166, in the amount of 3.74% of the total fees imposed for telephone exchange access services; and

WHEREAS, the 56th Legislature, in passing House Bill No. 69, further clarified its intent that general fund appropriations corresponding to transfers of 9-1-1 collections to the general fund were to be the sole funding source of administrative costs."

Retroactive Applicability: Section 3, Ch. 41, L. 2001, provided: "[This act] applies retroactively, within the meaning of 1-2-109, to:

(1) January 1, 1987, for all fees collected and interest earned from the investment of the money collected for basic 9-1-1 services under 10-4-201; and

(2) July 1, 1997, for all fees collected and interest earned from the investment of the money collected for enhanced 9-1-1 services under 10-4-201."

1999 Amendment: Chapter 389 in (2) in second sentence decreased amount from 7.48% to 3.74%; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective July 1, 1999.

1997 Amendments — Composite Section: Chapter 42 in fourth sentence, after “statutorily appropriated”, inserted “as provided in 17-7-502”. Amendment effective March 12, 1997.

Chapter 422 inserted second sentence relating to deposit in the state general fund; in third sentence, at beginning before “money”, inserted “remaining”; at end of fifth sentence inserted “as provided in 17-7-502, to the department of administration”; in last sentence substituted “appropriations made for that purpose” for “temporary appropriations, as described in 17-7-501(1) or (2), made for that purpose”; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective July 1, 1997. The Code Commissioner did not codify the amendment in the third sentence because of placement of the second sentence in subsection (2).

Chapter 448 in (1) substituted “There are established” for “A 9-1-1 emergency telecommunications account is established”; inserted (1)(a) and (1)(b) establishing accounts for basic and enhanced 9-1-1 services; at end of first sentence of (2) substituted “in the appropriate account” for “in the account”; in (3) substituted “balance of the respective accounts” for “balance of the account”; in (4) substituted “distribution of funds in the 9-1-1 emergency telecommunications accounts described in subsection (1)” for “distribution of the 9-1-1 emergency telecommunications account” and inserted reference to 10-4-311; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective July 1, 1997.

In preparing the composite of this section, the Code Commissioner has moved the sentence relating to the general fund to subsection (2) for purposes of logical arrangement.

Coordination Instruction: Section 67, Ch. 422, L. 1997, provided: “If [this act] is passed and approved in a form de-earmarking a percentage of the 9-1-1 emergency telecommunications tax to the general fund and if House Bill No. 210 is passed and approved increasing the 9-1-1 emergency telecommunication tax to 55 cents, then the percentage de-earmarked to the general fund in [this act] is 3.76%.” House Bill No. 210 was enacted as Ch. 448, L. 1997. Section 10-4-201 was amended by Ch. 448, but because the telecommunication tax was increased to only 50 cents, the 7.48% allocation to the state general fund enacted by sec. 5, Ch. 422, remains unchanged.

Applicability: Section 17, Ch. 448, L. 1997, provided: “(1) Except as provided in subsections (2) and (3), [this act] applies on July 1, 1997.

(2) [Sections 7, 18, and this section] [10-4-125, effective date section, and this section] apply on passage and approval [approved April 30, 1997].

(3) [Section 14] [10-4-311] applies to calendar quarters beginning on or after October 1, 1997.”

1989 Amendment: Near middle, after “the balance of the account”, deleted “is statutorily appropriated as provided in 17-7-502 to the department to” and inserted “must”; and inserted fourth and fifth sentences stating that the distribution of the account is statutorily appropriated and that expenditures for plan administration must be from temporary appropriations, as described in 17-7-501(1) or (2). Amendment effective July 1, 1989.

GENERAL PROVISIONS

Chapter Compiler's Comments

Preamble: The preamble attached to Ch. 414, L. 2003, provided: "WHEREAS, the U.S. Supreme Court in Bush v. Gore, 531 U.S. 98 (2000), found that the lack of uniform procedures for determining voter intent in Florida during the 2000 presidential election led to a violation of the U.S. Constitution's Equal Protection Clause of the 14th Amendment; and

WHEREAS, at the request of the 57th Legislature, the State Administration and Veterans' Affairs Interim Committee devoted much of the 2001-2002 interim to a review of Montana election laws with respect to voting systems and counting processes in light of Bush v. Gore; and

WHEREAS, the interim study found that Montana's statutory provisions relating to ballots, voting systems, and vote counting processes needed to be updated, clarified, and in some instances revised to better define uniform standards and procedures to provide equal protection for votes cast by Montana voters; and

WHEREAS, the Subcommittee on Voting Systems of the State Administration and Veterans' Affairs Interim Committee agreed that statutory changes should be made with an eye on future technology but should also standardize current practices to the greatest extent possible.

THEREFORE, this legislation will enable the Secretary of State to adopt a statewide benchmark performance measure that voting systems must meet before they can be approved for use in the state; allow local election administrators to continue to choose which of the approved voting systems should be used locally; require the Secretary of State to adopt uniform statewide rules regarding ballot form, votes and vote counts, and other operational procedures specific to each voting system and to provide training to local election administrators; and require all counting boards to use the uniform counting procedures specified."

Compiler's Comments

2007 Amendments — Composite Section: Chapter 273 in definition of ballot substituted "counted manually or a paper ballot counted by a machine" for "used with a paper-based system" and deleted former (b) that read: "(b) a nonpaper ballot, such as a ballot used with a nonpaper-based system, such as a lever machine, a direct recording electronic machine, or other technology"; in definition of voting system near end after "paper" deleted "or nonpaper"; and made minor changes in style. Case Notes

Vacancy: The word vacancy as applied to a public office has no technical meaning, and it is not to be taken in a strict technical sense in every case. It may be said that an office is vacant when it is empty and without an incumbent who has a right to exercise its functions and take its fees or emoluments even though the vacancy is not a corporal one. "An office without an incumbent is vacant." LaBorde v. McGrath, 116 M 283, 149 P2d 913 (1944).

General Election: Under section 23-101, R.C.M. 1947 (now repealed), a general election was one held for the election of officers throughout the state. State ex rel. Rowe v. Kehoe, 49 M 582, 144 P 162 (1914).

Special Election: Under section 23-101, R.C.M. 1947 (now repealed), a special election was one held to supply a vacancy in a public office or to submit to the electors a proposition to raise money for any public improvement. State ex rel. Rowe v. Kehoe, 49 M 582, 144 P 162 (1914).

Attorney General's Opinions

County Commissioners — Term of Office When Appointed: When there was no primary or general election of county officials in 1976, a County Commissioner appointed to office in 1975 to serve until the next general election was to hold office until the 1977 election. 36 A.G. Op. 66 (1976).

Holidays — State General Election Day: State primary election days, including the day of the primary election for choosing delegates to the constitutional convention, are not state holidays. State general election days, including the day of the general election for choosing delegates to the constitutional convention, are state holidays. 34 A.G. Op. 20 (1971).

13-1-102. Elections by secret ballot.

Case Notes

Evidence: Under former law, when it appeared in an election contest that a voter's ballot had been endorsed by the judges of election, as required by law, it was necessary to show that it could not thereby be identified, in order to let in, as secondary evidence, testimony as to how he voted. Lane v. Bailey, 29 M 548, 75 P 191 (1904).

2003 Amendment: Chapter 414 before "votes" inserted "valid". Amendment effective October 1, 2003.

Case Notes

Voting for Deceased Candidate: The casting of a ballot at an election of public officers is an affirmative, not a negative, act. It is an act done with intention of voting for someone. Hence, if it is the purpose of voters to defeat a certain candidate, that purpose can be accomplished only by voting for some person in opposition to him, and not by voting for a person who died some weeks before election with the expectation that the vote cast for him would be counted as opposed to the person sought to be defeated. One who has died is no longer a person for whom, under Art. IX, sec. 2, 1889 Mont. Const. (now Art. IV, sec. 2, 1972 Mont. Const.), a voter may cast his ballot. State ex rel. Wolff v. Geurkink, 111 M 417, 109 P2d 1094 (1941).

2003 Amendment: Chapter 475 in (1)(a) at beginning inserted exception clause and near middle after "general election" deleted "unless an earlier date is provided in a law authorizing a special election on an initiative or referendum pursuant to Article III, section 6"; inserted (1)(b) providing that a special election may be held on an initiative or referendum; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective January 1, 2004.

1999 Amendment: Chapter 514 in (3) substituted "first Tuesday after the first Monday of May" for "first Tuesday of April"; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective July 1, 1999.

Effective Date — Applicability: Section 11(1), Ch. 514, L. 1999, provided that this section is effective July 1, 1999, and applies to school fiscal years beginning on or after July 1, 2000.

1987 Amendment: Chapter 216 in (3), after "subdivision", inserted "other than a municipality"; and inserted (4) setting general election date for municipalities required to hold annual elections.

Contingent 1987 Amendment: Chapter 644 in (3) substituted "regular school election day" for "school election day, the first Tuesday of April of each year".

Section 14(1), Ch. 644, L. 1987, provided that the amendment to this section was effective on passage and approval of legislation or adoption of party rules establishing the fourth Tuesday of March as the presidential primary election date or caucus date in any two of the states of Idaho, Washington, or Oregon prior to August 1, 1987. Contingency did not occur.

Applicability: Section 4, Ch. 216, L. 1987, provided: "Sections 2 and 3 apply to municipal elections held after the effective date of this act." Effective March 25, 1987.

1983 Amendment: In (1), after "November" inserted language relating to elections on ballot issues through "pursuant to Article III, section 6, and".

1981 Amendment: Inserted "and not required to hold annual elections" in (2); substituted "on school election day, the first Tuesday of April of each year, and is subject to the election procedures provided for in 13-1-401" for "with the general election provided for in subsections (1) and (2). If a primary election is necessary, it shall be held at the same time as the primary provided for the regular general election for that year" in (3).

Attorney General's Opinions

Submission of Constitutional Initiative at Statewide Primary Election Allowable: Citing numerous cases affirming the rationale that a primary election cannot be distinguished from any other regular or general election prescribed by law and distinguishing a primary election from a special election, which is an election called for a special purpose and not one fixed by law to occur at regular intervals, the Attorney General held that a constitutional amendment proposed by initiative pursuant to this section may be submitted to the voters at a regular statewide primary election. 44 A.G. Op. 20 (1991). See also 19 A.G. Op. 412 (1942).

When Judicial Appointee to Run for Election: An individual appointed by the Governor to the office of District Judge need not run in the general election in the year in which Senate confirmation takes place if, at the time of confirmation, the filing date for judicial candidates has passed. 41 A.G. Op. 52 (1986).

Time for Election of Newly Created District Court Judgeships: Subsection (1) of this section sets forth the schedule for general elections to be held in even-numbered years and lists those offices for which such an election is to be held, including the office of District Court Judge. Subsection (2) of this section provides the schedule for holding general elections in odd-numbered years, and its list of officers to be elected does not include District Court Judges but does include "any other officers specified by law for election in odd-numbered years". Chapter 293, L. 1983, increased the number of judgeships in several judicial districts and provided that the new judgeships could be initially filled at either the 1983 or 1984 general election. The provision of Ch. 293, L. 1983, allowing election of judges in an odd-numbered year is not in conflict with this section because, while subsection (1) would appear to require elections in even-numbered years, Ch. 293, L. 1983, contains specific authority for District Court Judges to be elected in odd-numbered years and thus the clause of subsection (2) "any other officers specified by law for election in odd-numbered years" is applicable. Further, 13-1-107(2), which sets forth the time for holding a primary election in an odd-numbered year, is the law applicable to any odd-numbered year primary election held under Ch. 293, L. 1983. 40 A.G. Op. 13 (1983).

Water or Sewer District Officers: Officers of water or sewer districts whose terms were due to expire in 1980 are entitled to remain in office until their successors are properly qualified following the election to be held in November 1981. 38 A.G. Op. 74 (1980).

Conservation District Officers: Officers of conservation districts shall be elected at the general election held in November of even-numbered years. 38 A.G. Op. 74 (1980).

Hospital, Fire, Irrigation, or Drainage District Officers: Officers of hospital, fire, irrigation, or drainage districts whose terms were due to expire in the spring of 1980 are entitled to remain in office until their successors are properly qualified following an election held in November 1980. 38 A.G. Op. 74 (1980).

Local Government Charter Requirements for General Election: The positions on the Anaconda-Deer Lodge Commission are subject to election at the primary and general elections to be held in 1978 and 1980 even though the charter creating the positions was implemented by the community in April 1977. 37 A.G. Op. 124 (1978).

County Commissioners — Term of Office When Appointed: When there was no primary or general election of county officials in 1976, a County Commissioner appointed to office in 1975 to serve until the next general election was to hold office until the 1977 election. 36 A.G. Op. 66 (1976).

Holidays — State General Election Day: State primary election days, including the day of the primary election for choosing delegates to the constitutional convention, are not state holidays. State general election days, including the day of the general election for choosing delegates to the constitutional convention, are state holidays. 34 A.G. Op. 20 (1971).

Attorney General's Opinions

Time for Election of Newly Created District Court Judgeships: Subsection (1) of 13-1-104 sets forth the schedule for general elections to be held in even-numbered years and lists those offices for which such an election is to be held, including the office of District Court Judge. Subsection (2) of 13-1-104 provides the schedule for holding general elections in odd-numbered years, and its list of officers to be elected does not include District Court Judges but does include "any other officers specified by law for election in odd-numbered years". Chapter 293, L. 1983, increased the number of judgeships in several judicial districts and provided that the new judgeships could be initially filled at either the 1983 or 1984 general election. The provision of Ch. 293, L. 1983, allowing election of judges in an odd-numbered year is not in conflict with 13-1-104 because, while subsection (1) would appear to require elections in even-numbered years, Ch. 293, L. 1983, contains specific authority for District Court Judges to be elected in odd-numbered years and thus the clause of subsection (2) "any other officers specified by law for election in odd-numbered years" is applicable. Further, subsection (2) of this section, which sets forth the time for holding a primary election in an odd-numbered year, is the law applicable to any odd-numbered year primary election held under Ch. 293, L. 1983. 40 A.G. Op. 13 (1983).

Filling Vacant Office: When the office of County Commissioner has become vacant with no opportunity to nominate candidates in the primary election, the selection of candidates for the general election will be made by each political party according to 13-10-327; and, pursuant to 13-12-208 (now repealed), write-in candidates may also seek the office. The appointee to fill the immediate vacancy will hold that office until the next general election. 37 A.G. Op. 147 (1978).

Case Notes

Part of Section Unconstitutional — Voting Rights of Montana Residents of Yellowstone Park Upheld: The Supreme Court specifically adopted the substance of a District Court summary judgment in declaring subsection (1)(c) of this section unconstitutional insofar as it acts to deny residents of the Montana portion of Yellowstone park from voting in state and local elections. Olson v. Dept. of Revenue, 223 M 464, 726 P2d 1162, 43 St. Rep. 1916 (1986).

Incarcerated Felons Excluded From Suffrage: The provisions of Montana's Constitution excluding incarcerated felons from suffrage are constitutionally permissible under the Equal Protection Clause, both in the federal and state constitutional versions. Further, 13-1-111, defining the qualifications of electors, also passes constitutional muster. Emery v. St., 177 M 73, 580 P2d 445 (1978).

Effect of Federal Conviction for Offense Not a Felony Under State Law: A Montana voter cannot be denied the right to vote because of conviction of an offense in Federal Court that would not be a felony by Montana statutory definition. Melton v. Oleson, 165 M 424, 530 P2d 466 (1974), overruling State ex rel. Anderson v. Fousek, 91 M 448, 8 P2d 791 (1932).

Residency Requirements:

Durational residency requirements of 3 months in county and 1 year in state as conditions precedent to voting violate the Equal Protection Clause of the 14th amendment. The unreasonableness of the classification was established by the fact that the registration books in Tennessee were not closed until 30 days before the election, and this was ample time to complete whatever administrative tasks were necessary to ensure the purity of the ballot box. Dunn v. Blumstein, 405 US 330 (1971), distinguished in Marston v. Lewis, 410 US 679 (1973).

As it did in the Voting Rights Act Amendments of 1970, 42 U.S.C. §1973aa-1, Congress can prohibit states from disqualifying voters in elections for presidential and vice-presidential electors because they have not met state residency requirements, and can set residency requirements and provide for absentee balloting in presidential and vice-presidential elections. Oregon v. Mitchell, 400 US 112 (1970).

Racial Discrimination Prohibited: Congress is empowered, as it did in the Voting Rights Act Amendments of 1970, 42 U.S.C. §1973aa-1, to prohibit use of literacy tests or other devices used to discriminate against voters on account of their race in all state and national elections. Oregon v. Mitchell, 400 US 112 (1970).

Attorney General's Opinions

School Trustee Nominations: An elector nominating a candidate for a school trustee position under 20-3-305(2) must be registered to vote at the time the nominating petition is filed. 43 A.G. Op. 24 (1989).

Voter Registration — Proof of Residence Not Required: A County Clerk and Recorder may not request proof of residence of those intending to register to vote. 42 A.G. Op. 67 (1988).

Voter Qualifications — Irrigation District Election: In order to vote in an irrigation district election under Title 85, ch. 7, part 17, an individual must be: (1) a landowner in the irrigation district; (2) a citizen of the United States; (3) 18 years of age or older; and (4) a resident of Montana and the county in which he offers to vote for at least 30 days. 42 A.G. Op. 47 (1987).

City Employees — Eligibility to Hold City Office: Under the state's constitution, any qualified elector is eligible to hold any public office, subject to additional qualifications as provided by the Legislature. A municipality may not enact an ordinance that prohibits city employees from holding office on the City Council. 41 A.G. Op. 81 (1986).

Servicepersons — Registration to Vote — Tax Liability: The fact that a member of the military service has registered to vote in Montana is evidence, though not conclusive proof, that he is a Montana resident and is thus not exempt, under the federal Soldiers' and Sailors' Civil Relief Act of 1940, from property and income taxation by Montana. Montana's election law requires one to be a resident of Montana before voting in the state's elections, so a serviceperson who has registered to vote in Montana (thereby claiming to be a resident) may not claim tax exemption under the federal Act without offering convincing evidence that he is in fact not a Montana resident after all. However, to claim he is not in fact a resident after having registered to vote in Montana would subject him to prosecution for the misdemeanor of fraudulent registration. 41 A.G. Op. 2 (1985).

Residency — Elector Requirement as Qualification for County Office: A practicing attorney who has declared his intention to make a county his permanent home, is actively seeking a permanent residence in that county, and is in the process of terminating his personal business affairs at his former residence has become a resident of the county and is eligible for appointment as a full-time County Attorney once he has resided in the county for 30 days if he becomes a qualified registered elector and meets other qualifications for the office. 38 A.G. Op. 22 (1979).

Prisoner Voting Rights: No person may vote in the state of Montana while serving a sentence in a penal institution resulting from conviction of a felony. 37 A.G. Op. 125 (1978).

Electors — Qualifications: Durational residence requirements for elector qualification contained in Art. IX, sec. 2, 1889 Mont. Const., and this section, prior to 1973 amendment, are unconstitutional. 34 A.G. Op. 40 (1972).

Case Notes

Interpretation of Residency in City Ordinance: A Virginia City ordinance defined a resident as a person who resided within the town for at least 30 days prior to an election. Plaintiffs sought invalidation of a mail ballot election on the grounds that not all voters had resided within the city in the month prior to the election. The Supreme Court applied this section in holding that plaintiffs' interpretation would be burdensome and would effectively disenfranchise many voters in a town that was largely composed of seasonal residents. The court determined that a sounder interpretation was that the individual must reside within the city for a minimum of 30 days to establish residency. Given the fact that no evidence was offered that any elector had voted elsewhere or did not intend to return to Virginia City and in light of plaintiffs' failure to timely challenge any elector's right to vote or the registration of any elector, plaintiffs' challenge of residency was properly disallowed. Drummond v. Virginia City, 253 M 428, 833 P2d 1067, 49 St. Rep. 510 (1992).

Residence of Prisoner: A felon convicted and imprisoned in Montana who is not a resident of this state at the time of conviction does not gain residency for voting purposes during his jail term, and a Montana resident will not lose his voting residence because of incarceration. Emery v. St., 177 M 73, 580 P2d 445 (1978).

Inapplicable to Licensing of Automobiles: Section prescribing the conditions determining the right to vote with respect to residence of the voter had no bearing upon the situs of one's property (an automobile) or the ownership thereof for purpose of taxation or licensing. Valley County v. Thomas, 109 M 345, 97 P2d 345 (1939).

Acts and Intent of Voter: The residence of a voter is to be determined from his acts and intent; but this fact, like any other fact involved in a civil action or proceeding, may be established by circumstantial evidence, and any declarations of the voter touching the subject, if a part of the res gestae, or any declarations in disparagement of his right to vote, if made at or before the election, may be received in evidence. Sommers v. Gould, 53 M 538, 165 P 599 (1917).

Presumption: Predecessor to subsection (7) was held to be in reality a rule of evidence. Carwile v. Jones, 38 M 590, 101 P 153 (1909).

Attorney General's Opinions

Voter Qualifications — Irrigation District Election: In order to vote in an irrigation district election under Title 85, ch. 7, part 17, an individual must be: (1) a landowner in the irrigation district; (2) a citizen of the United States; (3) 18 years of age or older; and (4) a resident of Montana and the county in which he offers to vote for at least 30 days. 42 A.G. Op. 47 (1987).

Servicepersons — Registration to Vote — Tax Liability: The fact that a member of the military service has registered to vote in Montana is evidence, though not conclusive proof, that he is a Montana resident and is thus not exempt, under the federal Soldiers' and Sailors' Civil Relief Act of 1940, from property and income taxation by Montana. Montana's election law requires one to be a resident of Montana before voting in the state's elections, so a serviceperson who has registered to vote in Montana (thereby claiming to be a resident) may not claim tax exemption under the federal Act without offering convincing evidence that he is in fact not a Montana resident after all. However, to claim he is not in fact a resident after having registered to vote in Montana would subject him to prosecution for the misdemeanor of fraudulent registration. 41 A.G. Op. 2 (1985).

Facts Sufficient to Establish Residency for Purposes of Qualification for County Office: A practicing attorney who has declared his intention to make a county his permanent home, is actively seeking a permanent residence in that county, and is in the process of terminating his personal business affairs at his former residence has become a resident of the county and is eligible for appointment as a full-time County Attorney once he has resided in the county for 30 days if he becomes a qualified registered elector and meets other qualifications for the office. 38 A.G. Op. 22 (1979).

Residency as Grounds for Challenge — Standing: An elector in a school election may be challenged on election day by any registered elector of the district and may be disqualified from voting by the election judges if he is not a resident of the school district in which the election is held. 35 A.G. Op. 56 (1974).

Residence of Minors and Others for Voting Purposes: Emancipated minors and persons 19 years of age or over may register to vote in the community in which they live if they intend to make that community their residence. Mere presence at a college or university is not sufficient to establish residence in a community but must be coupled with an actual intent to make that community one's residence. A person who is attending an institution of learning may retain his original residence for voting purposes if he intends that place to be his residence. Unemancipated minors are residents of the place where their parents reside and may register to vote in that place if they will be 18 years of age at the time of the election. 34 A.G. Op. 13 (1971).

Statement of Intent: The statement of intent that accompanied SB 65 (Ch. 571, L. 1979) provided in part: "In subsection (1)(a) of section 12, the authority given to issue written directions and instructions is intended to give legal standing to the type of directives and instructions the secretary of state has issued in the past in regard to elections and is not intended to significantly increase the number of directives and instructions. The main purpose of a directive or instruction should be to assist election administrators in their duties and assure uniform procedures are used in all counties whenever possible."

In subsection (1)(c) of section 12, the secretary of state is authorized to issue advisory opinions. It is the intent of the Legislature that advisory opinions should be made primarily for administrative problems that do not apply to all counties in the state or to problems that do not regularly occur. An opinion should be issued only when the person requesting the opinion and the secretary of state believe the problem is administrative in nature and does not require a legal opinion from a county attorney or the attorney general."

Registration Procedures

Part Attorney General's Opinions

Forms to Be Available: Election administrators cannot place arbitrary limits on the availability of voter registration forms either to individuals or political interest groups such as political parties, labor unions, or political action committees. Any restrictions on the availability of forms for voter registration by mail violate the provisions of 13-2-203 (now repealed). 38 A.G. Op. 107 (1980).

Case Notes

Durational Residency Requirements: Durational residency requirements of 3 months in county and 1 year in state as conditions precedent to voting violate the Equal Protection Clause of the 14th amendment. The unreasonableness of the classification was established by the fact that the registration books in Tennessee were not closed until 30 days before the election, and this was ample time to complete whatever administrative tasks were necessary to ensure the purity of the ballot box. Dunn v. Blumstein, 405 US 330 (1971), distinguished in Marston v. Lewis, 410 US 679 (1973).

Objection Waived: Under 13-2-303 (now repealed), the objection that a measure created a state debt, levy, or liability, and that therefore it should have been placed upon a separate ballot, is waived if not raised before the election. State ex rel. Graham v. Bd. of Examiners, 125 M 419, 239 P2d 283 (1952).

Date for Holding Election: Under Ch. 122, L. 1915 (now repealed), a period of not less than 60 days was required to lapse between time an election was called and time it was held. State ex rel. Eagye v. Bawden, 51 M 357, 152 P 761 (1915).

Part 4

Cancellation of Registration

Part Attorney General's Opinions

Revision of Voter Registration List by School Trustees Prohibited: Montana law does not permit the exercise of discretion by anyone other than the election administrator to revise the number of names on a voter registration list, pursuant to Title 13, ch. 2, part 4. Therefore, school trustees are not permitted under 20-9-428 to revise the number of voters on the certified list of registered electors when determining the percentage of voter turnout at a school bond election. 42 A.G. Op. 19 (1987).

Electors — Cancellation of Registration: The phrase "within forty-five (45) days prior to the closing of registration" in 13-2-403 (now repealed) (as it read prior to 1977 amendment) meant "at any time not less than forty-five (45) days prior to the close of registration". 36 A.G. Op. 43 (1975).

Chapter 546 in (2) substituted "department of public health and human services" for "department of health and environmental sciences". Amendment effective July 1, 1995.

Transition: Section 499, Ch. 418, L. 1995, provided: "The provisions of 2-15-131 through 2-15-137 apply to [this act]."

Section 571, Ch. 546, L. 1995, was a saving clause.

1981 Amendment: In (6), substituted "upon determination of an election judge" for "as provided in 13-13-308".

Changing Designation: The Board of County Canvassers refused to canvass election returns from a precinct on the ground that it appeared upon the face of the returns that the election had not been held at the place designated by the Board of County Commissioners. On application for Writ of Mandate to compel them to act nothing was shown affirmatively by pleadings or otherwise to indicate that the election judges at the precinct had not pursued section 23-407, R.C.M. 1947 (now repealed), giving them authority to change the place of election upon 2 days' notice if for any reason it cannot be held at the place appointed. 1987 Statement of Intent: The statement of intent attached to Ch. 200, L. 1987, provided: "A statement of intent is required for this bill because it grants the secretary of state authority to adopt rules to assure accessibility at the polling place for handicapped and elderly voters. Such rules must be adopted under the Montana Administrative Procedure Act and must be consistent with the provisions of this act.

It is the intent of the legislature that the secretary of state adopt rules to establish standards that a polling place must meet in order to be designated accessible under this act. Wherever possible, these standards should be consistent with the standards established by the American National Standards Institute and the Uniform Federal Accessibility Standards.

In addition, it is intended that the secretary of state establish polling place classifications and survey procedures to determine whether polling places are accessible to handicapped and elderly voters. The secretary of state should also define the basis for an emergency exemption under section 8, which allows an election administrator to relocate an established polling place within 10 days prior to an election.

Finally, it is contemplated that the secretary of state establish procedures to allow an elector to vote on election day by alternative means if he is prevented from voting at his assigned polling place because it is inaccessible."

(4) A technically inaccessible but usable polling place is one that does not meet all the standards for accessibility but has been surveyed, evaluated, and certified as being adequate for use as a polling place. The certification is cause for the secretary of state to grant the polling place an exemption from the standards for accessibility. However, in a future election, the secretary of state may issue an objection to the criteria used for determining that the facility is usable as a polling place.

(5) A rural polling place is one that serves less than 200 registered electors and is:

(a) granted an exemption from the standards for accessibility established under 13-3-205; and

CHAPTER 4 ELECTION JUDGES

Chapter Compiler's Comments

Preamble: The preamble attached to Ch. 414, L. 2003, provided: "WHEREAS, the U.S. Supreme Court in Bush v. Gore, 531 U.S. 98 (2000), found that the lack of uniform procedures for determining voter intent in Florida during the 2000 presidential election led to a violation of the U.S. Constitution's Equal Protection Clause of the 14th Amendment; and

WHEREAS, at the request of the 57th Legislature, the State Administration and Veterans' Affairs Interim Committee devoted much of the 2001-2002 interim to a review of Montana election laws with respect to voting systems and counting processes in light of Bush v. Gore; and

WHEREAS, the interim study found that Montana's statutory provisions relating to ballots, voting systems, and vote counting processes needed to be updated, clarified, and in some instances revised to better define uniform standards and procedures to provide equal protection for votes cast by Montana voters; and

WHEREAS, the Subcommittee on Voting Systems of the State Administration and Veterans' Affairs Interim Committee agreed that statutory changes should be made with an eye on future technology but should also standardize current practices to the greatest extent possible.

THEREFORE, this legislation will enable the Secretary of State to adopt a statewide benchmark performance measure that voting systems must meet before they can be approved for use in the state; allow local election administrators to continue to choose which of the approved voting systems should be used locally; require the Secretary of State to adopt uniform statewide rules regarding ballot form, votes and vote counts, and other operational procedures specific to each voting system and to provide training to local election administrators; and require all counting boards to use the uniform counting procedures specified."

Amendment effective October 1, 2003.

1993 Amendment: Chapter 232 in (4), in second sentence after "insufficient", deleted "any qualified registered elector from the county may be appointed" and inserted remainder of subsection providing that if one or more eligible political parties fails to submit a list, the qualified registered electors selected to fill vacancies may be selected by a random method, either by manual drawing or by computer; and inserted (5) requiring notification of potential judges and requiring them to attend a training class and to serve for 2 years.

13-4-106. Compensation of judges.Compiler's Comments

2001 Amendment: Chapter 44 in (1) inserted last sentence excluding election judges from unemployment insurance coverage if remuneration received is less than $1,000 in a calendar year. Amendment effective October 1, 2001.

Preamble: The preamble attached to Ch. 44, L. 2001, provided: "WHEREAS, section 21, Chapter 195, Laws of 1995, contained a contingent termination provision based upon the amendment of 26 U.S.C. 3304 to no longer require that election judges receive unemployment insurance coverage, but the authority for states to exclude election officials and election workers from unemployment insurance coverage was contained in 26 U.S.C. 3309(b)(3)(F)."

1995 Amendment: Chapter 195 deleted last sentence in (1) that read: "Election judges are exempt from unemployment insurance coverage for services performed pursuant to this chapter"; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective January 1, 1996.

Applicability: Section 19, Ch. 195, L. 1995, provided: "[This act] applies to hearings or appeals requested on or after [the effective date of sections 2 through 10 and 12 through 19]." Sections effective March 23, 1995.

Contingent Termination: Section 21, Ch. 195, L. 1995, provided: "If 26 U.S.C. 3304 is amended to no longer require that election judges receive unemployment insurance coverage, then [section 1 of this act] [13-4-106] terminates on the date on which the U.S.C. amendment is effective." The effect of the termination would be to reinsert the following sentence at the end of (1): "Election judges are exempt from unemployment insurance coverage for services performed pursuant to this chapter." Section 26 U.S.C. 3309(b)(3)(F) contains the authority for states to exclude election officials and election workers from unemployment insurance coverage, so the contingent voidness of certain language was rendered ineffectual. Chapter 44, L. 2001, amended this section by inserting the last sentence of subsection (1).

1991 Amendment: At beginning of (1) inserted exception clause and inserted third sentence concerning exempting election judges from unemployment insurance coverage; and in (2), before "reimbursed", inserted language allowing chief election judge to be paid at higher rate than other election judges.

The materials shall include instructions on the use of all machines or devices approved for use in this state, as well as paper ballots. Enough copies of the materials to supply all election judges in the county and provide a small extra supply shall be sent to each election administrator. Case Notes

Constitutionality of Freeholder Requirement — False Swearing-In Declaration Not a Violation: The freeholder requirement of 7-4-4401, prior to its amendment in 1979, was unconstitutional since it had no relation to a person's qualifications and ability to serve as City Councilman, resulting in an invidious discrimination violative of equal protection. Thus, appellant's false swearing as to freeholder status in his filed declaration of nomination did not constitute a violation of the election laws. Sadler v. Connolly, 175 M 484, 575 P2d 51 (1978), distinguished in Johnson v. Killingsworth, 271 M 1, 894 P2d 272, 52 St. Rep. 274 (1995).

Constitutional Convention: Legislature was not empowered to provide for nomination and election of delegates to constitutional convention under Art. XIX, sec. 8, 1889 Mont. Const., solely by nonpartisan means, since this would be a substantial change from manner of election and nomination provided for under this chapter. Forty-Second Legislative Assembly v. Lennon, 156 M 416, 481 P2d 330 (1971), distinguished in Mahoney v. Murray, 159 M 176, 496 P2d 1120 (1972).

Attorney General's Opinions

Timetables for Filing Declarations of Nomination and Changing Precinct Boundaries — Study Commission Recommendations: The timetable for filing declarations of nomination found in 13-10-201(6) and the timetable for changing precinct boundaries found in 13-3-102(1) apply to candidates for County Commissioner positions created by the adoption of a local government study commission proposal. 41 A.G. Judges — Vacancy Before Primary Election: In an opinion written before revision of the election laws in 1979, the Attorney General held that statutes prescribing time limitations, within which declarations for nomination and certification of nominees by the Secretary of State must be made, do not apply to a case where a vacancy occurs in the office of a regularly elected District Judge if there is sufficient time before the primary to allow declarations to be filed and the ballots printed. 33 A.G. Case Notes

Time for Filing Acceptance by Write-In Candidate: Under section 23-910, R.C.M. 1947 (now repealed), which required write-in candidate to file within 10 days after “election”, the term “election” meant the day of election and not the day on which the canvass of the ballots was completed; hence a candidate for House of Representatives who filed acceptance 18 days after election was not entitled to a Writ of Mandate to compel the County Clerk to include his name on the general election official ballot. State ex rel. Wulf v. McGrath, 111 M 96, 106 P2d 183 (1940).

Failure to File Acceptance — Effect of Subsequent Resignation: When a successful write-in candidate at a nominating election failed to file his acceptance within 10 days after election day, his subsequent resignation did not result in a vacancy which the county central committee of his party could fill. State ex rel. Wilkinson v. McGrath, 111 M 102, 106 P2d 186 (1940).

Case Notes

Ballots With Only Last Name Listed Properly Rejected: Paulsen lost an election for Sheriff when 37 ballots were disallowed by election judges, principally ballots with only a last name listed. The District Court rejected Paulsen’s challenge because the ballots did not contain a name consistent with one of the 30 names submitted by Paulsen in his declaration of intent to be a write-in candidate. Paulsen argued that because no other person named Paulsen or Paulson filed a declaration of intent, all written-in votes with those names should have been counted for him. However, election laws clearly specify what names voters may write in when the candidate being voted for has filed a declaration of intent, and if one of those names is not used, then the vote may not be counted. Even though there is a strong tradition in Montana jurisprudence to effectuate the honest choice of the electors, marking of ballots must not be expressly forbidden by statute and must substantially comply with the law. The 37 rejected ballots were properly disallowed, and the District Court correctly upheld the election officials' decision. Paulsen v. Huestis, 2000 MT 280, 302 M 157, 13 P3d 931, 57 St. Rep. 1170 (2000). See also Marsh v. Overland, 274 M 21, 905 P2d 1088 (1995).

Plaintiff Only Write-In Candidate — No Requirement That All Write-In Votes With His Surname Be Counted for Him: Marsh argued that all write-in votes for "Marsh" should have been recorded as votes for him rather than rejected by the county recount board because he was the only qualified write-in candidate. The Supreme Court held that a write-in vote had to be unambiguous to be counted and that the argument ignored the fact that there had been write-in votes for other Marshs, thereby making it impossible to determine if a vote for "Marsh" was a vote for him. Marsh v. Overland, 274 M 21, 905 P2d 1088, 52 St. Rep. 1099 (1995).

Votes for Deceased Candidate — Election of Write-In Candidate: A candidate for reelection to a county office died 24 days before the election. His death was known generally to electors but his name was placed on the ballot. A majority voted for him supposing to retain his widow who had been appointed to fill the vacancy until the next general election. The Supreme Court ruled that a write-in candidate receiving the highest vote cast for any living person was entitled to a Writ of Mandate to compel the County Canvassing Board to reconvene and cause certificate of election to be issued to him. State ex rel. Wolff v. Geurkink, 111 M 417, 109 P2d 1094 (1941).

Attorney General's Opinions

Filling Vacant Office: When the office of County Commissioner has become vacant with no opportunity to nominate candidates in the primary election, the selection of candidates for the general election will be made by each political party according to 13-10-327; and, pursuant to 13-12-208 (now repealed), write-in candidates may also seek the office. The appointee to fill the immediate vacancy will hold that office until the next general election. 37 A.G. Op. 147 (1978).

Vacancies — How Filled: The office of a Public Service Commissioner who dies after the primary election date must be placed on the general election ballot. The elected successor will take office when elected and qualified and will serve out the unexpired term. Political party nominations for the general election may be made in accordance with the customs of each political party. Nominations for independent candidates or candidates of parties not eligible for the direct primary must be made in accordance with Title 13, ch. 10, part 5. 35 A.G. Op. 95 (1974).

Methods of Nomination Other Than by Primary Election

13-10-501. Petition for nomination by independent candidates or political parties not eligible to participate in primary election.

Case Notes

Constitutional Convention: Legislature was not empowered to provide for nomination and election of delegates to constitutional convention under Art. XIX, sec. 8, 1889 Mont. Const., solely by nonpartisan means, since this would be a substantial change from manner of election and nomination provided for under this chapter. Forty-Second Legislative Assembly v. Lennon, 156 M 416, 481 P2d 330 (1971), distinguished in Mahoney v. Murray, 159 M 176, 496 P2d 1120 (1972).

Error in Certificate:

Under former law, the inadvertent failure to include the name of a convention nominee for a certain office in the certificate of nominations rendered the certificate insufficient. State ex rel. Galen v. Hays, 31 M 227, 78 P 301 (1904).

Under former law, an error in the party name on the certificate of nomination rendered it void. State ex rel. Scharnikow v. Hogan, 24 M 397, 62 P 683 (1900).

Nominee of Electors Not Party Candidate: It is by means of the certificate of nomination that the County Clerk is informed how to prepare the official ballot for the electors. The Secretary of State cannot certify a candidate nominated by electors as the candidate of a political party, for clearly he is not such a candidate and has no place in a group of candidates certified as nominated by a regular political party convention or organization, under the name of the party making such nomination. State ex rel. Woody v. Rotwitt, 18 M 502, 46 P 370 (1896).

Attorney General's Opinions

Independent Candidate: In an opinion written before the general revision of the election laws in 1979, the Attorney General held that a candidate unsuccessfully seeking a party's nomination in the primary election may afterwards be nominated by certificate to appear on the general election ballot as an independent candidate. 33 A.G. Case Notes

Election Loss in Primary — Lack of Standing to Challenge Constitutionality of Filing Deadline for Independent Candidates: A former County Attorney who lost a primary election as a party candidate and who attempted to file a late petition for nomination as an independent candidate and his supporter are not the right parties to raise the issue of constitutionality of filing deadlines for independent candidates. The candidate has not been denied access to the general election ballot by law but by the will of the electors in the party he sought to represent. Plaintiffs have each exercised full candidacy and electoral rights as partisans. One cannot attack the constitutionality of laws that now work in one's disfavor, having taken advantage of the same laws when they worked in one's favor. State ex rel. Racicot v. District Court, 244 M 521, 798 P2d 1004, 47 St. Rep. 1785 (1990).

Attorney General's Opinions

U.S. Senate Seat as Statewide Office — Senate Candidate Required to Qualify Party for Subsequent Primary Elections: On the question of whether a political party must have a candidate participate in the 1990 U.S. senatorial race in order to remain qualified for ballot status in the 1992 election, the Attorney General noted that subsection (1) of this section (prior to 1991 amendment) requires that a candidate for a statewide office receive a 5% vote in the last general election in order for the party to be eligible to nominate candidates in the subsequent primary election. A reasonable interpretation of "statewide office" is an office for which a statewide election is held, including the office of U.S. Senator. Thus, because the only election decided by a statewide vote in 1990 is for a U.S. Senate seat, a political party must have a candidate receive the requisite number of votes in the 1990 election in order for the party to automatically qualify to nominate candidates by primary election in 1992. 43 A.G. CHAPTER 12 ELECTION SUPPLIES AND BALLOTS

Chapter Compiler's Comments

Preamble: The preamble attached to Ch. 414, L. 2003, provided: "WHEREAS, the U.S. Supreme Court in Bush v. Gore, 531 U.S. 98 (2000), found that the lack of uniform procedures for determining voter intent in Florida during the 2000 presidential election led to a violation of the U.S. Constitution's Equal Protection Clause of the 14th Amendment; and

WHEREAS, at the request of the 57th Legislature, the State Administration and Veterans' Affairs Interim Committee devoted much of the 2001-2002 interim to a review of Montana election laws with respect to voting systems and counting processes in light of Bush v. Gore; and

WHEREAS, the interim study found that Montana's statutory provisions relating to ballots, voting systems, and vote counting processes needed to be updated, clarified, and in some instances revised to better define uniform standards and procedures to provide equal protection for votes cast by Montana voters; and

WHEREAS, the Subcommittee on Voting Systems of the State Administration and Veterans' Affairs Interim Committee agreed that statutory changes should be made with an eye on future technology but should also standardize current practices to the greatest extent possible.

THEREFORE, this legislation will enable the Secretary of State to adopt a statewide benchmark performance measure that voting systems must meet before they can be approved for use in the state; allow local election administrators to continue to choose which of the approved voting systems should be used locally; require the Secretary of State to adopt uniform statewide rules regarding ballot form, votes and vote counts, and other operational procedures specific to each voting system and to provide training to local election administrators; and require all counting boards to use the uniform counting procedures specified."

1985 Amendment: In (2)(a) at beginning, inserted "Except as provided in subsection (3)"; and inserted (3) referring to rotation of names on paper ballots in precincts where voting devices are used.

Attorney General's Opinions

Requirement for Mandatory Name Rotation Not Mandatory When Challenged After Election — Results Not Voidable: Following an election, a candidate whose name appeared at the top of the ballot less frequently, due to an oversight by the election administrator, objected to the method of name placement. In view of the history of Montana law and in light of decisions from courts in other states, the Attorney General held that subsection (2) of this section is not mandatory when challenged after an election because an error in the rotation of names on the ballot does not obstruct a free and intelligent casting of the vote and is not essential to the validity of the election. Therefore, failure of the election administrator to rotate the names of the candidates so that each name appeared at the top of the ballot on substantially an equal number of ballots did not render the results of the election void. 43 A.G. Op. 59 (1990).

Ballots — Rotation of Candidates' Names: The names of all candidates for public office may be rotated on election ballots within legislative districts within the county. A certified list of voters registered in each precinct is not required to implement the rotation of candidates' names on the election ballot. 35 A.G. Op. 75 (1974).

Sticker With Premarked "X" Not Legal Ballot: District Court erred in finding ballots valid when electors marked ballot with a printed sticker containing name of write-in candidate and premarked "X", without electors marking an "X" before the name on the printed sticker. CHAPTER 13 ELECTION PROCEDURE

Preamble: The preamble attached to Ch. 414, L. 2003, provided: "WHEREAS, the U.S. Supreme Court in Bush v. Gore, 531 U.S. 98 (2000), found that the lack of uniform procedures for determining voter intent in Florida during the 2000 presidential election led to a violation of the U.S. Constitution's Equal Protection Clause of the 14th Amendment; and

WHEREAS, at the request of the 57th Legislature, the State Administration and Veterans' Affairs Interim Committee devoted much of the 2001-2002 interim to a review of Montana election laws with respect to voting systems and counting processes in light of Bush v. Gore; and

WHEREAS, the interim study found that Montana's statutory provisions relating to ballots, voting systems, and vote counting processes needed to be updated, clarified, and in some instances revised to better define uniform standards and procedures to provide equal protection for votes cast by Montana voters; and

WHEREAS, the Subcommittee on Voting Systems of the State Administration and Veterans' Affairs Interim Committee agreed that statutory changes should be made with an eye on future technology but should also standardize current practices to the greatest extent possible.

THEREFORE, this legislation will enable the Secretary of State to adopt a statewide benchmark performance measure that voting systems must meet before they can be approved for use in the state; allow local election administrators to continue to choose which of the approved voting systems should be used locally; require the Secretary of State to adopt uniform statewide rules regarding ballot form, votes and vote counts, and other operational procedures specific to each voting system and to provide training to local election administrators; and require all counting boards to use the uniform counting procedures specified."

Case Notes

Ballots With Only Last Name Listed Properly Rejected: Paulsen lost an election for Sheriff when 37 ballots were disallowed by election judges, principally ballots with only a last name listed. The District Court rejected Paulsen's challenge because the ballots did not contain a name consistent with one of the 30 names submitted by Paulsen in his declaration of intent to be a write-in candidate. Paulsen argued that because no other person named Paulsen or Paulson filed a declaration of intent, all written-in votes with those names should have been counted for him. However, election laws clearly specify what names voters may write in when the candidate being voted for has filed a declaration of intent, and if one of those names is not used, then the vote may not be counted. Even though there is a strong tradition in Montana jurisprudence to effectuate the honest choice of the electors, marking of ballots must not be expressly forbidden by statute and must substantially comply with the law. The 37 rejected ballots were properly disallowed, and the District Court correctly upheld the election officials' decision. Paulsen v. Huestis, 2000 MT 280, 302 M 157, 13 P3d 931, 57 St. Rep. 1170 (2000). See also Marsh v. Overland, 274 M 21, 905 P2d 1088 (1995).

Voter's Intention Not Clear From Ballot: In this case, involving a contest of election, the Supreme Court held that so many questions arose from the contested ballot itself as to the voter's intentions and from attempts to find a consistency in his method of voting that his ballot must be rejected. Rennie v. Nistler, 226 M 412, 735 P2d 1124, 44 St. Rep. 764 (1987).

Sticker With Premarked "X" Not Legal Ballot: District Court erred in finding ballots valid when electors marked ballot with a printed sticker containing name of write-in candidate and premarked "X", without electors marking an "X" before the name on the printed sticker. Since the statute calls for the voter to make his mark, an affirmative act is called for to signify his selection. The provisions of Montana's election laws as to the marking of the ballot and use of stickers are mandatory and not directory. State ex rel. Browne v. District Court, 167 M 477, 539 P2d 1182 (1975).

Voting an Affirmative Act — Vote for Dead Person Not Effective to Oppose Another: The casting of a ballot at an election of public officers is an affirmative, not a negative, act. It is an act done with intention of voting for someone. Hence, if it is the purpose of voters to defeat a certain candidate, that purpose can be accomplished only by voting for some person in opposition to him, and not by voting for a person who died some weeks before election with the expectation that the vote cast for him would be counted as opposed to the person sought to be defeated. One who has died is no longer a person for whom, under Art. IX, sec. 2, 1889 Mont. Const. (now Art. IV, sec. 2, 1972 Mont. Const.), a voter may cast his ballot. State ex rel. Wolff v. Geurkink, 111 M 417, 109 P2d 1094, 133 ALR 304 (1941).

Marking of Ballot:

The statutory provision that a ballot should be marked by an "X" in the square is directory and not mandatory. (See 2001 amendment.) In the absence of a further provision that unless so marked the ballot shall not be counted, a ballot upon which the elector marked all squares with a check mark instead of an "X" should have been counted for contestant, since there was nothing to indicate an attempt to mark the ballot for identification purposes. Peterson v. Billings, 109 M 390, 96 P2d 922 (1939).

Any mark within the square before the candidate's name which can be said to be a crossing of two lines will answer the requirements of the statute that the elector must place an "X" in such square, and in the absence of anything to indicate a purpose on his part to identify his ballot by the use of a third line within the square, a defect in the mark is not sufficient to vitiate the ballot. Carwile v. Jones, 38 M 590, 101 P 153 (1909), explained in Peterson v. Billings, 109 M 390, 96 P2d 922 (1939), distinguished in State ex rel. Browne v. District Court, 167 M 477, 539 P2d 1182 (1975).

In an election contest, the Court properly refused to count for a candidate ballots marked as follows: (1) where the cross was placed after the candidate's name and entirely without his party column; (2) where perpendicular lines were drawn through the names in one party column, but no cross was placed before the candidate's name; and (3) where his name was written in one party column, but no cross marked in the square before the name. In none of these instances was there substantial, nor any, compliance with the provisions of predecessor section. Carwile v. Jones, 38 M 590, 101 P 153 (1909).

In an election contest, the Court properly refused to count a ballot for a candidate which was marked by crossing out all the names in other party columns but which failed to show an "X" before his name. While the intention of the voter is generally a very material consideration, he must express his intention substantially as indicated by the statute. (See 2001 amendment.) Carwile v. Jones, 38 M 590, 101 P 153 (1909).

Where the crossmark was placed after the candidate's name but within his party column, the ballot was void, since the elector did not substantially comply with the requirement that the mark be placed in the square before the name. Carwile v. Jones, 38 M 590, 101 P 153 (1909).

When Act of Voting Complete: Act of voting is not completed until the ballot is deposited in the ballot box. Goodell v. Judith Basin County, 70 M 222, 224 P 1110 (1924).

Error by Election Officer: A ballot properly marked, but from which the stub has not been detached by the ballot judge, should be counted; a voter is not to be disfranchised by the errors or wrongful acts of election officers. Carwile v. Jones, 38 M 590, 101 P 153 (1909).

Administrative Rules

Title 44, chapter 3, subchapter 1, ARM Voting accessibility for the elderly and handicapped.

Case Notes

Need Not Certify Reason for Assistance: A ballot bearing the endorsement: "Voted by H. and M. (judges of election) for illegibility of voter" was not void on the ground that the reason given for assisting the voter was not one recognized by law, since section 23-1213, R.C.M. 1947 (now repealed), did not require judges to certify the reason for assisting an elector, and the words "for illegibility of voter" were therefore surplusage. In the absence of a showing why they gave assistance, it will be presumed that they regularly performed their official duties. Carwile v. Jones, 38 M 590, 101 P 153 (1909).

Evidence: Under section 1364, Political Code of 1895, when it appeared in an election contest that a voter's ballot had been endorsed by the judges of election, as required by law, it was necessary to show that it could not thereby be identified in order to let in, as secondary evidence, testimony as to how he voted. Lane v. Bailey, 29 M 548, 75 P 191 (1904).

Rules are to be adopted under the Montana Administrative Procedure Act.

The Legislature intends that this grant of authority to adopt rules be used only to eliminate inconsistencies that now exist between the specifications established in 13-13-214(4) and existing requirements of federal law. The rules adopted must be consistent with regulations established by the federal election commission, U.S. postal service, or other federal agency. The rules must allow for mailing and return of the ballot free of U.S. postage if that is permitted by the U.S. postal service. The rules may not require information and graphics which are not specifically required by the regulations of a federal agency."

Chapter Compiler's Comments

Preamble: The preamble attached to Ch. 414, L. 2003, provided: "WHEREAS, the U.S. Supreme Court in Bush v. Gore, 531 U.S. 98 (2000), found that the lack of uniform procedures for determining voter intent in Florida during the 2000 presidential election led to a violation of the U.S. Constitution's Equal Protection Clause of the 14th Amendment; and

WHEREAS, at the request of the 57th Legislature, the State Administration and Veterans' Affairs Interim Committee devoted much of the 2001-2002 interim to a review of Montana election laws with respect to voting systems and counting processes in light of Bush v. Gore; and

WHEREAS, the interim study found that Montana's statutory provisions relating to ballots, voting systems, and vote counting processes needed to be updated, clarified, and in some instances revised to better define uniform standards and procedures to provide equal protection for votes cast by Montana voters; and

WHEREAS, the Subcommittee on Voting Systems of the State Administration and Veterans' Affairs Interim Committee agreed that statutory changes should be made with an eye on future technology but should also standardize current practices to the greatest extent possible.

THEREFORE, this legislation will enable the Secretary of State to adopt a statewide benchmark performance measure that voting systems must meet before they can be approved for use in the state; allow local election administrators to continue to choose which of the approved voting systems should be used locally; require the Secretary of State to adopt uniform statewide rules regarding ballot form, votes and vote counts, and other operational procedures specific to each voting system and to provide training to local election administrators; and require all counting boards to use the uniform counting procedures specified."

Purpose and Construction of Prior Act: Purpose of sections 23-2001 through 23-2014, R.C.M. 1947 (now repealed), was to eliminate, so far as possible, the selection of judges from partisan politics. 2003 Amendment: Chapter 414 at end substituted sentence requiring that provision be made, as provided in rules, for a ballot form for

☐ YES

☐ NO

(Mark an "x" before the word "YES" if you wish the official to remain in office. Mark and "x" before the word "NO" if you do not wish the official to remain in office.); and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective October 1, 2003.

Case Notes*Definition of Incumbent:*

Use of "incumbent" is not limited, qualified, or restricted by the method by which one attained office. Keller v. Smith, 170 M 399, 553 P2d 1002 (1976).

An "incumbent" judge, for the purposes of the predecessor to this section, is one who is in office and who seeks to remain a District Court Judge. Yunker v. Murray, 170 M 427, 554 P2d 285 (1976).

Constitutionality: The predecessor of this section was not unconstitutional as being violative of the provisions of Art. VII, sec. 8, Mont. Const. Keller v. Smith, 170 M 399, 553 P2d 1002 (1976).

Write-In Candidate: The Nonpartisan Judiciary Act did not restrict electors to the privilege of voting only for candidates whose names appeared on the primary judicial ballot. Though the act was silent as to their right to write in the name of a qualified person to judicial office, they could do so under the act when it was construed together with the laws relating to primary and general elections. State ex rel. McHale v. Ayers, 111 M 1, 105 P2d 686 (1940).

Required Form of Ballots for Justice of the Peace: Under 3-10-201, in an election for Justice of the Peace, the ballot must be the same in form as the ballot used to elect District Court Judges. This includes the form of ballot used by an incumbent who is unopposed. 35 A.G. Op. 61 (1974).

CHAPTER 15CANVASSING, RETURNS, AND CERTIFICATES*Chapter Compiler's Comments

Preamble: The preamble attached to Ch. 414, L. 2003, provided: "WHEREAS, the U.S. Supreme Court in Bush v. Gore, 531 U.S. 98 (2000), found that the lack of uniform procedures for determining voter intent in Florida during the 2000 presidential election led to a violation of the U.S. Constitution's Equal Protection Clause of the 14th Amendment; and

WHEREAS, at the request of the 57th Legislature, the State Administration and Veterans' Affairs Interim Committee devoted much of the 2001-2002 interim to a review of Montana election laws with respect to voting systems and counting processes in light of Bush v. Gore; and

WHEREAS, the interim study found that Montana's statutory provisions relating to ballots, voting systems, and vote counting processes needed to be updated, clarified, and in some instances revised to better define uniform standards and procedures to provide equal protection for votes cast by Montana voters; and

WHEREAS, the Subcommittee on Voting Systems of the State Administration and Veterans' Affairs Interim Committee agreed that statutory changes should be made with an eye on future technology but should also standardize current practices to the greatest extent possible.

THEREFORE, this legislation will enable the Secretary of State to adopt a statewide benchmark performance measure that voting systems must meet before they can be approved for use in the state; allow local election administrators to continue to choose which of the approved voting systems should be used locally; require the Secretary of State to adopt uniform statewide rules regarding ballot form, votes and vote counts, and other operational procedures specific to each voting system and to provide training to local election administrators; and require all counting boards to use the uniform counting procedures specified."

13-15-101. Votes to be publicly counted — return forms.

Compiler's Comments

2003 Amendment: Chapter 414 in (1) at beginning deleted former first sentence that read: "When the polls are closed, the election judges shall immediately count the votes" and at beginning of first sentence substituted "Any official vote count" for "The count"; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective October 1, 2003.

1987 Amendments: Chapter 100 in (2), in first clause after "counted", deleted "in each precinct"; and in (3) substituted "place of counting" for "polling place".

Chapter 298 in (2) substituted "by precinct" for "in each precinct"; and in (3) substituted "place of counting" for "polling place".

Case Notes

No Authority in School Board to Remove Unqualified Voters From List of Registered Voters: Under 20-9-428 a school board of trustees removed from the certified list of registered voters the names of several persons who the board determined were disqualified to vote. The court held that 20-9-428 must be read with other statutes governing elections, including 20-20-303, concerning how an elector's qualifications may be challenged; 13-13-301, et seq., concerning how qualifications are determined; and this section, concerning general canvassing requirements. The court determined the school board had no authority to remove names of unqualified voters. Bischoff v. School District, 230 M 336, 749 P2d 533, 45 St. Rep. 253 (1988).

Return Forms: Under sections 23-710 through 23-713, R.C.M. 1947 (now repealed), forms on which judges of election were to summarize the result of the vote were not a part of the election returns and were not required to be transmitted to the Clerk in sealed packages. *Dubie v. (b) The chief election judge shall witness and sign the affirmation"; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective October 1, 2003.

13-15-105. Notices relating to absentee ballot counting board.Compiler's Comments

2003 Amendment: Chapter 414 in (1) in introductory clause substituted reference to 13-15-112 for reference to 13-4-101; in (2) at beginning substituted "If the count will begin while the polls are open, the notice required under subsection (1) must" for "The notice must" and at end substituted "and is required to take the oath provided in 13-15-207(4)" for "and the counting board is released and must take the oath provided in 13-15-104"; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective October 1, 2003.

13-15-107. Handling and counting provisional and challenged ballots.Compiler's Comments

2007 Amendment: Chapter 273 in (1) at end after "provisional ballot" substituted provisions on providing valid identification for "in person shall provide information to the election administrator as listed below:

(a) present in person at the office of the election administrator by 5 p.m. on the day after the election a photo identification or other identifying document as described in 13-13-114(1)(a);

(c) mail a nonreturnable copy or nonreturnable original document described in 13-13-114(1)(a) in a self-addressed return envelope provided by the election administrator. If the elector mails a document, the postmark on the envelope must be for the day of the election or the day following the election.

(d) if applicable, the information to respond to a challenge under 13-13-301"; deleted former (3) that read: "(3) The election administrator shall determine prior to an election whether an absentee voter has provided sufficient identification to allow a ballot to be counted. If the information is insufficient, the election administrator shall follow procedures described in 13-13-241 to allow an absentee elector who failed to provide proper identifying information in the outer return envelope to verify eligibility to vote. An absentee elector whose ballot is determined to be provisional has until 5 p.m. on the day after the election to provide valid identification information either in person, by facsimile, by electronic mail, or by mail postmarked on the day of the election or the day after the election"; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective October 1, 2007.

2005 Amendments — Composite Section: Chapter 286 in (1) near middle before "elector" inserted "provisionally registered"; in (1)(c) near beginning after "mail a" inserted "nonreturnable"; inserted (2) concerning provisional ballots; in (4) substituted second sentence concerning inability to determine eligibility and rejection of ballot for former text that read: "However, a provisional ballot may not be counted if the election administrator cannot verify the elector's eligibility under the rules"; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective July 1, 2005.

Chapter 586 inserted (1)(d) regarding information to respond to challenge under 13-13-301; in (4) inserted third sentence requiring documentation of grounds for certain challenges; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective October 1, 2005.

Effective Date: Section 46, Ch. 475, L. 2003, provided that this section is effective January 1, 2004.

13-15-108. Rejected ballots — handling provided by rule.

2005 Amendments — Composite Section: Chapter 286 substituted (1) concerning handling of absentee ballot material as provided by rule for former text that read: "The rejected ballots, the applications, and all envelopes shall be enclosed in an envelope and sealed, and the judges shall write on the envelope "rejected ballot(s) of absentee elector" (writing in the elector's name)"; in (2) at end substituted "handled and marked as provided under rules adopted by the secretary of state" for "marked "voted in person" and initialed by a majority of the election judges"; in former (3) at end substituted "handled and marked as provided under rules adopted by the secretary of state" for "marked "died before election day" and initialed by a majority of the election judges if they are notified of the death on election day" and deleted former second sentence that read: "The election administrator shall make and sign the notation if notice of the death is received before delivery of the absentee ballot to the polling place" (amendment rendered void by Ch. 359 amendment); substituted (3) concerning handling of container for rejected ballots for former (4) that read: "All rejected ballots shall be placed in the sealed package in which the voted ballots are required to be placed and may not be opened without a court order"; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective July 1, 2005.

Chapter 359 deleted former (3) that read: "(3) The unopened absentee ballot envelope of an elector who dies before election day shall be marked "died before election day" and initialed by a majority of the election judges if they are notified of the death on election day. The election administrator shall make and sign the notation if notice of the death is received before delivery of the absentee ballot to the polling place"; and made minor changes in style. Part 2

Vote Count Procedures

Plaintiff Only Write-In Candidate — No Requirement That All Write-In Votes With His Surname Be Counted for Him: Marsh argued that all write-in votes for "Marsh" should have been recorded as votes for him rather than rejected by the county recount board because he was the only qualified write-in candidate. The Supreme Court held that a write-in vote had to be unambiguous to be counted and that the argument ignored the fact that there had been write-in votes for other Marshs, thereby making it impossible to determine if a vote for "Marsh" was a vote for him. Marsh v. Overland, 274 M 21, 905 P2d 1088, 52 St. Rep. 1099 (1995).

Determining Elector's Intention:

The Supreme Court upheld the lower court's rejection of a ballot, holding that when the expression of the voter cannot be gleaned without speculation, the vote must be voided to ensure the objectivity of the election process. Spaeth v. Kendall, 245 M 352, 801 P2d 591, 47 St. Rep. 2177 (1990), followed in Marsh v. Overland, 274 M 21, 905 P2d 1088, 52 St. Rep. 1099 (1995).

A ballot bearing a rather indistinct "X" before contestant's name but sufficient to be discernible should have been counted for him where there was no erasure and the elector voted for no other candidate for that office. Under the rule that the elector's intention must plainly appear, where the voter marked two squares for the office of sheriff, one of which showed an extra line through the "X", the intention was not clear and the ballot should not have been counted. Peterson v. Billings, 109 M 390, 96 P2d 922 (1939), distinguished in State ex rel. Browne v. District Court, 167 M 477, 539 P2d 1182 (1975).

Under section 23-1704, R.C.M. 1947 (now repealed), and the rule that election laws must be liberally construed, a ballot showing the intersection of the "X" outside the square should have been counted for contestant, and one showing the intersection of the cross squarely on the line of the square was properly so counted for him. Peterson v. Billings, 109 M 390, 96 P2d 922 (1939), distinguished in State ex rel. Browne v. District Court, 167 M 477, 539 P2d 1182 (1975).

When, from the manner in which a ballot was marked, it was impossible to determine the elector's choice, the ballot was void under section 23-1210, R.C.M. 1947 (now repealed), and should not have been counted in an election contest. Carwile v. Jones, 38 M 590, 101 P 153 (1909).

Compiler's Comments

2007 Amendment: Chapter 273 in (1) near middle substituted "count of ballots, the counting board or, if appointed, the absentee counting board shall take ballots out of the box" for "count of paper ballots before or after the close of the polls, the counting board of election judges designated under 13-15-112 shall take ballots out of the box unopened"; deleted former (1)(b) that read: "(b) If an absentee ballot counting board has been appointed pursuant to 13-15-112, the absentee ballots must be delivered to the absentee ballot counting board and counted as provided in 13-15-104. If an absentee ballot counting board has not been appointed, the regular counting board shall, subject to 13-13-244, remove each absentee ballot secrecy envelope and open it to determine whether the ballot for each election is single"; in (3), (4), and (5) substituted "board" for "counting board"; deleted former (2) that read: "(2) For nonpaper ballots, the counting board shall prepare for the official count in a manner prescribed by the secretary of state pursuant to 13-17-211"; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective October 1, 2007.

2005 Amendment: Chapter 286 in (1)(b) near beginning of third sentence and in (1)(f) near end of second sentence after "rejected" inserted "and handled as provided in 13-15-108". Amendment effective July 1, 2005.

2003 Amendment: Chapter 414 substituted current text concerning counting of ballots for former text that read: "(1) To begin the count after the close of the polls, the election judges shall take ballots out of the box unopened to determine whether each ballot is single. The election judges shall remove each absentee ballot secrecy envelope and open it to determine whether the ballot for each election is single. A ballot must be rejected if in the envelope there is more than one ballot for each election.

(2) They shall count the ballots to ensure that the number of ballots corresponds with the number of names on the pollbook.

(3) If they cannot reconcile the total number of ballots with the pollbook, they shall submit a written report stating how many ballots were missing or in excess and any reason of which they are aware for the discrepancy. All judges shall sign the report.

(4) A ballot that is not endorsed by the official stamp is void and may not be counted unless the judges agree that the stamp is missing because of their error. The ballot must be marked "unstamped by error" on the back and must be initialed by all judges.

(5) If two or more ballots are folded together to look like a single ballot, they must be laid aside until the count is complete. The election judges shall compare the count with the pollbooks, and if a majority believes that the ballots folded together were voted by one elector, they must be rejected; otherwise they must be counted." Amendment effective October 1, 2003.

1997 Amendment: Chapter 242 in (1) inserted second and third sentences regarding removal of secrecy envelope by election judges and rejection of ballot; and made minor changes in style.

Case Notes

Unstamped and Excess Ballots: Although discarding the ballots in excess of the number of names on the pollbooks would not have affected the outcome of a legislative primary election, the District Court properly ordered a new election when it could not be determined with mathematical certainty that petitioner had won the nomination because some ballots had not been endorsed with the official stamp and the number of such unstamped ballots cast for petitioner was unknown. In re Recount of Ravalli County Primary Election, Petition of Thoft, 178 M 272, 583 P2d 430 (1978).

Official Stamp on Ballot Stub — Stamp Removed With Stub: When ballots had been delivered to electors by the judges of election with the official stamp apparently in the place in which the law requires it to be, although in reality it was on the stub instead of on the ballot proper, the act of the judges in removing the stamp with the stub, thus leaving the ballot without the official designation, did not render the ballots void, and the same should have been counted. Harrington v. Crichton, 53 M 388, 164 P 537 (1917).

2007 Amendment: Chapter 273 in (2) after "votes" deleted "cast on a paper ballot"; in lead-in of (3)(a) at end substituted "counting votes" for "tabulating a vote cast on a nonpaper ballot"; deleted lead-in and (3)(b)(i) of former (3)(b) that read: "(b) When a voting system is tabulating a vote cast on a paper ballot:

(i) if the voting system recognizes and counts the vote, it is a valid vote"; in (3)(b) near middle substituted "registers an unvoted ballot or an overvote" for "registers an overvote or undervote"; in (3)(d) near middle after "totaled" deleted "pursuant to subsection (4) and this subsection (3)"; in (4)(a)(i) in first sentence before "ballot" deleted "paper"; in (9) deleted definition of undervote that read: "'undervote' means an elector's vote that has been interpreted by the voting system as a nonvote"; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective October 1, 2007.

2005 Amendment: Chapter 586 in (2) near beginning inserted "or recount"; in (2)(a) in third sentence after "according to instructions" substituted text providing that vote be considered questionable and requiring entire ballot be set aside and handled as provided in subsection (4) for "the entire ballot must be set aside and counted as provided in subsection (4)"; in (3)(a) substituted introductory clause regarding voting system tabulation of nonpaper ballot for "Except as provided in subsection (3)(b)"; in (3)(a)(i) and (3)(a)(ii) near beginning after "if a vote" deleted "on a paper ballot or nonpaper ballot"; in (3)(b) substituted text regarding tabulation by voting system of vote cast on paper ballot for "If a paper ballot being counted by a voting system is rejected by the system or if the system records an overvote or undervote on a ballot, the ballot must be set aside and counted as provided in subsection (4)"; in (3)(c) substituted "or counting board has reason to believe" for "determines" and at end substituted reference to 13-15-209 for reference to 13-16-414; substituted (4) regarding review and evaluation by counting board for former (4) that read: "(4) (a) Each questionable vote on a paper ballot set aside under subsection (2)(a) or (3)(b) must be counted if the voter's intent can be clearly determined and agreed upon by a majority of the election judges on the counting board in accordance with rules adopted pursuant to subsection (7).

(b) After each questionable vote on a ballot set aside under subsection (2)(a) or (3)(b) has been determined to be a valid vote, an invalid vote, or an intentional nonvote, the valid votes must be counted manually or automatically tabulated by the voting system. Title 44, chapter 3, subchapter 24, ARM Ballot form and uniformity and determining a valid vote.

Case Notes

No Clear Voter Intent on Overvoted Ballots — Improper Determination of Question of Validity of Disputed Ballots and Interjection of Political Consequences by District Court: In a three-candidate race for the House of Representatives, seven ballots had marks in the designated area for both Jore and Cross. The ballots were read as overvotes and rejected by the vote scanning machine. An election official affixed a white label over each mark for Cross and fed the ballots back through the scanner, with the result that Jore won by two votes. Windham, who lost by the two votes, requested a recount, which included the seven contested ballots, and the recount resulted in a tie between Jore and Windham. The Governor appointed Jore to the seat, and an elector in the district contested the certification of the recount. The District Court concluded that because the vote was a tie, the court could not substitute its judgment for the election board without having the legal effect of electing Windham, who received none of the votes on the contested ballots. The District Court then held that Supreme Court precedents prohibiting speculation about voter intent did not apply, that the seven ballots were valid, and that the voters intended to vote for Jore and declared Jore the winner. On appeal, the Supreme Court reversed. Rather than addressing the narrow legal question of the validity of the ballots, the District Court improperly inserted the political consequences of the result into the question. This speculation as to the outcome of the race had the effect of improperly giving the seven contested ballots greater weight than the other 4,200 ballots cast in the election. Five of the contested ballots failed to satisfy the objective standards developed by the Secretary of State for clearly determining voter intent and should have been declared invalid. The District Court's conclusion that the double-marked ballots were valid was also erroneous because voter instructions provided that a voter who spoiled a ballot must be provided with another, and if the spoiled ballots were counted, then voters who followed the law and requested new ballots would have received unequal treatment. Big Spring v. Jore, 2005 MT 64, 326 M 256, 109 P3d 219 (2005), following Rennie v. Nistler, 226 M 412, 735 P2d 1124 (1987), and distinguishing *State ex rel. Bowling v. 13-15-207. Counting board procedures.Compiler's Comments

2003 Amendment: Chapter 414 substituted current text concerning vote counting procedures for former text that read: "(1) In any precinct where a counting board has been appointed in addition to the regular board of election judges, the counting board shall meet at a place designated by the election administrator.

(2) The election administrator may provide duplicate boxes for voted ballots and duplicate pollbooks at any precinct for which a counting board has been appointed and may arrange for the counting board to begin the count of the votes cast before the polls close. The counting board shall be sequestered in a separate room from where the ballots are being cast until after the polls close. Any individual observing the counting board procedures must be sequestered with the board until after the polls close. The counting board shall proceed by counting all ballots in the first box and then that box and pollbook shall be exchanged for the second box and duplicate pollbook. The board shall continue counting until the votes cast for all candidates and issues are counted. The election administrator may appoint an extra election judge to act as a marshal to be responsible for exchanging ballot boxes and pollbooks and enforcing sequestering of the board and observers.

(3) The election administrator may have the counting board for a precinct begin work as soon as the polls close instead of using the procedure outlined in subsection (2).

(4) In a county where voting devices are used, the election administrator may make provisions for the delivery of voted ballots to the counting center at any time prior to the closing of the polls. The ballots may be processed and counted as they are received, but the results of this early count may not be released to the public until after all the polls are closed.

(5) No election judge or other individual having access to the information may disclose any results of early counting while the polls are open." Amendment effective October 1, 2003.

Case Notes

Change in Membership of Board: Under former law, membership of a County Board of Canvassers was not necessarily comprised of the same officers but was subject to change depending upon circumstances. A Writ of Mandate, issued to compel a Board to reconvene and canvass the returns from an election precinct which they had excluded, was properly directed to the particular individuals comprising the Board, describing them by name, and as constituting the Board of County Canvassers of election returns for a certain county of the state. 1987 Amendment: Inserted (4) referring to petition for recount of votes.

Case Notes

Rejection of Returns:

Under former law, a County Board of Canvassers had no authority to inquire into the validity of a certificate of nomination of a nominee for office. Therefore, when the election returns were genuine and properly certified, prohibition would not lie to restrain the Board from canvassing such returns and counting the vote cast for such person. Pigott v. Bd. of Canvassers of Cascade County, 12 M 537, 31 P 536 (1892).

Under former law, the duties of a County Canvassing Board were ministerial, and such Board had no authority to exclude the returns of an election precinct, regularly made, upon the ground that the voting was shown by affidavits to be illegal. When the Board has done so it may be compelled by mandamus to canvass such returns. State ex rel. Leech v. Bd. of Canvassers of Choteau County, 13 M 23, 31 P 879 (1892). See also State ex rel. Breen v. Toole, 32 M 4, 79 P 403 (1905); Poe v. Sheridan County, 52 M 279, 157 P 185 (1916).

Under former law, neither the fact that returns in the pollbook were left blank nor the fact that the certificate thereto was not properly filled in was ground for rejecting returns. State ex rel. Leech v. Bd. of Canvassers of Choteau County, 13 M 23, 31 P 879 (1892).

Under former law, it was the duty of the Board of Canvassers to procure the check lists and surrendered lists before rejecting the vote of a precinct as returned by the pollbooks alone. State ex rel. Leech v. Bd. of Canvassers of Choteau County, 13 M 23, 31 P 879 (1892).

Voter's Intention Not Clear From Ballot: In this case, involving a contest of election, the Supreme Court held that so many questions arose from the contested ballot itself as to the voter's intentions and from attempts to find a consistency in his method of voting that his ballot must be rejected. *Rennie v. 1991 Amendment: Inserted (5) requiring board certification of canvass results. Amendment effective April 2, 1991.

Case Notes

Deceased Candidate Receiving Majority: A candidate for reelection to a county office died 24 days before election. His death was known generally to electors, but his name was placed on the ballot and a majority voted for him, supposing to retain his widow who had been appointed to fill the vacancy until the next general election. A write-in candidate receiving the highest vote cast for any living person was entitled to a Writ of Mandate to compel the County Canvassing Board to reconvene and cause certificate of election to be issued to him. State ex rel. Wolff v. Geurkink, 111 M 417, 109 P2d 1094 (1941).

Effect of Tie Vote:

If there is a clause in the Constitution providing that an officer shall hold for a definite term and until his successor is elected and qualified and the people fail to elect his successor, there is no vacancy, and he is entitled to hold over until the people have chosen his successor in the usual way. However, the provisions of Art. VIII, sec. 8, 9, 1889 Mont. Const. (now Art. VII, sec. 7, 1972 Mont. Const.), fixing the terms of judicial officers were exclusive, and vacancies occurred by operation of law upon the expiration of the terms designated, even when the people failed to elect their successors. Therefore, if, by reason of a tie vote, there was a failure to elect the successor of a Clerk of a District Court upon the expiration of the incumbent's term, there was a vacancy which the County Commissioners were authorized to fill by appointment. State ex rel. Jones v. Foster, 39 M 583, 104 P 860 (1909). See also State ex rel. Patterson v. Lentz, 50 M 322, 146 P 932 (1915).

Under Art. XVI, sec. 5, 1889 Mont. Const., which provided that County School Superintendents were to hold office for 2 years "and until their successors are elected and qualified", a tie vote did not result in a vacancy that could be filled by the County Commissioners under a former chapter. The incumbent was entitled to remain in office. State ex rel. Chenoweth v. Acton, 31 M 37, 77 P 299 (1904).

CHAPTER 16
RECOUNTS AND TIE VOTES

Chapter Compiler's Comments

Preamble: The preamble attached to Ch. 414, L. 2003, provided: "WHEREAS, the U.S. Supreme Court in Bush v. Gore, 531 U.S. 98 (2000), found that the lack of uniform procedures for determining voter intent in Florida during the 2000 presidential election led to a violation of the U.S. Constitution's Equal Protection Clause of the 14th Amendment; and

WHEREAS, at the request of the 57th Legislature, the State Administration and Veterans' Affairs Interim Committee devoted much of the 2001-2002 interim to a review of Montana election laws with respect to voting systems and counting processes in light of Bush v. Gore; and

WHEREAS, the interim study found that Montana's statutory provisions relating to ballots, voting systems, and vote counting processes needed to be updated, clarified, and in some instances revised to better define uniform standards and procedures to provide equal protection for votes cast by Montana voters; and

WHEREAS, the Subcommittee on Voting Systems of the State Administration and Veterans' Affairs Interim Committee agreed that statutory changes should be made with an eye on future technology but should also standardize current practices to the greatest extent possible.

THEREFORE, this legislation will enable the Secretary of State to adopt a statewide benchmark performance measure that voting systems must meet before they can be approved for use in the state; allow local election administrators to continue to choose which of the approved voting systems should be used locally; require the Secretary of State to adopt uniform statewide rules regarding ballot form, votes and vote counts, and other operational procedures specific to each voting system and to provide training to local election administrators; and require all counting boards to use the uniform counting procedures specified."

Part 3Recounts Under Court Order*Part Case Notes

Wrongful Canvass — Remedies: Former recount statutes did not afford a legal remedy for an alleged wrongful canvass by a County Canvassing Board and therefore did not defeat the right of a citizen to compel proper performance of the Board's duty by Writ of Mandate. State ex rel. Lynch v. Batani, 103 M 353, 62 P2d 565 (1936).

13-16-301. Application and court order for recount.Case Notes

Grounds Sufficient: Under sections 23-2301 through 23-2307, R.C.M. 1947 (now repealed), when an application for Writ of Supervisory Control alleged that the votes had not been correctly counted, such ground was sufficient to justify the court's finding that the votes "might not" have been correctly counted, as well as its issuance of a Writ directing respondents to order a recount. State ex rel. Thomas v. District Court, 116 M 510, 154 P2d 980 (1945).

Nature of Proceedings: Under sections 23-2301 through 23-2307, R.C.M. 1947 (now repealed), a proceeding to obtain a recount of votes was in no sense of the word an election contest; it was absolutely independent of the law relating to contesting of elections and either or both remedies were available. State ex rel. Peterson v. District Court, 107 M 482, 86 P2d 403 (1939).

Successive Recounts: Under sections 23-2301 through 23-2307, R.C.M. 1947 (now repealed), when an unsuccessful candidate for Sheriff obtained a recount and was declared elected, and his opponent also asked for and was granted a recount, on application for a Writ of Supervisory Control, the 5-day limitation commenced to run from the time the Board of Canvassers announced the result of the first recount, and since the application came within that time, the court had jurisdiction to grant the second recount. State ex rel. Peterson v. District Court, 107 M 482, 86 P2d 403 (1939).

Function and Jurisdiction of Court:

Under sections 23-2301 through 23-2307, R.C.M. 1947 (now repealed), the law relating to proceedings for election recounts specifically divided the functions of the court and the Canvassing Board. The court determined the grounds of and necessity for a recount and ordered it done. The Board was entrusted with the duty of making the recount, just as the election judges and clerks of election were entrusted with the duty of making the count and certifying thereto in the first place. State ex rel. Peterson v. District Court, 107 M 482, 86 P2d 403 (1939).

Under sections 23-2301 through 23-2307, R.C.M. 1947 (now repealed), the rule that District Courts may not advise Boards of County Canvassers on questions arising on a recount of ballots as to the legality or illegality of ballots cast, etc., applied also to the Supreme Court on application for extraordinary relief by way of writs, and it could not control the actions of such Boards indirectly by directions or suggestions to District Courts. If State ex rel. Riley v. District Court, 103 M 576, 64 P2d 115 (1937), be open to a contrary construction, it is to that extent overruled. State ex rel. Peterson v. District Court, 107 M 482, 86 P2d 403 (1939).

Under sections 23-2301 through 23-2307, R.C.M. 1947 (now repealed), the Court could proceed in any suitable manner or mode most conformable "to the spirit" of the Code in the absence of specific direction as to how proceedings should be conducted and was within its jurisdiction in directing canvassers' attention to sections of the Code covering points in dispute. State ex rel. Riley v. District Court, 103 M 576, 64 P2d 115 (1937).

Candidates for Legislature: Under Art. V, sec. 9, 1889 Mont. Const., courts could not try contests for seats in the Legislature or decide issues involved in such contests. However, mandamus lay to compel the court to perform the duty specially imposed upon it by recount statutes, i.e., to proceed on an application for a recount. In this case, the District Court found that the application for the recount was sufficient both in form and in substance. Therefore, the recount should have been ordered even though it might not have been binding on the Senate. State ex rel. Ainsworth v. District Court, 107 M 370, 86 P2d 5 (1938).

Applicability: Under sections 23-2301 through 23-2307, R.C.M. 1947 (now repealed), any unsuccessful candidate, including a candidate for the office of District Judge, could apply to the District Court for a recount. State ex rel. Riley v. District Court, 103 M 576, 64 P2d 115 (1937).

Application Timely: Under sections 23-2301 through 23-2307, R.C.M. 1947 (now repealed), when the Board of Canvassers was compelled by the Supreme Court by Writ of Mandate to reconvene and correct its findings with relation to two candidates for District Judge, the application filed within 5 days after the corrected canvass was timely. State ex rel. Riley v. District Court, 103 M 576, 64 P2d 115 (1937).

Qualifications for Office Irrelevant: Under sections 23-2301 through 23-2307, R.C.M. 1947 (now repealed), the District Court committed error in dismissing the application for a recount on the ground that applicant, convicted of a felony in federal court, had lost his citizenship and thus was ineligible to hold public office. The subject of applicant's qualifications for office is beyond the scope of a proceeding for recount. State ex rel. Stone v. District Court, 103 M 515, 63 P2d 147 (1936).

13-16-303. Presumption of incorrectness from failure to comply with provisions for counting votes.

Jurisdiction Retained: The jurisdiction of the District Court before which an application for a recount of the votes is filed does not cease when it orders the Board of Canvassers to reconvene and recanvass the votes. Rather, the court retains jurisdiction of the proceeding until it has been advised of the completion of the canvass. State ex rel. Riley v. District Court, 103 M 576, 64 P2d 115 (1937).

2003 Amendment: Chapter 414 substituted introductory clause of (1) concerning recount for former introductory clause that read: "The county recount board in recounting the ballots shall count, at the same time, the votes cast in the precincts in which a recount is ordered for the several candidates in whose behalf a recount is ordered in the following manner"; in (1)(a) after "shall" substituted "provide to the recount board" for "produce" and near end before "ballots" inserted "paper"; in (1)(b) before "recount board" deleted "county" and at end inserted clause concerning counting as provided in 13-15-206(2); at beginning of (1)(c) substituted "the recount must be tallied" for "One of the members of the board shall read each ballot aloud. Case Notes

Jurisdiction of Recount Board to Disallow Votes: Marsh argued that only election judges are vested with the authority to reject ballots and that a recount board is limited to simply recounting the ballots that the election judges have determined to be valid. The Supreme Court held that in reading all the statutes together, a recount board is required to count the votes cast and is further required to ascertain the correctness of all reports of votes cast. Therefore, in this case, the recount board could not perform its duties without determining if certain votes could be counted pursuant to the strictures contained in 13-15-202 (now repealed). *Marsh v. Part 5 Tie Votes

Effect of Constitutional Provisions: If there is a clause in the Constitution providing that an officer shall hold for a definite term and until his successor is elected and qualified and the people fail to elect his successor, there is no vacancy, and he is entitled to hold over until the people have chosen his successor in the usual way. However, the provisions of Art. VIII, sec. 8, 9, 1889 Mont. Const. (now Art. VII, sec. 7, 1972 Mont. Const.), fixing the terms of judicial officers were exclusive, and vacancies occurred by operation of law upon the expiration of the terms designated, even when the people failed to elect their successors; hence, if, by reason of a tie vote, there was a failure to elect the successor of a Clerk of a District Court upon the expiration of the incumbent's term, there was a vacancy which the County Commissioners were authorized to fill by appointment. State ex rel. Jones v. Foster, 39 M 583, 104 P 860 (1909). See also State ex rel. Patterson v. Lentz, 50 M 322, 146 P 932 (1915).

Former Law Invalid as Applied to County School Superintendent: Under Art. XVI, sec. 5, 1889 Mont. Const., which provided that County School Superintendents were to hold office for 2 years "and until their successors are elected and qualified", a tie vote did not result in a vacancy that could be filled by the County Commissioners under a former chapter. The incumbent was entitled to remain in office. State ex rel. Chenoweth v. Acton, 31 M 37, 77 P 299 (1904).

CHAPTER 17 VOTING SYSTEMS

Chapter Compiler's Comments

Preamble: The preamble attached to Ch. 414, L. 2003, provided: "WHEREAS, the U.S. Supreme Court in Bush v. Gore, 531 U.S. 98 (2000), found that the lack of uniform procedures for determining voter intent in Florida during the 2000 presidential election led to a violation of the U.S. Constitution's Equal Protection Clause of the 14th Amendment; and

WHEREAS, at the request of the 57th Legislature, the State Administration and Veterans' Affairs Interim Committee devoted much of the 2001-2002 interim to a review of Montana election laws with respect to voting systems and counting processes in light of Bush v. Gore; and

WHEREAS, the interim study found that Montana's statutory provisions relating to ballots, voting systems, and vote counting processes needed to be updated, clarified, and in some instances revised to better define uniform standards and procedures to provide equal protection for votes cast by Montana voters; and

WHEREAS, the Subcommittee on Voting Systems of the State Administration and Veterans' Affairs Interim Committee agreed that statutory changes should be made with an eye on future technology but should also standardize current practices to the greatest extent possible.

THEREFORE, this legislation will enable the Secretary of State to adopt a statewide benchmark performance measure that voting systems must meet before they can be approved for use in the state; allow local election administrators to continue to choose which of the approved voting systems should be used locally; require the Secretary of State to adopt uniform statewide rules regarding ballot form, votes and vote counts, and other operational procedures specific to each voting system and to provide training to local election administrators; and require all counting boards to use the uniform counting procedures specified."

Constitutionality: Prior voting machine law was not invalid for being in violation of Art. IX, sec. 1, 1889 Mont. Const. (now Art. IV, sec. 1, 1972 Mont. Const.). That section provided that all elections shall be "by ballot". The term "ballot" was employed in that section not to designate a piece of paper but rather to designate a method to ensure the secrecy and integrity of the popular vote. *State ex rel. Fenner v. Advisers who are public officers or employees shall serve without additional compensation other than expenses of attending the examination if the examination takes place during their regular working hours.

2003 Amendment: Chapter 414 substituted current text concerning requirements for voting systems for former text that read: "A voting machine or device may not be approved unless:

(1) an elector can vote in secrecy;

(2) an elector is prevented from voting for any candidate or upon any ballot issue more than once and is also prevented from voting on any office or ballot issue for which he is not entitled to vote;

(4) an elector can vote a split ticket in a general election if he desires;

(5) every valid vote cast is registered and recorded;

(6) the machine or device is constructed so that it cannot be tampered with for a fraudulent purpose and is also constructed so that during the progress of the voting no individual can see or know the number of votes registered for any candidate or on any ballot issue;

Statement of Intent: The statement of intent that accompanied SB 65 (Ch. 571, L. 1979) provided in part: "1. In subsection (1) of section 200 the secretary of state is authorized to adopt rules in accordance with the Montana Administrative Procedure Act relating to the examination and approval for use of voting machines and devices. The rapidly changing technology used to develop these machines and devices makes it impossible to anticipate and address every problem that may occur in determining if a machine or device is desirable for use in Montana. It is the intent of the Legislature that the secretary of state adopt rules specifying criteria for approval that must be met by new types of machines or devices. The secretary of state may find it necessary to adopt additional rules relating to hearings on allowing the use of machines or devices in Montana if a number of companies request approval of their equipment.

2. In subsection (2) of section 200 the secretary of state is required to prescribe rules for the use of the machines and devices approved for use in Montana. The development of new types of machines and devices makes it impossible to provide detailed procedures for local election officials to follow in using machines and devices by statute. The secretary of state should provide, by rule, the same type of procedural guidance given by statutory law for elections conducted by paper ballots in those cases when the procedures need to be different than those used for paper ballot elections. Rules prescribed under this authority shall include specific procedures needed to insure that the machine or device is working properly and has not been tampered with, special procedures needed to count or record the votes cast, and special procedures to be used during a recount."

Case Notes

Process for Establishing County Building Code Jurisdictional Area Based on Franchise Limitation Unconstitutional: The 2001 Legislature enacted Senate Bill No. 242 (SB 242), which established a process for designating a county building code jurisdictional area and eliminating municipal jurisdictional areas by an election procedure limited to record owners of real property instead of the general constituency. When questioned regarding the constitutionality of the process, the Supreme Court noted that because voting rights cases involve a fundamental political right, strict scrutiny required the state to demonstrate a compelling governmental interest in restricting the voting franchise. The court concluded that: (1) the application and enforcement of building codes is an issue of public safety that affects all persons living in the area, not just record owners of real property; (2) governmental entities that oversee building codes are not special-purpose units whose functions and actions exclusively or disproportionately affect record owners of real property over other constituents in the area that do not own real property; and (3) elections to determine who may impose and enforce building codes in a given area are general interest elections rather than special interest elections. The state failed to show a compelling interest in limiting the voting franchise to only record owners of real property, and because the valid provisions of SB 242 were not severable from the invalid provisions, the court held that SB 242 was invalid in its entirety. (However, see Ch. 443, L. 2003, wherein the Legislature amended the voting procedure to address the franchise limitation.) Finke v. State ex rel. McGrath, 2003 MT 48, 314 M 314, 65 P3d 576 (2003). Attorney General's Opinions

Who May Vote in Elections Concerning Municipal Jurisdictional Areas: Prior to 2001, state law provided authority for municipal governments, with the consent of the counties in which they were located, to exercise building code enforcement jurisdiction in an area within 4.5 miles of the city known as the municipal jurisdictional area or donut area. The 2001 Legislature sought to eliminate that extraterritorial municipal jurisdiction by providing for county elections on various provisions allowing for either county or municipal building code enforcement. The question arose as to who should vote in the elections. The Attorney General held that real property owners, as defined in 50-60-101, in the jurisdictional area in question were the proper electorate. Under this section, a ballot list must be compiled that includes every record owner of real property in the county or municipal jurisdictional area who fits the definition of owner and whose ownership interest appears of record, and county election officials should use the property records in existence on the date 30 days prior to the election day to determine who is eligible to vote. 49 A.G. Op. 11 (2001).

Return of Mail Ballot by Person Other Than Elector — Election Valid: Official county voter records showed that 19 ballots in a mail ballot election, including ballots of two of the plaintiffs, were returned by persons other than the elector, which plaintiffs claimed violated 13-19-106 and 13-19-306 through 13-19-308, warranting invalidation of the election. Absent any hint of voter fraud, the fact that ballots were delivered by family members or election employees did not constitute a substantial deviation from mail ballot election guidelines sufficient to void the election results. *Drummond v. CHAPTER 27
BALLOT ISSUES*Chapter Case Notes

Nonjusticiable Ballot Measure Controversy Dismissed: Proponents for a 2006 ballot measure petitioned the Supreme Court to reverse the District Court's invalidation of the legal sufficiency of the ballot measure to allow the measure to be placed on the ballot. However, the Supreme Court previously held in Montanans for Justice: Vote No on CI-98 v. St., 2006 MT 277, 334 M 237, 146 P3d 759 (2006), that the ballot measure was invalid and that no votes for the measure would be counted. Lacking jurisdiction over nonjusticiable matters, the Supreme Court may raise questions of justiciability sua sponte, but moot questions and advisory opinions are among matters that exceed the court's jurisdiction. A question becomes moot when effective relief can no longer be granted, and a justiciable controversy is one upon which the judgment of the court may effectively operate. In this case, even if the Supreme Court determined that the District Court erred when it overruled the Attorney General's determination of legal sufficiency, votes for the initiative could not be counted because the Secretary of State's certification of the ballot measure was invalidated in Montanans for Justice. Additionally, the decision in Montanans for Justice ensured that any judgment in the present case would have no effect on the rights of the parties, so this appeal was reduced to a request for an advisory opinion that exceeded the court's jurisdiction. Thus, this nonjusticiable appeal was dismissed. Not in Montana: Citizens Against CI-97 v. St., 2006 MT 278, 334 M 265, 147 P3d 174 (2006).

Challenge to Ballot Issue Timely — Laches Inapplicable: Proponents of a ballot issue contended that the opponents negligently delayed asserting their rights to challenge the issue and that the opponents' claim was therefore barred by laches. Laches applies when a claimant has unreasonably delayed or has been negligent in asserting the claim, to the prejudice of the party against whom relief is sought. The argument failed on two grounds. First, the proponents failed to raise laches in their answer to the complaint, and laches cannot be raised for the first time on appeal, so the defense was procedurally barred. Second, the opponents brought their claim within the narrow 30-day window after the ballot issues were certified, so it could not be reasonably argued that the opponents waited until the claim was stale before asserting it. Thus, the claim was not barred by laches. Montanans for Justice: Vote No on CI-98 v. St., 2006 MT 277, 334 M 237, 146 P3d 759 (2006).

Expedited Hearing on Validity of Ballot Measure Not Violative of Procedural Due Process: Opponents to a ballot measure timely filed a challenge, and the District Court expedited the hearing and denied the proponents additional time for discovery. On appeal, the proponents asserted that their due process rights were violated by the District Court's actions. The Supreme Court disagreed. The requirements for a procedural due process claim are notice and opportunity for a hearing appropriate to the nature of the case. The proponents could not claim lack of notice because: (1) the opponents' complaint was sufficiently specific to put the proponents on notice that the opponents contested the validity of addresses listed by paid signature gatherers; (2) the proponents acknowledged that the Secretary of State notified them during the signature gathering process that complaints had been received related to address falsification; and (3) denial of additional time for discovery regarding address falsification did not prejudice the proponents because the signature gatherers were contacted, hired, and paid by the proponents, so any information regarding the true addresses was within the exclusive knowledge of the proponents. The due process claim of lack of a meaningful hearing was also denied by the Supreme Court. The record showed that the proponents failed to use the time allocated for discovery or to avail themselves of available procedural remedies. The proponents did not answer the opponents' complaint, request any discovery, move for a continuance, take any depositions, file a pretrial brief, attend depositions conducted by the opponents, file proposed findings of fact or conclusions of law, or object to the District Court's proposed expedited schedule. Thus, any deprivation of a meaningful hearing was more a construct of the proponents' own failure to act than it was a function of the District Court's denial of more time for trial preparation. The proponents' due process claim failed. Montanans for Justice: Vote No on CI-98 v. St., 2006 MT 277, 334 M 237, 146 P3d 759 (2006), distinguishing Wilson v. Dept. of Public Service Regulation, 260 M 167, 858 P2d 368 (1993).

No Constitutional Conflict in Initiative Absent Enactment — Time for Objections: In considering the question of a constitutional conflict in an initiative measure that, if enacted, would abolish property taxes, the Supreme Court declined to intervene in the initiative process prior to a vote absent extraordinary causes, finding that it would be an unjustified infringement of the people's initiative rights to remove the measure from the ballot. The court noted that no constitutional conflict existed until and unless the measure passed by popular vote and that the time period until the effective date would allow sufficient time to raise objections to the measure. State ex rel. Mont. School Bd. Ass'n v. Waltermire, 224 M 296, 729 P2d 1297, 43 St. Rep. 2198 (1986).

Legislative Resolution in Excess of Initiative Power: In this original proceeding for a Writ of Injunction, plaintiffs sought an order declaring a constitutional initiative void and unconstitutional. The initiative, if adopted by the voters, would have amended the Montana Constitution to direct the 1985 Legislature to adopt a resolution requesting Congress to call a constitutional convention for the sole purpose of adopting a balanced budget amendment. It also would have required that if the resolution was not adopted within 90 legislative days, the Legislature would remain in session without pay until the resolution was adopted. The Supreme Court, in granting injunctive relief, held that although the initiative was in form a constitutional amendment, it was in substance a legislative resolution. The initiative power conferred by the Montana Constitution does not include the power to enact a legislative resolution. The electorate cannot circumvent the constitution by indirectly doing that which can be done directly. State ex rel. Harper v. Waltermire, 213 M 425, 691 P2d 826, 41 St. Rep. 2212 (1984).

Judicial Interpretation of Initiatives — Rules: The rules applicable to judicial interpretation of legislation enacted by the Legislature apply to the interpretation of initiatives. State ex rel. Palmer v. Hart, 201 M 526, 655 P2d 965, 39 St. Rep. 2277 (1982).

Case Notes

No Mandamus to Certify Signatures: A Writ of Mandate may not be issued to control discretion, absent an abuse thereof. The function of the County Clerk and Recorder in deciding if signatures on a petition for a ballot issue are "signed in substantially the same manner" as the signatures on the voter registry cards involves the exercise of discretion. Therefore, the District Court properly refused to issue a Writ to compel the certification of certain signatures. State ex rel. Miller v. Murray, 183 M 499, 600 P2d 1174 (1979).

Address on Petition for Identification Purposes Only: The only purpose of the address on a petition for a proposed initiative is to aid the Clerk and Recorder in the identification of the signer for certification of the signature. State ex rel. Miller v. Murray, 183 M 499, 600 P2d 1174 (1979).

Case Notes

Signature Gathering Process Permeated by Pervasive and General Pattern and Practice of Fraud and Procedural Noncompliance — Votes for Ballot Issues Not to Be Counted: The District Court held that signature gatherers for three ballot measures engaged in a pervasive and general pattern and practice of fraud and procedural noncompliance. On appeal, the Supreme Court found that: (1) signature gatherers executed affidavits submitting signatures that were gathered outside the signature gatherers' presence in violation of 13-27-302 and this section; (2) 43 signature gatherers gave false or fictitious addresses in their certification affidavits in violation of 13-27-302 and this section; and (3) a significantly large number of signature gatherers engaged in a fraudulent bait-and-switch tactic to induce people who knowingly signed one petition to unknowingly sign the other two petitions. Once opponents established the deceptive practices, it was the proponents' burden to produce evidence to the contrary, but the proponents failed to do so. The District Court was affirmed, and because the signatures gathered in violation of the procedural safeguards tainted the initiative process, the Supreme Court ordered that votes on the ballot measures not be counted to the extent that was technically feasible or, if the votes were counted, that the votes would have no force or effect. Montanans for Justice: Vote No on CI-98 v. St., 2006 MT 277, 334 M 237, 146 P3d 759 (2006).

Case Notes

Severance of Constitutional Amendment Language Not Curative of Defect When Initiative Improperly Submitted to Voters: Constitutional Initiative No. 75 (CI-75) expressly amended three parts of the Montana Constitution without allowing a separate vote on each amendment and thus was unconstitutional under Art. XIV, sec. 11, Mont. Const. Language in the initiative that would have severed the invalid parts from the valid parts could not cure the constitutional defect in CI-75 because the defect was in the submission of CI-75 to voters with more than one constitutional amendment. Marshall v. St., 1999 MT 33, 293 M 274, 975 P2d 325, 56 St. Rep. 142 (1999).

Submission of Constitutional Initiative Amending Three Parts of Constitution Violative of Separate Vote Requirement: Plaintiffs filed an original application for declaration of judgment and injunctive relief, challenging the validity of Constitutional Initiative No. 75 (CI-75), which was passed by the voters and stated that no new tax or tax increase could be enacted unless approved by a majority of the electorate. The initiative amended Art. VIII, Mont. Const., revising state revenue and finance provisions; amended Art. II, sec. 18, Mont. Const., providing that sovereign immunity did not shield public officials or employees from appropriate civil liability for violating CI-75; and provided that notwithstanding the referendum provisions of Art. VI, sec. 10, Mont. Const., before a bill imposing new or increased taxes is referred to the people, the Governor had veto power. The dispositive issue was that CI-75 had two or more constitutional amendments, in violation of Art. XIV, sec. 11, Mont. Const., which is a cogent constitutional recognition of the circumstances under which Montana voters receive constitutional initiatives, namely that a separate vote is required for each proposed constitutional amendment. Citing Armatta v. Kitzhaber, 959 P2d 49 (Oreg. 1998), the Supreme Court held that the separate vote requirement is distinguishable as different and narrower than the single subject requirement in Art. V, sec. 11, Mont. Const., and that to the extent that a constitutional amendment may be valid under the single subject rule but fail under the separate vote rule, holdings to the contrary in State ex rel. Teague v. Bd. of Comm'rs, 34 M 426, 87 P 450 (1906), State ex rel. Hay v. Alderson, 49 M 387, 142 P 210 (1914), and State ex rel. Corry v. Cooney, 70 M 355, 225 P 1007 (1924), were overruled. Because CI-75 expressly amended three parts of the Montana Constitution without allowing a separate vote on each amendment, CI-75 was unconstitutional under Art. XIV, sec. 11, Mont. Const. Marshall v. St., 1999 MT 33, 293 M 274, 975 P2d 325, 56 St. Rep. 142 (1999), following State ex rel. Hinz v. Moody, 71 M 473, 230 P 575 (1924), and Sawyer Stores, Inc. v. Mitchell, 103 M 148, 62 P2d 342 (1936).

Initiative Amendment Void — Material Language Difference — Improper Publication Procedures: The language of an amendment to Art. II, sec. 16, Mont. Const., as filed and certified by the Secretary of State, was not the same language submitted to the voters at the election. Because the difference in language was material and because publication of the proposed initiative prior to election did not follow constitutional mandates, the purported amendment was held to be void. State ex rel. Mont. Citizens for the Preservation of Citizens' Rights v. Waltermire, 227 M 85, 738 P2d 1255, 44 St. Rep. 913 (1987). Petitions for rehearing, reconsideration, and clarification denied, 44 St. Rep. 929A (1987).

Attaching Title and Text Mandatory: Section 37-102, R.C.M. 1947 (now repealed), requiring that the sheets provided for signatures on a petition must be attached to a full and correct copy of the title and text thereof, was mandatory and not directory, because its purpose was to advise signers as to the contents of the proposed law, especially where question of noncompliance is raised prior to election. Ford v. Mitchell, 103 M 99, 61 P2d 815 (1936).

Difference in Text of Petitions: When two petitions differed substantially in text of the proposed law, they could not be considered as parts of one petition for the purpose of the sufficiency of the number of signatures. Ford v. Mitchell, 103 M 99, 61 P2d 815 (1936).

former second sentence that read: "The sample petition may not be submitted to the secretary of state more than 1 year prior to the final date for filing the signed petition with the county election administrator", inserted second sentence regarding rejection of the proposed issue, at beginning of third sentence inserted "If accepted", after "copy of the" substituted "proposed issue and statements" for "petition sheet", and at end after "general for" substituted "a determination as to the legal sufficiency of the issue and for approval of the petitioner's ballot statements and for a determination pursuant to 13-27-312 as to whether a fiscal note is necessary" for "approval", and deleted former fourth through tenth sentences that read: "The secretary of state and attorney general shall each review the petition for sufficiency as to form and approve or reject the form of the petition, stating the reasons for rejection, if any. The attorney general shall also review the petition as to its legal sufficiency. If the attorney general determines that the petition is legally deficient, the attorney general shall notify the secretary of state of that fact and provide a copy of the determination to the secretary of state and to the petitioner within the time provided in 13-27-312(8). The petition may not be given final approval by the secretary of state unless the attorney general's determination is overruled pursuant to 13-27-316. As used in this section, "legal sufficiency" means that the petition complies with the statutory prerequisites to submission of the proposed measure to the electors and that the text of the proposed measure complies with constitutional requirements governing submission of ballot measures to the electorate. Review of a petition for legal sufficiency does not include consideration of the merits or application of the measure if adopted by the voters. The secretary of state or the attorney general may not reject the petition solely because the text contains material not submitted to the legislative services division unless the material not submitted to the legislative services division is a substantive change not suggested by the legislative services division"; in (5)(a) after "review the" substituted "legal sufficiency opinion and ballot statements of the petitioner, as approved by the attorney general" for "comments and statements of the attorney general" and at end after "13-27-312" deleted "and make a final decision as to the approval or rejection of the petition"; inserted (5)(b) outlining the secretary of state's actions upon approval of a proposed issue; in (5)(c) at beginning inserted "If the attorney general rejects the proposed issue" and after "submitted the" substituted "proposed issue of the rejection, including the attorney general's legal sufficiency opinion" for "petition sheet of the approval or rejection of the form of the petition within 28 days after submission of the petition sheet"; in (5)(d) at end substituted "proposed issue" for "petition sheet"; deleted former (5) and (6) that read: "(5) A petition with technical defects in form may be approved with the condition that those defects will be corrected before the petition is circulated for signatures.

(6) The secretary of state shall upon request provide the person submitting the petition with a sample petition form, including the text of the proposed measure, the statement of purpose, and the statements of implication, all as approved by the secretary of state and the attorney general. The petition may be circulated by a signature gatherer in the form of the sample prepared by the secretary of state. The petition may be circulated by a signature gatherer upon approval of the form of the petition by the secretary of state and the attorney general pending a final determination of its legal sufficiency"; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective May 11, 2007.

2003 Amendment: Chapter 323 in (6) in two places inserted "by a signature gatherer". Amendment effective July 1, 2003.

2001 Amendment: Chapter 537 in (4)(b) deleted former second sentence and former (4)(b)(i) and (4)(b)(ii) that read: "The secretary of state shall send written notice to the person who submitted the petition sheet of the final approval or rejection of the petition within 5 days of:

(i) the date on which a final court decision is entered under 13-27-316 if a challenge to the attorney general's review of the petition is filed pursuant to that section; or

(ii) the expiration of the time for filing a challenge to the attorney general's review under 13-27-316 if no challenge is filed. If the petition is rejected, the notice must include reasons for rejection"; and inserted (4)(c) requiring the secretary of state to notify the person who submitted the petition sheet if an action is filed challenging the validity of the petition. Amendment effective October 1, 2001.

1999 Amendment: Chapter 191 at end of second sentence in (3) substituted "county election administrator" for "secretary of state" and inserted fifth, sixth, seventh, eighth, and ninth sentences requiring attorney general to review petition for legal sufficiency, providing procedures upon determination of legal insufficiency, defining legal sufficiency, and providing that review for legal sufficiency does not include consideration of merits or application if adopted; at end of (4)(a) substituted "the petition" for "the form of the petition"; in first sentence in (4)(b) after "rejection" inserted "of the form of the petition" and inserted second sentence and (4)(b)(i) requiring secretary of state to send written notice to petitioner of final approval or rejection of petition within 5 days of final court decision challenging attorney general's review; at beginning of (4)(b)(ii) inserted first sentence allowing approval or rejection by time of expiration of filing time to challenge attorney general's review if no challenge is filed; inserted third sentence in (6) allowing petition to be circulated upon approval of form by secretary of state and attorney general pending final determination of legal sufficiency; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective October 1, 1999.

Applicability: Section 5, Ch. 191, L. 1999, provided: "[This act] applies to initiative petitions submitted to the secretary of state after October 1, 1999."

1997 Amendment: Chapter 42 in (1)(b), before "staff", deleted reference to Council; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective March 12, 1997.

1995 Amendment: Chapter 545 throughout section substituted reference to Legislative Services Division for reference to Legislative Council; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective July 1, 1995.

1995 Transition: Section 81, Ch. 545, L. 1995, provided: "(1) The members of the legislative council, as provided in 5-11-101, the members of the legislative finance committee, as provided in 5-12-202, the members of the legislative audit committee, as provided in 5-13-202, and the members of the environmental quality council, as provided in 5-16-101, must be appointed as soon as possible following [the effective date of this section] [effective April 27, 1995]."

(2) To implement the changes provided in [this act], the office of the legislative council, the office of budget and program planning, and the department of administration shall establish all necessary authorizations during the accounting preparation process known as the "turnaround" process, beginning in April or May 1995, to administer the several appropriations made by any means to programs of the legislative branch agencies consolidated under [sections 3 and 4] [5-2-503 and 5-2-504] for fiscal year 1996 or 1997 or the biennium ending June 30, 1997, as appropriations to a single legislative agency while maintaining the specific identification, legislative intent, and purpose for which the appropriations were made. During this transition, the executive director may authenticate documents as required to accomplish the purposes of [this act]. Appropriate changes on the statewide budgeting and accounting system and the payroll, personnel, and position control system must also be made and authorized as required to accomplish the purposes of [this act].

(3) Personnel and property of the environmental quality council are transferred to the legislative services division effective July 1, 1995."

1991 Amendment: In (3) inserted fifth sentence regarding rejection of a petition based on material not submitted to Legislative Council; in (4), in second sentence after "approval", inserted "or rejection" and substituted third sentence requiring that reasons for rejection be included in petition for former third sentence that read: "The secretary of state shall send written notice if the petition has been rejected, together with reasons for rejection, within 14 days after submission of the petition sheet"; inserted (5) regarding petition with technical defects; and inserted (6) concerning preparation of a sample petition form.

1983 Amendment: Provided for Legislative Council review before submission of sample sheet to Secretary of State by inserting (1) and (2) and deleting former (1)(b) relating to Legislative Council review after such submission.

1981 Amendment: Inserted "containing the text of the proposed measure" after "sample sheet" in the first sentence of (1); inserted subsection (1)(b) referring to review by the Legislative Council.

Case Notes

Sufficiency of Title of 1988 Welfare Referendum — Applicable Standard: The title of a referendum "allowing the legislature greater discretion to determine the eligibility, duration, and level of economic assistance and social services to those in need" was found by the Supreme Court to be legally sufficient after applying the constitutional requirement of clarity of title set out in Art. V, sec. 11, Mont. Const., and employing the rules of construction developed under State ex rel. Wenzel v. Murray, 178 M 441, 585 P2d 633 (1978), and St. v. McKinney, 29 M 375, 74 P 1095 (1904). The court refused to intervene to remove the referendum from the ballot prior to a vote of the people so as not to violate the constitutional rights of popular sovereignty and self-government. Recognizing important distinctions between the processes of referendum and initiative, the standard applied to the referendum was the same applied to examination of the title of other products of the Legislature. The court affirmed the District Court finding of no statutory authority for preelection nullification of a legislative referendum and noted a strong presumption in favor of the constitutionality of legislative enactments. The ballot language was not purposely misleading and sufficiently identified the measure to provide for an informed vote. Harper v. Greely, 234 M 259, 763 P2d 650, 45 St. Rep. 1889 (1988), distinguishing *State ex rel. Misleading Summary of Proposed Initiative: Under section 37-104.1, R.C.M. 1947 (now repealed), an Attorney General's summary of a proposed initiative which could mislead the voters because it was not a "true and impartial statement of the purpose of the measure in plain, easily understood language" was improper. Jordan v. Murray, 171 M 29, 554 P2d 749 (1976).

Revisions of Attorney General's Summary: Section 37-106, R.C.M. 1947 (now repealed), gave the Attorney General the authority to revise his summary of a proposed initiative. Jordan v. Murray, 171 M 29, 554 P2d 749 (1976).

Judicial Decision Invalidating Constitutional Amendments — Constitutional Language and Statutory Implementation Language Restored: In 2002, Montana voters approved Constitutional Amendment Nos. 37 and 38, along with statutory implementing provisions, to modify county distribution requirements for signatures to qualify an initiative petition for the ballot. In Mont. PIRG v. Johnson, CV 03-183-M-DWM (D.C. Mont. 2005), a federal District Court held that the amended distribution requirements resulted in an unequal treatment of qualified electors in different counties and were unconstitutional on their face and invalid. The Attorney General cited State ex rel. Woodahl v. District Court, 162 M 283, 511 P2d 318 (1973), in concluding that the nullification of the constitutional amendments by the judicial decision invalidating the county distribution requirements restored the language of the constitution and implementing statutes as they existed before the approval of the invalid amendments. 51 A.G. 1981 Amendments — Composite: Pursuant to sec. 7, Ch. 198, L. 1981, inserted language allowing the court to fine the offender a maximum of $50,000 in lieu of imprisonment or to punish the offender by both a fine and imprisonment.

Chapter 488 inserted (1)(a) referring to number of signatures needed; inserted (1)(b) referring to title of referendum and statement of implication; inserted (1)(c) urging voters to read measure and explaining that signature is only to put measure on ballot; inserted (1)(e) requiring signature to be same as on voter registry card; in (1)(d) changed "a qualified elector of the state" to "a legally registered Montana voter"; deleted "or imprisonment in the state prison for a term not to exceed 10 years", and made changes in phraseology; deleted language relating to the form for petition for referendum.

In preparing the composite for this section, the Code Commissioner did not include the language relating to a $50,000 fine as indicated by Ch. 198 because the apparent intent of Ch. 198, sec. 7(3) and (4), was to provide for a fine of $50,000 only where a felony prison term was provided for and Ch. 488 removed the felony prison term of 10 years.

Case Notes

Severance of Constitutional Amendment Language Not Curative of Defect When Initiative Improperly Submitted to Voters: Constitutional Initiative No. 75 (CI-75) expressly amended three parts of the Montana Constitution without allowing a separate vote on each amendment and thus was unconstitutional under Art. XIV, sec. 11, Mont. Const. Language in the initiative that would have severed the invalid parts from the valid parts could not cure the constitutional defect in CI-75 because the defect was in the submission of CI-75 to voters with more than one constitutional amendment. Marshall v. St., 1999 MT 33, 293 M 274, 975 P2d 325, 56 St. Rep. 142 (1999).

Submission of Constitutional Initiative Amending Three Parts of Constitution Violative of Separate Vote Requirement: Plaintiffs filed an original application for declaration of judgment and injunctive relief, challenging the validity of Constitutional Initiative No. 75 (CI-75), which was passed by the voters and stated that no new tax or tax increase could be enacted unless approved by a majority of the electorate. The initiative amended Art. VIII, Mont. Const., revising state revenue and finance provisions; amended Art. II, sec. 18, Mont. Const., providing that sovereign immunity did not shield public officials or employees from appropriate civil liability for violating CI-75; and provided that notwithstanding the referendum provisions of Art. VI, sec. 10, Mont. Const., before a bill imposing new or increased taxes is referred to the people, the Governor had veto power. The dispositive issue was that CI-75 had two or more constitutional amendments, in violation of Art. XIV, sec. 11, Mont. Const., which is a cogent constitutional recognition of the circumstances under which Montana voters receive constitutional initiatives, namely that a separate vote is required for each proposed constitutional amendment. Citing Armatta v. Kitzhaber, 959 P2d 49 (Oreg. 1998), the Supreme Court held that the separate vote requirement is distinguishable as different and narrower than the single subject requirement in Art. V, sec. 11, Mont. Const., and that to the extent that a constitutional amendment may be valid under the single subject rule but fail under the separate vote rule, holdings to the contrary in State ex rel. Teague v. Bd. of Comm'rs, 34 M 426, 87 P 450 (1906), State ex rel. Hay v. Alderson, 49 M 387, 142 P 210 (1914), and State ex rel. Corry v. Cooney, 70 M 355, 225 P 1007 (1924), were overruled. Because CI-75 expressly amended three parts of the Montana Constitution without allowing a separate vote on each amendment, CI-75 was unconstitutional under Art. XIV, sec. 11, Mont. Const. Marshall v. St., 1999 MT 33, 293 M 274, 975 P2d 325, 56 St. Rep. 142 (1999), following State ex rel. Hinz v. Moody, 71 M 473, 230 P 575 (1924), and Sawyer Stores, Inc. v. Mitchell, 103 M 148, 62 P2d 342 (1936).

Initiative Amendment Void — Material Language Difference — Improper Publication Procedures: The language of an amendment to Art. II, sec. 16, Mont. Const., as filed and certified by the Secretary of State, was not the same language submitted to the voters at the election. Because the difference in language was material and because publication of the proposed initiative prior to election did not follow constitutional mandates, the purported amendment was held to be void. State ex rel. Mont. Citizens for the Preservation of Citizens' Rights v. Waltermire, 227 M 85, 738 P2d 1255, 44 St. Rep. 913 (1987). Petitions for rehearing, reconsideration, and clarification denied, 44 St. Rep. 929A (1987).

Attorney General's Opinions

Judicial Decision Invalidating Constitutional Amendments — Constitutional Language and Statutory Implementation Language Restored: In 2002, Montana voters approved Constitutional Amendment Nos. 37 and 38, along with statutory implementing provisions, to modify county distribution requirements for signatures to qualify an initiative petition for the ballot. In Mont. PIRG v. Johnson, CV 03-183-M-DWM (D.C. Mont. 2005), a federal District Court held that the amended distribution requirements resulted in an unequal treatment of qualified electors in different counties and were unconstitutional on their face and invalid. The Attorney General cited State ex rel. Woodahl v. District Court, 162 M 283, 511 P2d 318 (1973), in concluding that the nullification of the constitutional amendments by the judicial decision invalidating the county distribution requirements restored the language of the constitution and implementing statutes as they existed before the approval of the invalid amendments. 51 A.G. Part 3

Submission and Processing of Petitions

Part Case Notes

Specific Intent to Place Referendum on Primary Ballot as Overriding General Filing Time Provisions: Petitioners argued that because a legislative referendum was passed less than 6 months before the special election at which it was, by order of the Legislature, to be placed on the ballot and because the referendum was therefore necessarily submitted to the Attorney General less than the 6 months before the election required by subsection (2) of 13-27-310 (now repealed), it should be removed from the ballot as violative of the time constraints in subsection (2) of 13-27-310 (now repealed). However, the statement of particular intent in the referendum that the measure appear on the special election ballot controlled over the statement of general intent in 13-27-310 (now repealed), and a petition for a writ of injunction preventing placement of the measure on the ballot was therefore denied. State ex rel. Gould v. Cooney, 253 M 90, 831 P2d 593, 49 St. Rep. 410 (1992).

Petitions Once Lodged With Clerk Not Returnable: Under section 37-103, R.C.M. 1947 (now repealed), after referendum petitions had been lodged with the County Clerk they could not be returned by him to the persons delivering them, since he was required to forward them, with certificate attached, to the Secretary of State. State ex rel. Holloran v. McGrath, 104 M 490, 67 P2d 838 (1937).

Referendum Petitions Open to Inspection by Public: Irrespective of whether or not referendum petitions constitute public records and as such are open to inspection, they are “other matters” within the meaning of 2-6-104, which declares that “public records and other matters in the office of any officer” are open to the inspection of any person during office hours. Therefore, mandamus is proper to compel the County Clerk to permit inspection. State ex rel. Holloran v. McGrath, 104 M 490, 67 P2d 838 (1937).

2003 Amendment: Chapter 323 in text of affidavit sample near beginning substituted "person who is the signature gatherer), swear that I gathered or assisted in gathering the signatures on the petition to which this affidavit is attached on the stated dates" for "person who circulated this petition), swear that I circulated or assisted in circulating the petition to which this affidavit is attached", inserted provision for date first signature was gathered, and in both places under signature lines substituted "signature gatherer" for "circulator"; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective July 1, 2003.

2001 Amendment: Chapter 537 in affidavit form near end of paragraph after "registered at the address" inserted "or have the telephone number"; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective October 1, 2001.

1999 Amendment: Chapter 51 near beginning of petition form after "petition)" substituted "swear" for "affirm, or being first sworn, depose and say" and near end after "day of" substituted "20..." for "19..."; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective January 1, 2000.

1981 Amendment: Inserted "are the signatures of Montana electors who are registered at the address following their signature" near the middle of the affirmation; inserted "address of petition circulator" following affirmation; made minor changes in phraseology.

Case Notes

Signature Gathering Process Permeated by Pervasive and General Pattern and Practice of Fraud and Procedural Noncompliance — Votes for Ballot Issues Not to Be Counted: The District Court held that signature gatherers for three ballot measures engaged in a pervasive and general pattern and practice of fraud and procedural noncompliance. On appeal, the Supreme Court found that: (1) signature gatherers executed affidavits submitting signatures that were gathered outside the signature gatherers' presence in violation of 13-27-111 and this section; (2) 43 signature gatherers gave false or fictitious addresses in their certification affidavits in violation of 13-27-111 and this section; and (3) a significantly large number of signature gatherers engaged in a fraudulent bait-and-switch tactic to induce people who knowingly signed one petition to unknowingly sign the other two petitions. Once opponents established the deceptive practices, it was the proponents' burden to produce evidence to the contrary, but the proponents failed to do so. The District Court was affirmed, and because the signatures gathered in violation of the procedural safeguards tainted the initiative process, the Supreme Court ordered that votes on the ballot measures not be counted to the extent that was technically feasible or, if the votes were counted, that the votes would have no force or effect. Montanans for Justice: Vote No on CI-98 v. St., 2006 MT 277, 334 M 237, 146 P3d 759 (2006).

Challenging Qualifications of Signers: Section 37-103, R.C.M. 1947 (now repealed), did not purport to make the County Clerk's certificate conclusive. Therefore, the qualifications of persons signing the petition could be inquired into by the courts if the question was presented before the election. Martin v. Highway Comm'n, 107 M 603, 88 P2d 41 (1939).

Manner of Withdrawal of Signatures: Certification of petitions for the withdrawal of signatures appearing on petitions for initiation of a measure, in the form prescribed by section 37-103, R.C.M. 1947 (now repealed), for certification of original petitions, was prima facie sufficient to show qualification and genuineness of signatures. Ford v. Mitchell, 103 M 99, 61 P2d 815 (1936).

2003 Amendment: Chapter 323 in (2) near beginning substituted "referendum or a call of a constitutional convention" for "ballot issue". Amendment effective July 1, 2003.

1995 Amendment: Chapter 374 in (2), near middle after "before", substituted "the first gubernatorial election following the filing of" for "members of the house of representatives have been elected and qualified under" and at end substituted "new districts must be used with the number of signatures needed for each legislative representative district being the total votes cast for governor in the last gubernatorial election divided by the number of legislative representative districts" for "legislative representative districts among which the signatures must be allocated must be those in existence when the plan was filed". Amendment effective April 12, 1995.

1987 Amendment: At beginning of (1) substituted "Except as required by 13-27-104, within 4 weeks after receiving the sheets or sections of a petition, the county official" for "The county official receiving the sheets or sections of a petition"; and inserted (3) allowing, upon discovery of fraudulent or duplicate signatures, submission of names to County Attorney for investigation.

Case Notes

Address on Petition for Identification Purposes Only: The only purpose of the address on a petition for a proposed initiative is to aid the Clerk and Recorder in the identification of the signer for certification of the signature. State ex. rel. Miller v. Murray, 183 M 499, 600 P2d 1174 (1979).

No Mandamus to Certify Signatures: A Writ of Mandate may not be issued to control discretion, absent an abuse thereof. The function of the County Clerk and Recorder in deciding if signatures on a petition for a ballot issue are "signed in substantially the same manner" as the signatures on the voter registry cards involves the exercise of discretion. Therefore, the District Court properly refused to issue a Writ to compel the certification of certain signatures. State ex rel. Miller v. Murray, 183 M 499, 600 P2d 1174 (1979).

Attorney General's Opinions

Address on Petition Different From That on Voter Registry Card: A signature of a properly registered voter on a petition for a ballot measure should not be disqualified if the address on the petition is not the same as the address on the voter registry card. 39 A.G. Op. 50 (1982).

Case Notes

Initiative Amendment Void — Material Language Difference — Improper Publication Procedures: The language of an amendment to Art. II, sec. 16, Mont. Const., as filed and certified by the Secretary of State, was not the same language submitted to the voters at the election. Because the difference in language was material and because publication of the proposed initiative prior to election did not follow constitutional mandates, the purported amendment was held to be void. State ex rel. Mont. Citizens for the Preservation of Citizens' Rights v. Waltermire, 227 M 85, 738 P2d 1255, 44 St. Rep. 913 (1987). Petitions for rehearing, reconsideration, and clarification denied, 44 St. Rep. 929A (1987).

Summary of Constitutional Amendment Insufficient: Article XIV, sec. 9, Mont. Const., requires "the amendment" in a constitutional initiative to be published as provided by law. The provision in 13-27-311 that "[a] summary of the amendment" would suffice itself constitutes an amendment to the constitution insofar as initiatives are concerned and should not be allowed. Any initiative amendment adopted in this statutory manner is void. State ex rel. Mont. Citizens for the Preservation of Citizens' Rights v. Waltermire, 227 M 85, 738 P2d 1255, 44 St. Rep. 913 (1987). Petitions for rehearing, reconsideration, and clarification denied, 44 St. Rep. 929A (1987).

Referenda: Legislature, by repealing section 537, R.C.M. 1935, and leaving in effect section 23-201, R.C.M. 1947 (now repealed), requiring publication of proposed constitutional amendments, indicated its intent to dispense with publication prior to general election both of legislative acts referred to the people by the Legislature and of the Governor's proclamation that such act would be voted upon at such election. *Nordquist v. 13-27-312. Review of proposed ballot issue and statements by attorney general — preparation of fiscal note.

Compiler's Comments

2007 Amendment: Chapter 481 in (1) near beginning after "receipt of a" substituted "proposed ballot issue and statements" for "petition", near middle after "examine the" substituted "proposed issue for" for "petition as to form", and after "provided in" substituted "this section and shall determine whether the ballot statements comply with the requirements of this section" for "13-27-202, and, if the proposed ballot issue has an effect on the revenue, expenditures, or the fiscal liability of the state, shall order a fiscal note incorporating an estimate of the effect, the substance of which must substantially comply with the provisions of 5-4-205. The budget director, in cooperation with the agency or agencies affected by the petition, is responsible for preparing the fiscal note and shall return it within 6 days unless the attorney general, for good cause shown, extends the time for completing the fiscal note"; in (2) in introductory clause at beginning of first sentence deleted "If the petition form is approved" and after "shall" inserted "in reviewing the ballot statements" and inserted second sentence requiring attorney general review; in (2)(a) after "purpose of the" and in (2)(b) at end substituted "issue" for "measure"; in (3) inserted first two sentences regarding preparation of a fiscal note and at beginning of third sentence inserted "If the fiscal note indicates a fiscal impact", near middle after "50 words" deleted "if a fiscal note was prepared for the proposed ballot issue", and near end after "if the" substituted "issue" for "measure"; in (4) at beginning after "The" substituted "ballot statements" for "statement of purpose and the statements of implication" and at end substituted "issue" for "measure" and deleted former second sentence that read: "Statements of implication must be written so that a positive vote indicates support for the measure and a negative vote indicates opposition to the measure"; in (5) in two places substituted "issue" for "measure"; in (6) near beginning after "must be" inserted "written so that a positive vote indicates support for the issue and a negative vote indicates opposition to the issue and must be"; deleted former (7) that read: "(7) If the petition is rejected as to form, the attorney general shall forward the comments to the secretary of state within 21 days after receipt of the petition by the attorney general. If the petition is approved as to form, the attorney general shall forward the statement of purpose, the statements of implication, and the fiscal statement, if applicable, to the secretary of state within 21 days after receipt of the petition by the attorney general"; inserted (7) regarding review of the proposed ballot issue for legal sufficiency; in (8)(a) at beginning deleted "If the petition is approved as to form", after "30 days" substituted "after receipt of the proposed issue from the secretary of state" for "of the approval", and at end after "state" substituted "an opinion as to the issue's legal sufficiency" for "the determination regarding legal sufficiency, as provided in 13-27-202"; inserted (8)(b) concerning actions following a determination that a proposed ballot issue is legally sufficient; inserted (8)(c) concerning actions following a determination that a proposed ballot issue is not legally sufficient; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective May 11, 2007.

Severability: Section 29, Ch. 481, L. 2007, was a severability clause.

2003 Amendment: Chapter 132 in (4) inserted second sentence requiring that statements of implication be written so that a positive vote indicates support and a negative vote indicates opposition; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective October 1, 2003.

1999 Amendment: Chapter 191 in first sentence in (1) inserted "legal sufficiency, as provided in 13-27-202"; inserted (8) requiring attorney general to forward to secretary of state within 30 days determination regarding legal sufficiency if petition form is approved; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective October 1, 1999.

Applicability: Section 5, Ch. 191, L. 1999, provided: "[This act] applies to initiative petitions submitted to the secretary of state after October 1, 1999."

1991 Amendment: In (2), in second sentence, substituted "shall prepare" for reference to appointment by Attorney General of a five-member committee to recommend the statement of purpose and statement of implication; deleted former (2) that read: "(2) The attorney general may accept, reject, or modify the statements recommended by the committee. If the committee is unable to recommend one or both statements, the attorney general shall prepare the statements"; in (5), after "purpose", deleted "prepared pursuant to subsection (1) or (2)"; in (6), near beginning after "similar to", inserted "but not limited to"; in (7), in first sentence, increased from 10 days to 21 days the time allowed Attorney General to forward comments if a petition is rejected; and made minor change in style.

1985 Amendment: Deleted brackets around entire (3); bracketed subsection was amendatory language in Ch. 336, L. 1981, to former subsection (2) which was deleted by Ch. 488, L. 1981. The Code Commissioner had included the language in brackets in 1981 because it appeared to reflect a separable concept not in conflict with Ch. 488 and the apparent intent was to incorporate the concept into the law.

1981 Amendments — Composite Section: Chapter 336 inserted the material relating to fiscal liability and a fiscal note after "petition as to form" in the first sentence through "completing the fiscal note" in the second sentence in (1); inserted subsection (3) referring to fiscal statement; and inserted "and the fiscal statement if applicable" after "implication" in (7).

Chapter 488 rewrote subsection (1), adding subsections (1)(a) and (1)(b) to change a requirement that attorney general prepare a statement explaining the purpose of the measure and a separate requirement that he prepare a statement of the implication of a vote for or against a ballot issue to a requirement that the attorney general "seek out parties on both sides of the issue and obtain their advice" and "if he deems it necessary, appoint a five member committee to recommend the statements" and inserted provisions relating to committee composition and manner of arriving at statements and requisites for statements in (1); inserted (2) allowing attorney general to accept, reject, or modify statements or to prepare statements in certain cases; and inserted (4) requiring statements of purpose and implication to be true and unbiased.

In preparation of the composite of the Ch. 336 and Ch. 488 amendments to this section, the Code Commissioner omitted from the composite the Ch. 336 amendment to former subsection (2) which raised the restriction in the number of words allowable in a statement of implication prepared by the attorney general from 25 to 50 words because former subsection (2) was entirely deleted by Ch. 488, which is in the nature of a repealer (see 1-2-204) and the increase directly conflicts with the new language of subsection (1)(b), which was added by Ch. 488, specifically designating the number of words allowable. Any inconsistency between the official enrolled bill and the MCA is to be resolved in favor of the official enrolled bill (see 1-11-103).

Case Notes

Attorney General Statements on Initiative Considered True and Impartial — Judicial Deference to Statements That Meet Statutory Requirements: Plaintiffs challenged the Attorney General's statements of purpose and implication on a ballot initiative that concerned the recall of elected justices and judges when voters determined that appropriate cause existed. The District Court held that the Attorney General's statements satisfied statutory requirements, and plaintiffs appealed, requesting the Supreme Court to rewrite the ballot statements. The Supreme Court applied the standard in Stop Over Spending Mont. v. St., 2006 MT 178, 333 M 42, 139 P3d 788 (2006), that courts will defer to Attorney General statements on ballot initiatives provided the statements meet statutory requirements, noting that this section does not grant proponents or opponents the right to a ballot statement of their choosing. Rather, a statement that explains the ballot measure in ordinary plain language and that is true and impartial and not argumentative or likely to create prejudice for or against the measure is in compliance with the statute. In this case, the statement of purpose was true, and the Attorney General's decision to omit what plaintiffs characterized as salient provisions from the statement of purpose did not prevent voters from casting an intelligent and informed ballot. The Attorney General's statement of implication was true, impartial, and a plainly written explanation of a vote for and against the initiative. Thus, the Supreme Court declined to rewrite the Attorney General's statements and affirmed the District Court. Citizens Right to Recall v. St., 2006 MT 192, 333 M 153, 142 P3d 764 (2006). See also State ex rel. Wenzel v. Murray, 178 M 441, 585 P2d 633 (1978).

District Court's Rewriting of Attorney General's Statements Explaining Initiative Proposal Reversed When Statements Accurate: Plaintiff group sought an initiative petition to include an additional constitutional limit on legislative appropriations to an amount to be determined by applying a formula based on population growth and inflation unless an increase was approved by the electorate. As required, the Attorney General prepared statements explaining the purpose of the measure, the implications of a vote for and against the measure, and a fiscal statement.

Plaintiffs were dissatisfied with the statements and filed a complaint. The District Court determined that all the statements were inaccurate, rewrote the statements, and ordered that the court's statements rather than the Attorney General's be placed on the ballot should the measure qualify. The Attorney General appealed, and the Supreme Court reversed. Employing the rules of construction developed under State ex rel. Wenzel v. Murray, 178 M 441, 585 P2d 633 (1978), the Supreme Court held that the District Court was incorrect in determining that the statement of purpose was inaccurate and omitted salient provisions of the measure. It is not the job of a court to add to the requirements of this section that to be accurate, a statement of the purpose of an initiative must include a description of how it can be enforced or a statement of when it will become effective. Without engaging in a comparison of the statements, the Supreme Court held that the Attorney General's statement of purpose was adequate to meet the statutory requirements to provide a true and impartial explanation of the proposed ballot issue in plain, easily understood language. Likewise, the statement of implication and the fiscal statement were adequate, if not perfect, satisfied statutory requirements, and were not confusing or misleading, and the Supreme Court ordered that the issue be placed on the ballot containing the statements prepared by the Attorney General. Stop Over Spending Mont. v. St., 2006 MT 178, 333 M 42, 139 P3d 788 (2006).

Sufficiency of Title of 1988 Welfare Referendum — Applicable Standard: The title of a referendum "allowing the legislature greater discretion to determine the eligibility, duration, and level of economic assistance and social services to those in need" was found by the Supreme Court to be legally sufficient after applying the constitutional requirement of clarity of title set out in Art. V, sec. 11, Mont. Const., and employing the rules of construction developed under State ex rel. Wenzel v. Murray, 178 M 441, 585 P2d 633 (1978), and St. v. McKinney, 29 M 375, 74 P 1095 (1904). The court refused to intervene to remove the referendum from the ballot prior to a vote of the people so as not to violate the constitutional rights of popular sovereignty and self-government. Recognizing important distinctions between the processes of referendum and initiative, the standard applied to the referendum was the same applied to examination of the title of other products of the Legislature. The court affirmed the District Court finding of no statutory authority for preelection nullification of a legislative referendum and noted a strong presumption in favor of the constitutionality of legislative enactments. The ballot language was not purposely misleading and sufficiently identified the measure to provide for an informed vote. Harper v. Greely, 234 M 259, 763 P2d 650, 45 St. Rep. 1889 (1988), distinguishing State ex rel. Steen v. Murray, 144 M 61, 394 P2d 761 (1964), and State ex rel. Harper v. Waltermire, 213 M 425, 691 P2d 826, 41 St. Rep. 2212 (1984). See also State ex rel. Boese v. Waltermire, 224 M 230, 730 P2d 375, 43 St. Rep. 2156 (1986), and T&W Chevrolet v. Darval, 196 M 287, 641 P2d 1368 (1982).

Initiative Amending Montana Major Facility Siting Act: The Attorney General's explanatory statement regarding Initiative 80, empowering voters to approve or reject any proposed nuclear power facility, did not have to contain the word "ban" or a word of like import. State ex rel. Wenzel v. Murray, 178 M 441, 585 P2d 633 (1978).

Misleading Summary of Proposed Initiative: Under section 32-104.1, R.C.M. 1947 (now repealed), an Attorney General's summary of a proposed initiative which could mislead the voters because it is not a "true and impartial statement of the purpose of the measure in plain, easily understood language" is improper. Jordan v. Murray, 171 M 29, 554 P2d 749 (1976).

Revisions of Attorney General's Summary: Section 37-106, R.C.M. 1947 (now repealed), gave the Attorney General the authority to revise his summary of a proposed initiative. Jordan v. Murray, 171 M 29, 554 P2d 749 (1976).

Length of Title: Although section 37-105, R.C.M. 1947 (now repealed), limited the title of an act referred to the people to 100 words, the fact that Ch. 168, L. 1939, contained 138 words, a point not raised until after the people had approved the act, was merely a procedural defect and as such insufficient to invalidate it, particularly so in view of Ch. 45, L. 1941, validating all bond issues theretofore authorized, thus including the issue for erection of buildings at the State Hospital for the Insane. Nordquist v. Ford, 112 M 278, 114 P2d 1071 (1941).

Legal Requirements Mandatory — Injunction: The law prescribes the necessary steps for submission of an initiative measure to the voters. Such steps are mandatory and must be followed. Under section 37-105, R.C.M. 1947 (now repealed), which required the title to be "descriptive", the title attached to the proposed Initiative Measure No. 39, the "chain store law", under the facts presented was not "descriptive" but deceptive for various reasons. The Supreme Court had jurisdiction to entertain proceeding to enjoin the Secretary of State from certifying the measure to the County Clerks, and a Writ of Injunction was issued. Sawyer Stores, Inc. v. Mitchell, 103 M 148, 62 P2d 342 (1936).

Case Notes

Attorney General Statements on Initiative Considered True and Impartial — Judicial Deference to Statements That Meet Statutory Requirements: Plaintiffs challenged the Attorney General's statements of purpose and implication on a ballot initiative that concerned the recall of elected justices and judges when voters determined that appropriate cause existed. The District Court held that the Attorney General's statements satisfied statutory requirements, and plaintiffs appealed, requesting the Supreme Court to rewrite the ballot statements. The Supreme Court applied the standard in Stop Over Spending Mont. v. St., 2006 MT 178, 333 M 42, 139 P3d 788 (2006), that courts will defer to Attorney General statements on ballot initiatives provided the statements meet statutory requirements, noting that 13-27-312 does not grant proponents or opponents the right to a ballot statement of their choosing. Rather, a statement that explains the ballot measure in ordinary plain language and that is true and impartial and not argumentative or likely to create prejudice for or against the measure is in compliance with the statute. In this case, the statement of purpose was true, and the Attorney General's decision to omit what plaintiffs characterized as salient provisions from the statement of purpose did not prevent voters from casting an intelligent and informed ballot. The Attorney General's statement of implication was true, impartial, and a plainly written explanation of a vote for and against the initiative. Thus, the Supreme Court declined to rewrite the Attorney General's statements and affirmed the District Court. Citizens Right to Recall v. St., 2006 MT 192, 333 M 153, 142 P3d 764 (2006). See also State ex rel. Wenzel v. Murray, 178 M 441, 585 P2d 633 (1978).

Extent of Court Consideration of Constitutional Amendment Initiative: Unless it appears to be absolutely essential, the Supreme Court will not interfere with the right retained by the people to change the Montana Constitution by initiative, and an initiative will not be removed from the ballot prior to vote unless it is clearly unconstitutional on its face or has been improperly submitted. The court will not accept jurisdiction to decide if the statement of purpose and statement of implication are untrue unless the challenge procedure in 13-27-316 is followed. State ex rel. Mont. Citizens for the Preservation of Citizens' Rights v. Waltermire, 224 M 273, 729 P2d 1283, 43 St. Rep. 2192 (1986). See also Stop Over Spending Mont. v. St., 2006 MT 178, 333 M 42, 139 P3d 788 (2006).

Challenged Initiative Title — Reasonableness of Statutory Procedure for Judicial Review: While the 10-day period for filing a challenge to an initiative in District Court is not long, it provides a reasonable procedure for immediate access to the courts by initiative opponents to allow correction of a challenged title in time to allow the initiative to appear on the ballot. State ex rel. Boese v. Waltermire, 224 M 230, 730 P2d 375, 43 St. Rep. 2156 (1986). See also State ex rel. Mont. Citizens for the Preservation of Citizens' Rights v. Waltermire, 224 M 273, 729 P2d 1283, 43 St. Rep. 2192 (1986).

Challenge of Multiplicitous Initiative Subjects — Procedural Review Requirements to Be Met: An opponent who challenges an initiative on the grounds that the title contains more than one subject, in violation of Art. V, sec. 11, Mont. Const., must meet the procedural review requirements of 13-27-316. State ex rel. Boese v. Waltermire, 224 M 230, 730 P2d 375, 43 St. Rep. 2156 (1986). See also State ex rel. Mont. Citizens for the Preservation of Citizens' Rights v. Waltermire, 224 M 273, 729 P2d 1283, 43 St. Rep. 2192 (1986).

Reasonableness of Time Periods: Under 13-27-316(2), certification by the Secretary of State to the Governor of qualification for the ballot triggers the time in which opponents to the measure may act. The opponents have 10 days following certification to file a challenge in District Court. The opponent has the time from the petition's initiation until its certification to prepare the action but is not required to act until it qualifies for the ballot. The statutes then provide for immediate access to the courts. This is a reasonable procedure for challenging the sufficiency of the title of an initiative. St. ex rel. Boese v. Waltermire, 224 M 230, 730 P2d 375, 43 St. Rep. 2156 (1986).

Case Notes

Initiative Amendment Void — Material Language Difference — Improper Publication Procedures: The language of an amendment to Art. II, sec. 16, Mont. Const., as filed and certified by the Secretary of State, was not the same language submitted to the voters at the election. Because the difference in language was material and because publication of the proposed initiative prior to election did not follow constitutional mandates, the purported amendment was held to be void. *State ex rel. Preamble: The preamble attached to Ch. 414, L. 2003, provided: "WHEREAS, the U.S. Supreme Court in Bush v. Gore, 531 U.S. 98 (2000), found that the lack of uniform procedures for determining voter intent in Florida during the 2000 presidential election led to a violation of the U.S. Constitution's Equal Protection Clause of the 14th Amendment; and

WHEREAS, at the request of the 57th Legislature, the State Administration and Veterans' Affairs Interim Committee devoted much of the 2001-2002 interim to a review of Montana election laws with respect to voting systems and counting processes in light of Bush v. Gore; and

WHEREAS, the interim study found that Montana's statutory provisions relating to ballots, voting systems, and vote counting processes needed to be updated, clarified, and in some instances revised to better define uniform standards and procedures to provide equal protection for votes cast by Montana voters; and

WHEREAS, the Subcommittee on Voting Systems of the State Administration and Veterans' Affairs Interim Committee agreed that statutory changes should be made with an eye on future technology but should also standardize current practices to the greatest extent possible.

THEREFORE, this legislation will enable the Secretary of State to adopt a statewide benchmark performance measure that voting systems must meet before they can be approved for use in the state; allow local election administrators to continue to choose which of the approved voting systems should be used locally; require the Secretary of State to adopt uniform statewide rules regarding ballot form, votes and vote counts, and other operational procedures specific to each voting system and to provide training to local election administrators; and require all counting boards to use the uniform counting procedures specified."

Severability Clause: Section 48, Ch. 334, L. 1977, was a severability clause.

Attorney General's Opinions

Servicepersons — Registration to Vote — Tax Liability: The fact that a member of the military service has registered to vote in Montana is evidence, though not conclusive proof, that he is a Montana resident and is thus not exempt, under the federal Soldiers' and Sailors' Civil Relief Act of 1940, from property and income taxation by Montana. Montana's election law requires one to be a resident of Montana before voting in the state's elections, so a serviceperson who has registered to vote in Montana (thereby claiming to be a resident) may not claim tax exemption under the federal Act without offering convincing evidence that he is in fact not a Montana resident after all. However, to claim he is not in fact a resident after having registered to vote in Montana would subject him to prosecution for the misdemeanor of fraudulent registration. 41 A.G. Op. 2 (1985).

Case Notes

Initiative Solicitation in School Polling Place Constitutional: Plaintiff was not allowed to gather signatures for an initiative petition on a general election day in a school building used as a polling place. The school district had a general policy prohibiting solicitation of any kind in school buildings. The District Court granted summary judgment to the school district. On appeal, the Supreme Court said that although this section permits some manner of solicitation at polling places on election day, it does not guarantee the right. The court found the initiative process to be within the protection of Montana's counterparts of the first amendment. This does not assure that the process may not be regulated, however. The court, relying on the time, place, and manner regulations on the right to use public places for expressive activity found in Grayned v. City of Rockford, 408 US 104 (1972), and Tinker v. Des Moines School District, 393 US 503 (1969), found that the school district's policy was not narrowly tailored to further its interests in undisrupted school functioning. The policy applied regardless of whether classes were being held and applied to all solicitors, regardless of whether they acted peaceably. Fear of disruption was not sufficient to overcome the right to freedom of expression. The school district's policy was found unconstitutional. Dorn v. Bd. of Trustees, 203 M 136, 661 P2d 426, 40 St. Rep. 348 (1983).

Legislative Intent — Plain Meaning: Plaintiff was not allowed to gather signatures for an initiative petition on a general election day in a school building used as a polling place. The school district had a general policy prohibiting solicitation of any kind in school buildings. Plaintiff contended the policy violated this section by prohibiting solicitation permitted by that section. The Supreme Court held that its function in construing and applying statutes is to effect legislative intent. The primary tool for ascertaining intent is the plain meaning of the words used. The court properly refers to legislative history only when intent cannot be determined from the content of the statute. This section did not necessitate such an inquiry. The court held that it clearly and unambiguously proscribes a manner of solicitation which results in interference with the election process or obstructing access to and from the polls but in no way guarantees access to persons whose solicitation effects no interference or obstruction. The most that can be said is that some manner of solicitation at polling places on election day may be permitted. Dorn v. Bd. of Trustees, 203 M 136, 661 P2d 426, 40 St. Rep. 348 (1983).

- (d) does not accept in the aggregate more than 5% annually of its total revenue from foreign or domestic for-profit corporations"; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective March 5, 2003.

Preamble: The preamble attached to Ch. 59, L. 2003, provided: "WHEREAS, in Montana Chamber of Commerce v. 1997 Amendment — Rejected: The amendments made by Ch. 294, L. 1997 (House Bill No. 575), were removed from this section because House Bill No. 575 was rejected by the electorate in an initiative referendum held November 3, 1998.

1997 Amendment: Chapter 294 at beginning of (1)(a) deleted "Except as provided in subsection (4)" and in two places, after "candidate", deleted "a ballot issue"; deleted former (4) that read: "(4) The provisions of subsection (1) prohibiting corporate contributions to or expenditures in connection with a ballot issue do not apply to a nonprofit corporation formed for the purpose, among others, of promoting political ideas and that:

1996 Amendment by Initiative: Initiative No. 125, proposed by initiative petition and approved at the general election held November 8, 1996, at beginning of (1)(a) inserted exception clause, inserted (1)(b) defining corporation, and inserted (4) relating to exempting nonprofit corporations from the prohibition on political contributions under certain circumstances. This amendment was not published in the 1997 Montana Code Annotated because the 1997 Legislature passed Ch. 294, which removed the amendments that had been inserted by Initiative No. 125.

Preamble: The preamble attached to I.M. No. 125 provided: "WHEREAS, corporations are not allowed to directly spend money to influence political candidate campaigns in Montana; and

WHEREAS, corporations are not allowed to directly contribute money to a political party in Montana; and

WHEREAS, the processes of initiative and referendum are a vital part of the political process in Montana; and

WHEREAS, corporations are not restricted in the direct use of corporate funds to support or oppose the adoption or rejection of ballot issues in Montana; and

WHEREAS, corporations are now making direct corporate expenditures of overwhelming amounts of money in Montana initiatives; and

WHEREAS, participation in the political system needs to be kept fair to citizens of normal financial means; and

WHEREAS, limitations on direct corporate contributions work toward that fairness.

NOW, THEREFORE, BE IT RESOLVED BY THE PEOPLE OF THE STATE OF MONTANA:

That the prohibition on the direct use of corporate funds in the Montana political process be expanded to prohibit direct corporate expenditures in support of or in opposition to initiative and referendum ballot issues."

Severability: Section 4, I.M. No. 125, was a severability clause.

Case Notes

Corporate Expenditures in Connection With Ballot Issues: The District Court did not clearly err in finding that corporate wealth has not distorted the ballot issue process in Montana and that the first amendment therefore does not permit this section's provision that prohibits a corporation from making a contribution or expenditure in connection with a ballot issue. The provision is unconstitutional. Mont. Chamber of Commerce v. Argenbright, 226 F3d 1049 (9th Cir. 2000).

Statutory Limits on Contributions to Ballot Issue Committees Held Unconstitutional: A city ordinance placing a $250 limit on contributions to committees formed to support or oppose ballot measures is an unconstitutional interference with the first amendment rights of association and free speech. Citizens Against Rent Control v. Berkeley, 454 US 290, 70 L Ed 2d 492, 102 S Ct 2d 434 (1981).

Corporate Free Speech — United States Constitution: The portion of this section (prior to 1979 amendment) that totally prohibited payments or contributions by corporations in support of or opposition to ballot issues was an unconstitutional restriction of corporate rights to free speech guaranteed by the first amendment to the United States Constitution (similar to Art. II, sec. 7, Mont. Const.). C & C Plywood Corp. v. Hanson, 583 F2d 421 (9th Cir. 1978), affirming 420 F. Supp. 1254 (D.C.-Mont. 1976).

General Provisions

13-36-101. Grounds for contest of nomination or election to public office.

Case Notes

Failure to Prove Illegal Voting — Summary Judgment Proper: Walker claimed that illegal votes were cast by five voters who were not residents of the town of Darby. Higgins established that they were each registered to vote in Darby and that their names appeared on the precinct voting register, which constitutes prima facie evidence of the right to vote. Despite residency questions, Walker failed to produce material and substantial evidence that votes were illegally cast, and summary judgment for Higgins was proper. Walker v. Higgins, 277 M 443, 922 P2d 1154, 53 St. Rep. 719 (1996).

Freeholder Requirement Constitutional — Reasonable Relationship Standard Applied: A landowner within an irrigation district filed a petition seeking to have the election of an irrigation district commissioner set aside on the grounds that the elected commissioner did not own irrigable land within the district as required by 85-7-1501. The District Court set aside the election, and the commissioner appealed on the grounds that the land ownership requirement violates the equal protection clause of the United States Constitution. The Supreme Court affirmed and held that the freeholder requirement does not violate the right to equal protection under the federal constitution. Johnson v. Killingsworth, 271 M 1, 894 P2d 272, 52 St. Rep. 274 (1995).

Election Not Affected by Voting Irregularities: Appellants appealed District Court order denying petition to invalidate school board election and mill levy, alleging election officials improperly distributed and tabulated absentee ballots and that several voters failed to meet residency requirements. In affirming the order, the Supreme Court ruled that the issue of validity was moot and that voting irregularities caused by the election officials had no effect on election results. Baker v. Bink, 223 M 375, 726 P2d 822, 43 St. Rep. 1801 (1986).

Unstamped and Excess Ballots: Although discarding the ballots in excess of the number of names on the pollbooks would not have affected the outcome of a legislative primary election, the District Court properly ordered a new election when it could not be determined with mathematical certainty that petitioner had won the nomination because some ballots had not been endorsed with the official stamp and the number of such unstamped ballots cast for petitioner was unknown. In re Recount of Ravalli County Primary Election, Petition of Thoft, 178 M 272, 583 P2d 430 (1978).

False Swearing as to Unconstitutional Freeholder Requirement Not a Violation: The freeholder requirement contained in 7-4-4401, prior to its amendment in 1979, was unconstitutional since it bore no relation to a person's qualifications and ability to serve as City Councilman, resulting in an invidious discrimination violative of equal protection. Thus, appellant's false swearing as to freeholder status in his filed declaration of nomination did not constitute a violation of the election laws. Sadler v. Connolly, 175 M 484, 575 P2d 51 (1978), distinguished in Johnson v. Killingsworth, 271 M 1, 894 P2d 272, 52 St. Rep. 274 (1995).

Effect of Failure of Judges to Sign Registry Books: Failure of the election judges of a precinct to require the electors to sign the registry books before voting at a primary election was the fault of the judges and not of the electors, and therefore their votes were legal and properly counted. Thompson v. Chapin, 64 M 376, 209 P 1060 (1922).

13-36-205. Recovery of costs.Case Notes

Costs and Fees Payable in Contested Election Proceeding: Litigants in Montana are generally not entitled to an award of attorney fees absent a specific contractual or statutory provision. This section provides the statutory authority for an award of costs, disbursements, and attorney fees to the prevailing party in a contested election proceeding. Big Spring v. Jore, 2005 MT 64, 326 M 256, 109 P3d 219 (2005).

Award of Attorney Fees Reasonable: Paulsen contested an election and lost. The District Court awarded $4,582.14 in attorney fees to the prevailing party, Huestis. Paulsen argued on appeal that the attorney fees were not warranted. The Supreme Court found that the District Court had reviewed the evidence presented and had ruled consistently with the factors in determining reasonableness set out in Swenson v. Janke, 274 M 354, 908 P2d 678 (1995). The award was not an abuse of discretion under this section and was therefore affirmed. Paulsen v. Huestis, 2000 MT 280, 302 M 157, 13 P3d 931, 57 St. Rep. 1170 (2000).

Award of Attorney Fees Proper: The award of attorney fees in a case challenging the legality of voter residency in a city election was proper, after consideration of the factors constituting reasonableness set out in Swenson v. Janke, 274 M 354, 908 P2d 678 (1995). Walker v. Higgins, 277 M 443, 922 P2d 1154, 53 St. Rep. 719 (1996).

Award of Attorney Fees Not Abuse of Discretion: Marsh argued that the District Court should not have awarded Overland attorney fees because due to the actions of the election judges and the recount, it was inevitable that either he or Overland would have initiated the election contest proceeding. The Supreme Court held that the District Court in its discretion could have accepted Marsh's arguments but that not to do so and the award of attorney fees to Overland were not an abuse of discretion. The Supreme Court also granted Overland's request that Marsh be required to pay Overland's costs and attorney fees on appeal on the basis that the award on appeal furthered the purpose of this section. Marsh v. Overland, 274 M 21, 905 P2d 1088, 52 St. Rep. 1099 (1995).

Docketing Priority in Cases of Contested Nominations: This section provides for prompt resolution of an election dispute and requires a court to give a contest petition precedence over other pending cases. The court is to conduct a hearing on a priority basis, and the contestee must make an appearance and answer the petition. However, there is no stated requirement that the hearing be held within 7 days after a petition is filed. Under 13-36-208, there is some discretion regarding postponements or continuances when necessary. Taylor v. Matejovsky, 261 M 514, 863 P2d 1022, 50 St. Rep. 1434 (1993).

Scope of Testimony and Evidence Allowed at Hearing on Petition: This section allows the contestant and contestee to produce evidence at the hearing and includes witness testimony in addition to tangible forms of evidence, as long as it is proffered by one of the parties. The court has discretion to determine the admissibility of the testimony under the general rules of evidence, but it is not to be rejected on the basis that this section permits only the parties to the action to testify. Taylor v. Matejovsky, 261 M 514, 863 P2d 1022, 50 St. Rep. 1434 (1993).

Ordering New Primary Election: When a nomination is declared vacant, the District Court has, without question, the power to order a new election. In re Recount of Ravalli County Primary Election, Petition of Thoft, 178 M 272, 583 P2d 430 (1978).

Case Notes

Advisory Body Meeting Without Notice — Mootness of Issues When Ultimate Action Becomes Final: The committee that recommends a list of persons from whom the Governor may select the Commissioner of Political Practices met, without public notice, to discuss who would be recommended. The Governor appointed a recommended person. A suit was filed to void the appointment on the grounds that the submission of the list was void because there was no notice of the meeting. The committee was granted summary judgment in the District Court, and plaintiffs appealed. Before the appeal was heard, the Senate confirmed the appointment. That the confirmation vested the title to the office in the appointee did not make the appeal and issue moot because alleged violations of the state constitutional right to know and open meeting statutes could occur again, both in the context of this committee and similar advisory entities. To allow an alleged violation to escape judicial scrutiny simply because legal proceedings are not always swift would take away the people's constitutional right to know. Common Cause of Mont. v. Statutory Comm. to Nominate Candidates for Comm'r of Political Practices, 263 M 324, 868 P2d 604, 51 St. Rep. 77 (1994).

Appointment by Governor Not Voided by Failure of Recommending Committee to Give Notice of Meeting at Which Recommended Persons Chosen: The committee that recommends persons to the Governor, who appoints the Commissioner of Political Practices, violated the open meeting law when it met, without public notice, to discuss who would be recommended. The Governor appointed a recommended person, and the Senate confirmed the appointment. Since the Governor is free to disregard the recommended persons, the Governor did not violate the law in appointing one of the recommended persons, and the appointment was not voided. Common Cause of Mont. v. Statutory Comm. to Nominate Candidates for Comm'r of Political Practices, 263 M 324, 868 P2d 604, 51 St. Rep. 77 (1994).

Failure to Give Notice of Meeting of Committee That Recommends Persons Governor May Appoint as Commissioner of Political Practices: When three members of the four-member committee that recommends a list of persons from whom the Governor may select the Commissioner of Political Practices met to discuss candidates and the transmission of their names to the Governor and gave no public notice of the meeting, the committee violated the open meeting law. Common Cause of Mont. v. Statutory Comm. to Nominate Candidates for Comm'r of Political Practices, 263 M 324, 868 P2d 604, 51 St. Rep. 77 (1994).

"Meeting" Held When Three of Four Members Met to Select Recommended Persons for Position Appointed by Governor: A meeting was held within the meaning of the open meeting law when three members of the four-member committee that recommends a list of persons from whom the Governor may select the Commissioner of Political Practices met to discuss candidates and the transmission of their names to the Governor. Common Cause of Mont. v. Statutory Comm. to Nominate Candidates for Comm'r of Political Practices, 263 M 324, 868 P2d 604, 51 St. Rep. 77 (1994).

Public or Governmental Bodies — Committee to Recommend Commissioner of Political Practices Appointees to Governor: The committee that recommends a list of persons from whom the Governor may select the Commissioner of Political Practices is not a board, bureau, commission, or agency within the meaning of those terms as used in the open meeting law. However, the committee is a "public or governmental body" under the plain meaning of those terms as used in that law because it has a clear public and governmental purpose and was created for a specific governmental task and is thus subject to the open meeting law. Common Cause of Mont. v. Statutory Comm. to Nominate Candidates for Comm'r of Political Practices, 263 M 324, 868 P2d 604, 51 St. Rep. 77 (1994).

Amendment effective October 1, 2005.

Amendment effective July 1, 1987, upon approval by the electorate of HB 463 that repealed Art. XIII, sec. 3, of the Constitution.

Chapter 693 in (1) increased salary to present amount from $26,794.

1983 Amendment: In (1), increased the salary of the Commissioner of Political Practices from that authorized in fiscal year 1982 and fiscal years after 1982, $23,794 and $25,754, to $26,269 in fiscal year 1984 and $26,794 in fiscal years after 1984.

1981 Amendment: In (1), substituted "a salary of $23,794 in fiscal year 1982 and $25,754 after June 30, 1982" for "an annual salary of $22,000".

Jurisdiction of District Court — Defective Affidavit of Probable Cause: The failure of the Commissioner of Campaign Finances and Practices (now Commissioner of Political Practices) to recite, in an affidavit supporting a request for leave to initiate prosecution by information, the fact that the County Attorney had waived under 13-37-124 his right to prosecute the defendant was not a jurisdictional defect, and the court improperly granted the defendant's motion to dismiss. Case Notes

Provisions Limiting Contributions to Individual and Political Action Committees and Imposing Aggregate Dollar Amounts From Committees Constitutional: To reform campaign finance laws, Montana voters in 1994 passed Initiative Measure No. 118, which included two provisions that lowered the maximum dollar amount that a political action committee and an individual could contribute to a political candidate and imposed an aggregate dollar amount that a candidate could receive from all political action committees. The Montana Right to Life

Association filed suit, alleging that the provisions unduly burdened constitutionally protected free speech and associational rights. The District Court upheld the provision as sufficiently tailored to achieve Montana's important interest in preventing corruption and the appearance of corruption in Montana politics. On appeal, the Ninth Circuit Court applied the standards articulated by the U.S. Supreme Court in Buckley v. Valeo, 424 US 1 (1976), and Nixon v. Shrink Mo. Gov't PAC, 528 US 377 (2000), in which the court held that a state's campaign contribution limits would be upheld if the limits furthered a sufficiently important state interest and were closely drawn so that they focused narrowly on the state's interest, left a contributor free to affiliate with a candidate, and allowed a candidate to amass sufficient resources to wage an effective campaign. In affirming the District Court decision, the Ninth Circuit Court ruled that the limits imposed on individual and committee contributions and on the aggregate dollar amount that a candidate could receive from all political action committees were sufficiently tailored to achieve Montana's important interest in preventing corruption and the appearance of corruption in Montana politics. Mont. Right to Life Ass'n v. Eddleman, 343 F3d 1085 (9th Cir. 2003).

Statutory Limits on Contributions to Ballot Issue Committees Held Unconstitutional: A city ordinance placing a $250 limit on contributions to committees formed to support or oppose ballot measures is an unconstitutional interference with the first amendment rights of association and free speech. Citizens Against Rent Control v. Berkeley, 454 US 290, 70 L Ed 2d 492, 102 S Ct 2d 434 (1981).

Corporate Free Speech — Contributions for Ballot Issues: The portion of 13-35-227 (prior to 1979 amendment) that totally prohibited payments or contributions by corporations in support of or opposition to ballot issues was an unconstitutional restriction of corporate rights to free speech guaranteed by the first amendment to the United States Constitution (similar to Art. II, sec. 7, Mont. Const.). C & C Plywood Corp. v. Hanson, 583 F2d 421 (9th Cir. 1978), affirming 420 F. Supp. 1254 (D.C. Mont. 1976).

Limitations on Contributions Constitutional: Federal Election Campaign Act's limits on contributions to campaigns for election to federal office do not unconstitutionally impair first amendment freedoms of expression and association and are not invidiously discriminatory, as such a ceiling is a valid guard against the corrupting potential of large financial contributions to candidates. Buckley v. Valeo, 424 US 1 (1976).

Case Notes

Provisions Limiting Contributions to Individual and Political Action Committees and Imposing Aggregate Dollar Amounts From Committees Constitutional: To reform campaign finance laws, Montana voters in 1994 passed Initiative Measure No. 118, which included two provisions that lowered the maximum dollar amount that a political action committee and an individual could contribute to a political candidate and imposed an aggregate dollar amount that a candidate could receive from all political action committees. The Montana Right to Life Association filed suit, alleging that the provisions unduly burdened constitutionally protected free speech and associational rights. The District Court upheld the provision as sufficiently tailored to achieve Montana’s important interest in preventing corruption and the appearance of corruption in Montana politics. On appeal, the Ninth Circuit Court applied the standards articulated by the U.S. Supreme Court in Buckley v. Valeo, 424 US 1 (1976), and Nixon v. Shrink Mo. Gov’t PAC, 528 US 377 (2000), in which the court held that a state’s campaign contribution limits would be upheld if the limits furthered a sufficiently important state interest and were closely drawn so that they focused narrowly on the state’s interest, left a contributor free to affiliate with a candidate, and allowed a candidate to amass sufficient resources to wage an effective campaign. In affirming the District Court decision, the Ninth Circuit Court ruled that the limits imposed on individual and committee contributions and on the aggregate dollar amount that a candidate could receive from all political action committees were sufficiently tailored to achieve Montana’s important interest in preventing corruption and the appearance of corruption in Montana politics. Mont. Right to Life Ass’n v. Eddleman, 343 F3d 1085 (9th Cir. 2003).

Limitations on Expenditures Unconstitutional: Limits on campaign expenditures by candidates, from personal or family resources, for federal office or by other individuals or campaign committees to advocate election or defeat of candidates for federal office are an impermissible burden on first amendment freedom of expression because candidates must have an unfettered opportunity to make their views known so that the electorate may intelligently evaluate candidates' personal qualities and positions on vital public issues before choosing among the candidates on election day. Debate on public issues should be uninhibited, robust, and wide open to assure unfettered interchange of ideas for bringing about political and social changes desired by the people. *Buckley v. 13-38-204. Committees to fill vacancies among nominees under certain circumstances.Case Notes

Failure to Accept Nomination — No Vacancy Created: When a successful write-in candidate at a nominating election failed to file his acceptance within 10 days after election day, his subsequent resignation did not result in a vacancy which the county central committee of his party could fill. State ex rel. Wilkinson v. McGrath, 111 M 102, 106 P2d 186 (1940).

Death After Election: Sections 23-915 and 23-929, R.C.M. 1947 (now repealed), did not empower county central committee to make an original nomination of a candidate to an office to be filled at a special election when the officer-elect died after election and before induction into office. State ex rel. Smith v. Duncan, 55 M 376, 177 P 248 (1918), distinguished in LaBorde v. McGrath, 116 M 283, 149 P2d 913 (1944).

Time for Filling Vacancies: Under section 1320, Political Code of 1895, when a convention had made a nomination and authorized its committee to fill any vacancy that may have occurred, the filling of the vacancy by the committee, upon the death or resignation of the candidate or because the original certificate of nomination was or became insufficient or inoperative, could be made at any time before the day of election. State ex rel. Galen v. Hays, 31 M 227, 78 P 301 (1904); State ex rel. Scharnikow v. Hogan, 24 M 397, 62 P 683 (1900).

Attorney General's Opinions

Vacancy With No Opportunity to Nominate in Primary: When the office of County Commissioner has become vacant with no opportunity to nominate candidates in the primary election, the selection of candidates for the general election will be made by each political party according to 13-10-327; and, pursuant to 13-12-208 (now repealed), write-in candidates may also seek the office. The appointee to fill the immediate vacancy will hold that office until the next general election. 37 A.G. Op. 147 (1978).
